Identities, meanings, values: the meaning of our title

The RE syllabus uses a multi-dimensional model of religions and worldviews, and of RE itself. Learners explore questions of identity: who am I? Where do I fit in? What influences shape me? They discover a range of accounts of the meanings humans find in life, developing their own sense of meaning, and they consider how human values are often common and humane, but also often distinctive in the ways they are expressed and practised.

In this context, RE has two focal points. It is about the religious identities, meanings and values studied. All three words are plural: answers to these ultimate questions are not final or singular, but contested and varied. RE is also about the pupil's own search for identity, meaning and values by which to live.

Additional printed copies of the syllabus are available to purchase, priced at £25.

Foreword

RE: thoughtful, reasonable, spiritual

The place of RE in the lives of children and young people keeps changing, but some things are constant. Every person, growing up, finds their own values and beliefs by which to live. The tensions of our differences are creative and fascinating for most of us, but occasionally they cause conflict. The place of religion in the modern world is controversial and challenging, but does not go away. For these (among many) reasons it is vital for our schools to help children and young people to develop their own ideas and ways of living, to learn to be reasonable about belief and religions and to learn to be respectful to those who see the world differently. If everyone finds their own path in life, then the great religions of the world might be seen as guide books. RE introduces pupils to the influences of faiths and beliefs over thousands of years and for billions of people. That's a part of a good education for the twenty-first century.

In England, the spirit of co-operation characterises the making of RE syllabuses by local authority SACREs. In Central Bedfordshire, Bedford Borough and Luton the usual collaborations between different faith groups, teachers and democratically elected members has another layer: the three local authorities have seen the benefit once again in working together to make this shared RE syllabus, which gives more help than ever before to teachers as they plan and teach RE.

We hope that the children and young people of our local authority areas will find in their RE learning plenty of material to fascinate and stimulate, much to think about creatively and deeply, some challenges to each person to play their part in a better community and the chances to develop religious literacy and explore spirituality for themselves. We thank all those involved in making the syllabus, and all the teachers who will turn the words on the pages of the syllabus into dynamic learning for our children.

The purpose of RE

The RE Agreed Syllabus for 2018–2023 asserts the importance and value of RE for all pupils, with ongoing benefits for an open, articulate and understanding society. The following purpose statements underpin the syllabus¹, which is constructed to support pupils and teachers in fulfilling them:

- RE contributes dynamically to children and young people’s education in schools by provoking challenging questions about meaning and purpose in life, beliefs about God, ultimate reality, issues of right and wrong and what it means to be human.
- In RE, pupils learn about religions and beliefs in local, national and global contexts, to discover, explore and consider different answers to these questions.
- They learn to weigh up the value of wisdom from different sources, to develop and express their insights in response and to agree or disagree respectfully.
- RE teaching therefore should equip pupils with systematic knowledge and understanding of a range of religions and beliefs, enabling them to develop their ideas, values and identities.
- It should develop in pupils an aptitude for dialogue so that they can participate positively in our society, with its diverse religions and beliefs.
- Pupils should gain and deploy the skills needed to understand, interpret and evaluate texts, sources of wisdom and authority and other evidence. They should learn to articulate clearly and coherently their personal beliefs, ideas, values and experiences while respecting the right of others to differ.

The purpose of RE is captured in the principal aim, which is intended to be a shorthand version for day-to-day use. It should be considered a doorway into the wider purpose of the subject, as articulated above.

The principal aim of RE

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Schools should make use of this principal aim throughout their planning to ensure that all teaching and learning contributes to enabling pupils to achieve this aim. Schools, RE teachers and RE departments will find that discussing how the principal aim relates to the purpose of RE, and talking about how classroom RE can contribute to the aim, will be helpful for teachers in clarifying what RE is for in their school and classroom.

The threefold aim of RE

The threefold aim of RE elaborates on the principal aim and puts the purpose of the subject into action. The curriculum for RE aims to ensure that all pupils can do the following:

- | |
| 1 Make sense of a range of religious and non-religious beliefs, so that they can: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• identify, describe, explain and analyse beliefs and concepts in the context of living religions, using appropriate vocabulary• explain how and why these beliefs are understood in different ways, by individuals and within communities• recognise how and why sources of authority (e.g. texts, teachings, traditions, leaders) are used, expressed and interpreted in different ways, developing skills of interpretation |
| 2 Understand the impact and significance of religious and non-religious beliefs, so that they can: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• examine and explain how and why people express their beliefs in diverse ways• recognise and account for ways in which people put their beliefs into action in diverse ways, in their everyday lives, within their communities and in the wider world• appreciate and appraise the significance of different ways of life and ways of expressing meaning |
| 3 Make connections between religious and non-religious beliefs, concepts, practices and ideas studied, so that they can: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• evaluate, reflect on and enquire into key concepts and questions studied, responding thoughtfully and creatively, giving good reasons for their responses• challenge the ideas they study, and consider how these ideas might challenge their own thinking, articulating beliefs, values and commitments clearly in response• discern possible connections between the ideas studied and their own ways of understanding the world, expressing their critical responses and personal reflections with increasing clarity and understanding |

Throughout schooling, teachers should consider how their teaching contributes towards the principal aim of RE, and how they help pupils to achieve the threefold aims above.

Notes

- These aims incorporate the former attainment targets of ‘learning about religion’ and ‘learning from religion’ from the 2013 RE syllabus.
- This agreed syllabus builds on the good practice from the previous agreed syllabus – Religious Education: The non-statutory national framework, produced by the then-Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in 2004 – and also the core ideas in A Curriculum Framework for Religious Education in England, the RE Council’s non-statutory framework from 2013.²
- When planning to implement the threefold aim, teachers will find that a single lesson sometimes focuses on one element of the aim, but also that some lessons incorporate two or three elements smoothly.
- When planning to implement the threefold aim, teachers may usually begin by making sense of beliefs, but there is nothing prescriptive about this: a good investigation might sometimes start with a connection, or an example of the impact of belief instead.

RE legal requirements: what does the legislation in England say?

RE is for all pupils

- Every pupil has a legal entitlement to RE.
- RE is a necessary part of a 'broad and balanced curriculum' and must be provided for all registered pupils in state-funded schools in England, including those in the sixth form, unless withdrawn by their parents (or withdrawing themselves if they are aged 18 or over).³
- This requirement does not apply for children below compulsory school age (although there are many examples of good practice of RE in nursery classes).
- Special schools should ensure that every pupil receives RE 'as far as is practicable'.⁴
- The 'basic' school curriculum includes the National Curriculum, RE, and relationships and sex education.

RE is locally determined, not nationally

- A locally agreed syllabus is a statutory syllabus for RE recommended by an agreed syllabus conference for adoption by a local authority.⁵
- Local authority maintained schools without a religious character must follow the locally agreed syllabus.
- RE is also compulsory for all pupils in academies and free schools, as set out in their funding agreements. Academies may use the locally agreed syllabus, or a different locally agreed syllabus (with the permission of the SACRE concerned) or devise their own curriculum. This agreed syllabus has been written to support academies in our local area to meet the requirements of their funding agreement, and is warmly commended to them.

RE is multifaith, and recognises the place of Christianity and the other principal religions in the UK. Non-religious worldviews are included

- The RE curriculum drawn up by a SACRE or used by an academy or free school, 'shall reflect the fact that the religious traditions in Great Britain are in the main Christian, while taking account of the teaching and practices of the other principal religions represented in Great Britain'.⁶ Contemporary guidance from the government makes clear that the breadth of RE will include the six principal religions in the UK and non-religious worldviews.

Requirements for different types of schools vary

- Voluntary-aided schools with a religious character should provide RE in accordance with the trust deed or religious designation of the school, unless parents request the locally agreed syllabus.
- Church of England schools (including church academies and church free schools) should provide a wide range of opportunities for learners to understand and to make links between the beliefs, practices and value systems of the range of faiths and worldviews studied. This can be achieved by using the agreed syllabus.
- In Church of England schools, the students and their families can expect an RE curriculum that is rich and varied, enabling learners to acquire a thorough knowledge and understanding of the Christian faith, for example through the Understanding Christianity resource. Church of England schools should use some form of enquiry approach that engages with, for example, biblical texts, and helps develop religious and theological literacy. Links with the Christian values of the school and spiritual, moral, social and cultural development are intrinsic to the RE curriculum and should have a significant impact on learners (more is set out in Religious Education in Church of England Schools: A Statement of Entitlement, see bit.ly/2KSmbV3).
- The effectiveness of denominational education in Church of England and Methodist schools is evaluated during the Statutory Section 48 Inspection.

As education policy changes, the legal requirement for RE for all registered pupils remains unchanged. RE is an entitlement for all pupils on the roll of every school, unless they have been withdrawn by their parents from RE.

Parental right of withdrawal from RE

This was first granted in 1944 when curricular RE was called 'religious instruction', and carried with it connotations of induction into the Christian faith. RE is very different now – open, broad, exploring a range of religious and non-religious worldviews. However, in the UK, parents still have the right to withdraw their children from RE on the grounds that they wish to provide their own RE (School Standards and Framework Act 1998 S71 (3)). This will be the parents' responsibility. However, it is good practise to talk to parents to ensure that they understand the aims and value of RE before honouring this right. Schools often include a short statement about RE being inclusive in their prospectus, and ask parents considering withdrawal to contact the head teacher to arrange a discussion. Some schools also say that they will not support selective withdrawal from some parts of RE. Students aged 18 or over have the right to withdraw themselves from RE.

What is statutory material and what is guidance material in this RE syllabus?

The statutory requirements of this syllabus are as follows:

- Schools must obey the law by providing RE for every pupil in each year group, except those withdrawn by their parents (see above).
- The purposes of RE, the principal aim and its three-fold elaboration are the aims of RE in this syllabus. Schools must enable pupils to achieve in RE in relation to the aims.
- The minimum requirements for which religions are to be taught are statutory. Schools must teach about these religions and worldviews, so that pupils have a broad and balanced curriculum in RE from ages 5–14.
- The end-of-phase and age-related outcomes specified in the syllabus are statutory. Schools must use these to plan teaching and learning so that all pupils have a chance to meet these standards, which are similar to the age-related outcomes for foundation subjects of the National Curriculum such as geography or history.

Guidance and support in meeting these requirements

- The investigation plans provided for pupils in each age group are the main means by which schools are advised to implement the statutory programme of RE, but they are flexible. Schools can develop additional units of work of their own, from the principle aim of RE, as long as they meet the outcomes and reflect the range of religions that the syllabus requires.
- The skills and knowledge which the syllabus offers to pupils, as described in the assessment guidance of the syllabus, offer good methods for assessing achievement which are compatible with the assessment of other subjects, and a range of school-based assessment policies and programmes. Teacher can use this guidance, or something which is superior to it, in their own schools.

Time for RE: good standards require good teaching time

Schools have a statutory responsibility to deliver RE to all pupils, except those withdrawn by parents (see p. 7). Schools must ensure that sufficient time is given in order to enable pupils to meet the expectations set out in this syllabus, ensuring that the curriculum is coherent and shows progression, particularly across transitions between key stages.

There is no single correct way of making appropriate provision of time for RE as long as the RE outcomes are met. In order to deliver the aims and expected standards of the syllabus effectively, schools will need to make a minimum allocation of five per cent of curriculum time for RE. This is set out in the table below, and based on the most recent national guidance.

4–5s	36 hours of RE provision in the Reception year (e.g. short sessions of 30 minutes twice a week, implemented through continuous provision)
5–7s	36 hours of tuition per year (e.g. 50 minutes or an hour a week, or less weekly time plus a series of RE days)
7–11s	45 hours of tuition per year (e.g. an hour a week, or a series of RE days or weeks amounting to 45+ hours of RE)
11–14s	45 hours of tuition per year (e.g. an hour a week)
14–16s	5% of curriculum time, or 70 hours of tuition across the key stage (e.g. for a short course RE RS – an hour a week for 5 terms, or 50 minutes per week, supplemented with off-timetable RE days). GCSE Religious Studies (RS) full courses require – and should be allocated – similar teaching time to (e.g.) French, History or other GCSE courses; normally 140 hours of tuition)
16–19s	Allocation of time for RE for all should be clearly identifiable

Important notes

- RE is legally required for all pupils. RE is a core subject of the curriculum for all pupils. It is an entitlement for all pupils through their schooling, from the Reception year up to and including Key Stage 5. For schools offering GCSE short- or full-course RE in Year 9 and Year 10, there is still a requirement that there is identifiable RE in Year 11. These legal requirements were confirmed by the Department for Education in 2017, and no legal change is planned.
- RE is different from assembly/collective worship. Curriculum time for RE is distinct from the time spent on collective worship or school assembly, even though making links between the collective worship and the purposes and themes of RE could be good practice. The times given above are for RE lessons.
- Flexible delivery of RE. RE is usually best taught once a week, but some schools successfully teach RE for half a term intensively and then move on to history. An RE-themed day or week of study can complement (but not usually replace) the regular programme of timetabled weekly lessons. Some teachers suggest that some of our units are well suited to delivery in a single day of intense RE. Examples might include L2.3, L2.5, U2.7, U2.8, 3.4 or 3.17.
- RE should be taught in clearly identifiable time. There is a common frontier between RE and such subjects as literacy, humanities, citizenship or PSHE. However, the times given above are explicitly for the clearly identifiable teaching of RE. Where creative curriculum planning is used, schools must ensure that RE objectives are clear and RE outcomes are met. In Early Years Foundation Stages (EYFS), teachers should be able to indicate the opportunities they are providing to integrate RE into children’s learning, connected to the Early Learning Goals (ELGs) which RE meets.
- Coherence and progression. Any schools in which head teachers and governors do not plan to allocate sufficient curriculum time for RE is unlikely to be able to enable pupils to achieve the standards and outcomes set out in this syllabus. While schools are expected to make their own decisions about how to divide up curriculum time, they must ensure that sufficient time is given to RE so that pupils can meet the expectations and outcomes set out in this agreed syllabus, to provide coherence and progression in RE learning.

Which religions are to be taught? The minimum requirements

In line with the law, this syllabus requires that all pupils develop their understanding of Christianity in each key stage. In addition, across the age ranges, pupils will develop understanding of the principal religions represented in the UK, in line with the law. These are Islam, Hinduism, Sikhism, Buddhism and Judaism. Furthermore, children from families where non-religious worldviews are held are represented in almost all of our classrooms. These worldviews, including, for example, Humanism, will also be the focus for study in thematic units.

Pupils are to study, in depth, the religious traditions of the following groups:

4–5s Reception	Children will encounter Christianity and other faiths as part of their growing sense of self, their own community and their place within it.	Consideration of other religions and non-religious worldviews can occur at any key stage, as appropriate to the school context. Examples are included across the age ranges in the units of study.
5–7s Key Stage 1	Christians, Jews and/or Muslims.
7–11s Key Stage 2	Christians, Muslims, Hindus and Jews. An additional study of Sikhs is appropriate if the school has Sikh pupils.
11–14s Key Stage 3	Christians, Muslims, Sikhs and Buddhists. Additional studies are suitable where pupils from other religions are in the school.
14–16s Key Stage 4	Study of two religions is required, including Christianity. This will be through a course in RS or RE leading to a qualification approved under Section 96 ⁷ (normally GCSE RS).
16–19s RE for all	Religions and worldviews to be selected by schools and colleges as appropriate.

Important notes

This is the minimum requirement. Many schools may wish to go beyond the minimum.

- The range of religious groups in the UK. Specific groups such as Unitarians, Quakers, Jains, the Baha’i faith, Jehovah’s Witnesses or the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints are not excluded from study in this scheme for RE. Schools are always advised to make space for the worldviews of the local community, which is why the table above expresses minimum requirements.
- Notice the language. ‘Christians’ rather than ‘Christianity’; ‘Hindus’ rather than ‘Hinduism’. This is to reflect the fact that RE starts with encounters with living faiths rather than the history and belief structures of traditions. This also recognises the diversity within and between religions and other traditions.
- Non-religious worldviews. Good practice in RE, as well as European and domestic legislation, has established the principle that RE should be inclusive of both religious and non-religious worldviews. Schools should ensure that the content and delivery of the RE curriculum are inclusive in this respect. The syllabus requires that, in addition to the religions required for study at each key stage, non-religious worldviews should also be explored in such a way as to ensure that pupils develop mutual respect and tolerance of those with different faiths and beliefs.
- Depth rather than breadth. Learning from four religions and beliefs across a key stage is demanding; the syllabus does not recommend tackling six religions in a key stage. Depth is more important than overstretched breadth. Schools are encouraged to ‘teach less but teach it better’.
- Systematic, then thematic learning. The thematic units offered in this syllabus allow for schools to draw in different traditions where they fit the theme and question, and where there are representatives of those traditions in the school and local community.

Building on best practice: links to the 2012 syllabus

The RE Agreed Syllabus for 2018–2023 builds on the good practice established in the previous locally agreed syllabus. The following elements will be familiar to teachers.

Continuity

RE and personal development: The 2018 syllabus retains its emphasis on RE contributing to the personal development of pupils. RE is not simply about gaining knowledge and understanding about religions and beliefs. It also helps pupils to develop their own understanding of the world, and of their own religious, spiritual or belief-based views. RE enables pupils to reflect profoundly on how to live in the light of their learning, developing understanding, skills and attitudes. It makes a significant contribution to pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development, as well as providing important opportunities for exploring British Values.

Religions and beliefs: The 2018 syllabus maintains the required minimum study of religions and beliefs in each key stage, as in the previous syllabus. Teachers are still free to teach RE flexibly, through, for example, weekly timetabled lessons, RE days or weeks or a combination of different models.

Open, enquiring RE: The 2018 syllabus continues to offer open, enquiring, exploratory RE, suitable for pupils who have religious faith of their own as well as for those who have no religious faith – the latter of whom form a substantial proportion of pupils in many of our classrooms.

Planning process: The planning process that was integral to the previous syllabus has been retained. It encourages and empowers teachers to develop their own excellent RE lessons, taking them through a process of using the syllabus to underpin their planning (long, medium and short term) and creative classroom practice.

Assessment: While the old style of using attainment targets and levels has been superseded, the syllabus still offers flexible assessment opportunities. These are based on age-related end-of-phase outcomes, linked to the teaching and learning approach. Each unit has specific outcomes that help pupils to achieve the end-of-phase outcomes in relation to the knowledge taught in that unit.

New emphases

Coherent understanding: There is an increased emphasis on helping pupils to develop a coherent understanding of several religions, by studying one religion at a time (systematic study) before bringing together and comparing different traditions (thematic study). The thematic study allows pupils to draw together their learning each year, connecting their studies of different religions.

Core concepts and knowledge: Clarity about identifiable core concepts of religions and beliefs helps teachers and pupils to build their knowledge base through RE, and to understand how beliefs and practices connect, so that pupils are able to build effectively on prior learning as they progress through the school.

A broad and balanced curriculum: Ofsted have a new interest in breadth and balance, and have been challenging schools where RE is weak to balance the curriculum in ways that include the subject. This syllabus intends to enable the subject to contribute to the whole curriculum.

Teaching and learning approach: There is a clear teaching and learning approach at the heart of the 2018 syllabus, whereby all units enable pupils to 'make sense' of the religions and beliefs studied, 'understand the impact' of these beliefs in people's lives, and to 'make connections' in their learning and their wider experience of the world.

Understanding Christianity: This 2016 resource, commissioned by the Church of England Education Office and created by RE Today, is being used in many of our schools in the three local authority areas, and is open to all. This syllabus incorporates the Understanding Christianity approach, so that schools that are using that resource can be confident that they are meeting the requirements of the agreed syllabus.

British Values and RE: The Ofsted inspector's focus on British Values is not uniquely the concern of RE, but the subject does play a useful part in exploring these values. The syllabus takes account of this, and connects religious values and the values of pupils, the school and the wider community.

Six units per year: The syllabus has moved away from a pattern of teaching four substantial units taking 10–12 hours each in a year, towards a half-termly pattern of teaching in a succinct and focused way about six questions over the course of a year. The new units require 6–7 hours of tuition time. This pattern is guidance, and is not prescriptive: the principle of depth is most important.

The teaching and learning approach for RE

The RE Agreed Syllabus for 2018–2023 is designed to support schools in developing and delivering excellence in RE. It responds to national calls for deepening pupils’ knowledge about religions and for developing their ‘religious literacy’⁸. It does this by studying one religion at a time (‘systematic’ units), and then including ‘thematic’ units, which build on learning by comparing the religions, beliefs and practices studied. This approach is developed from, and in strong continuity with, the 2012–2017 syllabus.

In order to support teachers in exploring the selected religions, the syllabus sets out an underlying teaching and learning approach, whereby pupils encounter core concepts in religions and beliefs in a coherent way, developing their understanding and their ability to handle questions of religion and belief.

The teaching and learning approach has three core elements, which are woven together to provide breadth and balance within teaching and learning about religions and beliefs, underpinning the aims of RE. Teaching and learning in the classroom will encompass all three elements, allowing for overlap between elements as suits the religion, concept and question being explored.

These elements set the context for open exploration of religions and beliefs. They offer a structure through which pupils can encounter diverse religious traditions, alongside non-religious worldviews, which reflect the backgrounds of many of the pupils in our schools. The three elements of the aim present a broad and flexible strategy that allows for different traditions to be treated with integrity. These elements offer a route through each unit while also allowing for a range of questions reflecting approaches from RS, philosophy, sociology, ethics and theology. The aims apply to the whole of RE, encouraging all teachers to see what comes before and follows on from their part of RE for their age group.

What are we aiming for pupils to achieve? End-of-phase outcomes

Each of the three elements of the teaching and learning approach is important, and pupils should make progress in all of them. Below are the end-of-phase outcomes for each element. Each unit provides learning outcomes specific to each question, leading to these end-of-phase outcomes. Teachers will recognise that this approach balances skills with core knowledge. The outcomes on this page are woven into every aspect of the planning, teaching, learning and assessment of this syllabus. They are the statutory key to the RE syllabus.

Assessment guidance: using the outcomes

The outcomes for each age group are the heart of this RE syllabus, and schools using them to plan their RE work will be running a legal curriculum. The assessment guidance of the syllabus is carefully constructed and will be the object of further training opportunities. The detailed lesson-by-lesson investigation plans that the SACREs intend to provide will give exemplary assessment tasks for the units.

The RE planning steps

Teachers should have the principal aim of RE at the forefront of their minds as they plan their RE. This process applies to each year group.

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Step 1: unit/key question 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Select a unit/key question from the relevant key stage, or devise your own. • Make sure that you can explain where this unit/question fits into key stage planning, e.g. what knowledge learners will gain; how it builds on previous learning in RE; what other subject areas it links to, if appropriate.
Step 2: use the learning outcomes 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Use the learning outcomes from column 1 of the unit outlines on the medium-term page plans, as appropriate to the age and ability of your pupils. • Being clear about these outcomes will help you to decide what and how to teach, and what gains in knowledge pupils can achieve.
Step 3: select specific content 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Look at the suggested content for your key question, from column 2 in the unit outlines, to clarify how pupils will build their knowledge. • Select the best content (from here, or additional information from elsewhere) to help you to teach in an engaging way so that pupils achieve the learning outcomes.
Step 4: assessment: write specific pupil outcomes (include knowledge and skills) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Turn the learning outcomes into pupil-friendly 'I can ...', 'You can ...' or 'Can you ...?' statements. • Make the learning outcomes specific to the content you are teaching, to help you know just what it is that you want pupils to know, be able to understand and do as a result of their learning. • Tie the learning in this unit to pupils' prior learning in the syllabus through recall and memory work, moving towards mastering key concepts progressively: be rigorous about what gains in knowledge are to be achieved. • These 'I can ...'/'You can ...'/'Can you ...?' statements will help you to integrate assessment for learning within your teaching, so that there is no need to do a separate end-of-unit assessment.
Step 5: develop teaching and learning activities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Develop active learning opportunities, using some engaging stimuli, to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. • Be clear about the knowledge you want them to gain, integrating it into their wider understanding in RE and life. Be clear about the skills you want pupils to develop. • Make sure that the teaching and learning activities allow pupils to process the knowledge and understanding, thinking hard and practising these skills as well as showing their understanding. • Consider ways of recording how pupils show their knowledge and understanding alongside literacy and appropriate extended writing, e.g. photographs, a learning journey wall or class book, group work, annotated planning, a scrapbook ... variety is good pedagogy here. • Ensure that you make secure plans for pupils to recall, recap and gain new knowledge in RE.

The syllabus support materials will provide knowledge organisers for the different religions to be studied. These are intended to help teachers to be systematic in introducing and teaching appropriate content for each age group.

Progress, outcomes and assessing achievement

The syllabus requires schools to develop their own assessment structures in line with other subjects of the curriculum, but offers key support to schools in doing this through its clear answers to these six key questions.

1 What is the normal expectation for progress in RE for pupils aged 5–14?

Most pupils will be able to show that they can meet the outcomes for the end of the stage at each age group, aged 7, 9, 11 and 14. Some pupils will not reach all of these expected outcomes, and others will achieve the outcomes in earlier age groups. The proportions of pupils who achieve the outcomes will depend upon the quality of teaching and learning and the prior knowledge of pupils. Teachers should collect evidence in simple and lightweight ways to show what the class is achieving.

2 How should schools use the end-of-key-stage outcomes?

There are eight outcomes for the end of Key Stage 1, nine for the end of Key Stage 2 and eight for the end of Key Stage 3. They have been written to show progress across the 5–14 age range. Teachers do not need to revisit these numerous times. Instead, planning for any particular unit should focus on making progress towards some of the outcomes – three would often be appropriate, but never all eight or nine in a single unit. The medium-term planning sheets in the syllabus give teachers a choice from which to select the outcomes they focus upon in learning.

3 How are the skills which the RE syllabus develops related to the content?

The three pyramids describe the skills pupils will develop and demonstrate. The knowledge base and content are specified in each unit in relation to the outcomes sought. A key part of the progression which the syllabus intends to provide is in building increasingly substantial knowledge and understanding of the religions studied, and of religion and worldviews as a whole.

4 How do the expected outcomes of each unit plan relate to the varieties of achievement in any class or age group?

Any class of pupils includes children working towards a wide variety of possible outcomes. The outcomes in each unit of work are written to set good standards of achievement for most pupils aged 7, 9, 11 and 14, so as pupils work through a key stage or age group, the outcomes will become more accessible to pupils. For example at the start of Year 3, not so many pupils will achieve the outcomes set in units for lower Key Stage 2 (ages 7–9). By the end of Year 4, most pupils will have made progress and will be meeting these outcomes if teaching and learning have been good.

5 How can teachers plan to ensure that pupils give evidence of their progress and attainment throughout the programmes of study?

Differentiation involves carefully matching work to pupils' learning needs. Teachers should plan using the outcomes given for each unit, aiming to support most pupils in achieving these in age-appropriate ways, and make plans for those who are working towards the outcomes and those who may be working beyond the outcomes. Each child's base of knowledge and understanding will be expanded through each unit taught.

6 How should schools use assessment tasks and assessment information to track progress and raise standards?

In RE, the purposes of assessment are for learning. Teachers are not required to use accountability assessment in RE. Teachers should make lightweight, realistic and workable plans to assess gains in knowledge and progress in skills in ways that will inform future learning. There is no need in RE to assess every half term or every term or in every unit of work. Schools are to plan assessment in ways that help pupils to learn more. This is the sole purpose of RE assessment. It is a matter for schools to determine in line with their assessment policies how RE achievement is tracked and reported to parents.

Picturing progression in pupils' skills: summary pyramids of steps

These pyramids picture eight steps up in the skills which this syllabus uses and develops. They correspond precisely to the outcomes identified in the aims and outcomes of the syllabus, but do not reflect content with regard to any particular religion. The knowledge to which these skills are applied is found in the unit plans in each case.

Additional examples of the steps to success given here are provided on our SACRE websites for teachers to use.

RE for 3–5-year-olds

The programme of study

RE in EYFS: programme of study

The Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) describes the phase of a child’s education from birth to the end of the Reception year at the age of 5. RE is statutory for all pupils registered on the school roll. The statutory requirement for RE does not extend to nursery classes in maintained schools. RE may, however, form a valuable part of the educational experience of children throughout the key stage. In the EYFS curriculum, learning does not fit into boxes: play-based and child-centred approaches will encourage the learning to follow where the child’s interest and curiosity leads.

Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS)		Key Stage 1
Nursery	Reception	Year 1 and upwards
RE is non-statutory, but teachers may choose to incorporate RE material into children’s activities.	RE is a compulsory part of the basic curriculum for all Reception-age pupils, and should be taught according to this syllabus.	RE is a compulsory part of the basic curriculum for all Key Stage 1 pupils, and should be taught according to this syllabus.
ELGs outline what pupils should achieve by the end of Reception year. The National Curriculum is not taught.		The National Curriculum is taught alongside RE.
Some settings have children from both nursery and Reception in an EYFS unit. Planning will need to take account of the needs and expectations of both age groups.

This syllabus sets out experiences, opportunities and appropriate topics for children in the Foundation Stage. The suggestions made for EYFS RE are good learning in themselves. These also connect to the EYFS seven areas of learning.

Planned teaching experiences will support children’s learning and development needs, as identified through holistic assessment. Good Early Years teaching stems from children’s own experiences. Many practitioners will find ways to draw on the wealth of religious or spiritual experiences that some families may bring with them.

The EYFS statutory framework also outlines an expectation that practitioners reflect on the different ways in which children learn and the characteristics of effective learning:

- Playing and exploring: children investigate and experience things, and ‘have a go’.
- Active learning: children concentrate and keep on trying if they encounter difficulties, and enjoy achievements.
- Creating and thinking critically: children have and develop their own ideas, make links between ideas and develop strategies for doing things.

What do children get out of RE in this age group?

RE sits very firmly within the areas of personal, social and emotional development and understanding the world. This framework enables children to develop a positive sense of themselves and others, and to learn how to form positive and respectful relationships. They will do this through a balance of guided, planned teaching and pursuing their own learning within an enabling environment. They will begin to understand and value the differences of individuals and groups within their own immediate community. Children will have the opportunity to develop their emerging moral and cultural awareness.

RE in the Early Years Foundation Stage

Children in EYFS should encounter religious and non-religious worldviews through special people, books, times, places and objects and by visiting places of worship. They should listen to and talk about stories. Children can be introduced to subject-specific words and use all their senses to explore beliefs, practices and forms of expression. They ask questions and reflect on their own feelings and experiences. They use their imagination and curiosity to develop their appreciation of, and wonder at, the world in which they live.

In line with the Department for Education's 2017 EYFS Profile, RE can provide many opportunities for pupils, through planned, purposeful play and a mix of adult-led and child-initiated activity.

The ideas below are drawn from both the Early Years Outcomes and the Early Learning Goals.

Communication and language

- Children listen with enjoyment to stories, songs and poems from different communities and traditions and respond with relevant comments, questions or actions.
- They use talk to organise, sequence and clarify thinking, ideas, feelings and events.
- They answer 'who', 'how' and 'why' questions about their own experiences in response to stories, experiences or events from different sources.
- They talk about how they and others show feelings.
- They develop their own narratives in relation to stories they hear from different communities.

Personal, social and emotional development

- Children understand that they can expect others to treat their needs, views, cultures and beliefs with respect.
- They work as part of a group, taking turns and sharing fairly, understanding that groups of people, including adults and children, need agreed values and codes of behaviour to work together harmoniously.
- They talk about their own and others' behaviour and its consequences, and know that some behaviour is unacceptable.
- They think and talk about issues of right and wrong and why these questions matter.
- They respond to significant experiences, showing a range of feelings when appropriate.
- They have a developing awareness of their own needs, views and feelings and are sensitive to those of others.
- They have a developing respect for their own cultures and beliefs, and those of other people.
- They show sensitivity to others' needs and feelings, and form positive relationships.

Understanding the world

- Children talk about similarities and differences between themselves and others, among families, communities and traditions.
- They begin to know about their own cultures and beliefs and those of other people.
- They explore, observe and find out about places and objects that matter in different cultures and beliefs.

Expressive arts and design

- Children use their imaginations in art, music, dance, imaginative play, role play and stories to represent their own ideas, thoughts and feelings.
- They respond in a variety of ways to what they see, hear, smell, touch and taste.

Literacy

- Children are given access to a wide range of books, poems and other written materials to ignite their interest.

Mathematics

- Children recognise, create and describe some patterns, sorting and ordering objects simply.

RE in the nursery

Activities children engage in during their nursery years are experiences which provide the building blocks for later development. Starting with things which are familiar to the children, and providing lots of hands-on activities and learning, are an important part of children's learning at this stage.

Some ideas for RE in the nursery can include:

- creative play, make-believe, role play, dance and drama
- dressing up and acting out scenes from stories, celebrations or festivals
- making and eating festival food
- talking and listening to each other; hearing and discussing stories of all kinds, including religious and secular stories with themes such as goodness, difference, the inner world of thoughts and feelings, and imagination
- exploring authentic religious artefacts, including those designed for small children such as 'soft toy' artefacts or story books
- seeing pictures, books and videos of places of worship and meeting believers in class
- listening to a range of example of religious and spiritual music; singing and enjoying music
- starting to introduce religious terminology
- work on nature, growing and life cycles or harvest
- seizing opportunities spontaneously or linking with topical, local events such as celebrations, festivals, the birth of a new baby, weddings or the death of a pet
- starting to talk about the different ways in which people believe and behave, and encouraging children to ask questions

Themes that lend themselves to opportunities for RE work include the following:

Myself	People who help us	Special times
My life	Friendship	Our community
My senses	Welcome	Special books
My special things	Belonging	Stories
People special to me	Special places	The natural world

Good teaching in EYFS will always build on children's interests and enthusiasm as well as their learning and development needs, and themes should be developed accordingly.

RE in the Reception class

Non-statutory guidance for RE for all 4–5-year-olds in the Reception class

The approach outlined for nursery will also serve Reception class teachers, especially in the earlier months of the reception year. In addition to this, the following pages are suggestions of questions, outcomes and content that will ensure good provision for RE in Reception.

The questions, outcomes and content below are non-statutory but should be read by all schools and settings to ensure that their provision is effective. For teaching to be high quality, the questions, learning outcomes and content need to be taught together. It is not sufficient simply to use the questions suggested.

Religions and worldviews

In the Reception class, children should encounter local examples of religion, including Christianity and other faiths, as part of their growing sense of self, their own community and their place within it, in line with the law about RE.

Three units below focus on Christianity, and the others include opportunities to encounter Christians, Hindus, Jews and Muslims, as well as non-religious responses and ways of living.

Six units are provided. Schools should teach at least four of these.

F1: Why is the word 'God' so important to Christians?
F2: Why is Christmas special for Christians?
F3: Why is Easter special for Christians?
F4: Being special: where do we belong? Learn from at least two religions
F5: Which places are specially valued and why? Learn from at least two religions
F6: Which stories are specially valued and why? Learn from at least two religions

Staggered entry: Clearly, for most children, entry to school will be staggered. This means that there needs to be flexibility about when units are done. For example, a unit supports around six hours of RE and can be fitted in to suit the needs of the children, rather than timetabled rigidly into each half term.

Note: Unit F4 'Being special: where do we belong?' is suggested as a good introductory section to use in the first term or two. For all schools, this is a time of integrating the children into the new school environment. The themes of belonging and community are likely to be important elements of provision at this time, and practitioners should take the opportunity to include RE where appropriate. Stories, songs, play and other aspects of integrated provision all need a strong place in EYFS RE.

Progression in knowledge: The value of checking pupils' knowledge, and planning for increasing knowledge and understanding, is built into every unit of the syllabus. Good teaching is not repetitive, but uses, reinforces and expands the knowledge taught to increase understanding. Learning processes such as reminding, recapping, checking facts, identifying misunderstandings and inviting learners to name what they know and what they need to know are a part of all good RE teaching.

Unit F1: Why is the word 'God' special to Christians?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Suggested questions you could explore	Learning outcomes: Plan learning experiences that enable children to ... Help children learn the names and talk about where they can be found in the world. Talk about beautiful things in nature. Add the Sun and the Moon to the display. Pupils draw/paint/collage some pictures of their favourite creatures. Talk about things they find interesting, puzzling and wonderful about the world. ● Introduce the idea that many people around the world think that the whole world was created by God. Point out to the children that some people do not believe in God. Read the creation story from a children's version of the Bible. Get children to point out which parts of the world were made on which day, in the story, including animals and humans. Give children a chance to put some of the display pictures in the order of the story as they talk. Talk about the idea of a Creator. Talk about what is different about the creations they made (their paintings, etc.) and the idea Christians, Jews and Muslims have about God as Creator: they believe God created life. Talk about how special the word 'God' is for Christians (and others) – because they believe he is the Creator. ● Many Christians like to praise the Creator: talk about why they might like to do this. See if children have any ideas about what Christians might say to God in their prayers – thanking God for the world and for life. Show some clips of Christians singing praising songs (e.g. www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/p044h89p) in church and outside. Talk about why they do it, and what they are saying. ● Connect with idea of harvest celebrations as a way Christians thank their Creator. Find out what happens at a harvest service or take part in one, if the timing of this unit is right. Sing some harvest songs (e.g. Out of the Ark music's 'Combined Harvest' songs; Fischy Music; iSINGPOP). Talk about how Christians like to bring food to the service, and then to share it with people who need it. ● Make links between how Christians think God is amazing, and so are careful with how they use God's name; and how they think the world is amazing, so try to treat it well, and all creatures too. Decide as a class if children also think the world is amazing, and whether or not they believe in God. Decide some things that children could do to treat the world and other people well. Try to do those things!

Unit F2: Why is Christmas special for Christians?

Place the figures in a line of value, starting with the figure that the children think is the most important to the least important. Read the story of Christmas from a children's Bible, matching the figures as you read. Redo the value line, including what Christians might say – most would say Jesus is the most important: that God came to Earth as Jesus (the term for this is incarnation). Act out the story. Set up a Bethlehem stable filled with costumes and/or props for the children to re-enact the story. • A parcel arrives in the classroom. Discover the contents with the children: birthday party props such as cake, candles, banners, etc. Talk about children's own experiences of birthdays. Link to Jesus' birthday and Christmas celebrations with the next suggestion ... • Bring out a Christmas box containing traditional Christmas artefacts, such as Nativity scene, cards decorations, Father Christmas, special food, etc. Share some traditional carols with the children and discuss where and why Christians sing carols. Do note with the children that many people enjoy Christmas, but not all do so from a religious point of view. • Talk about Christmas gifts and what the children would like. Connect with the story of the wise men who gave gifts to Jesus. Reinforce the most important gift to Christians would be Jesus. Mime passing a precious gift around a circle; discuss what children think it is. Link to how precious the Bible is to Christians. Christians believe God demonstrated love for all people by sending Jesus to Earth – they say that shows how precious people are to God. • Provide follow-up activities to respond to the story as part of your continuous provision, e.g. playdough, Nativity figures, Christmas cards and songs, etc.

Ask children what they think they are for. ● Tell the story of Palm Sunday. You could act it out, laying palm leaf cut-outs on the floor, etc., helping children to remember the story. Point out that people thought Jesus was going to come as a king and rescue them from the Romans – they wanted to be saved. Show some pictures of Palm Sunday celebrations (search 'Palm Sunday church') and find out about how Christians celebrate it today. ● Look at a palm cross – compare with the palm leaves from Palm Sunday. Compare it with the cross on hot cross buns. Talk about how the cross reminds Christians that the Bible says Jesus died on a cross, and then was buried in a cave tomb. Use a story Bible or video clip (e.g. Channel 4's animated Bible stories) to tell the story. Use images and story cubes to get children to remember what happens in the story. (Note that with young children it is better not to focus too much on the death of Jesus, but to move on to Christian belief in resurrection.) ● Create an Easter garden in the classroom (there are plenty of examples online) asking children what needs to be included – don't forget the cross. Help children to learn that most Christians believe Jesus did not stay dead, but came to life again. That's why Easter is a happy festival for Christians. It is also why eggs are linked to Easter – they are symbols of new life. Connect with the idea of new life by looking at the buds and bulbs growing in your classroom and outside. Why not do an Easter egg hunt and get children to tell each other why eggs are part of Easter celebrations? ● Take photos of children's faces showing how Jesus' followers might feel at different stages of the story, and get them to put the faces alongside a timeline of photos from Palm Sunday to Easter Sunday. Watch the CBeebies 'Let's Celebrate Easter' clips and make a collage cross. ● Talk to someone who celebrates Easter: find out what parts of the celebration are most special to them.

Talk about occasions when things have happened in their lives that made them feel special, from everyday events (a hug from Mum/Dad/carer/friend) and special events (a birthday). ● Talk with the children about 'who we are' in terms of the things we get from our families. Boy or girl? First child or later in the family? Talk about our different skin colours, hair colours and eye colours, and our ethnicities. Talk about the different religions children have heard of. Does anyone know who celebrate Diwali? Eid? Christmas? Explain that some people have a religious identity, but others are non-religious. We can all share one school – and one world! ● Introduce the idea that religions teach that each person is unique and valuable too, for example by considering religious beliefs about God loving each person. Explore the Jewish and Christian ideas that God loves people even from before they are born (Psalm 139), and their names are written on the palm of God's hand (Isaiah 49:16). Children could draw around their hands, write their names on the palm and decorate. Also reflect on Christian beliefs about Jesus believing children to be very special. Tell the story of Jesus wanting to see the children even though the disciples tried stopping them (Mark 10:13–16). Who do we know who makes children feel special? ● Explain how this belief that God loves children is shown in Christianity through infant baptism and dedication. People from other communities have different ways of welcoming new babies. ● Consider signs and symbols used in the welcoming of children into the faith community, e.g. water (pure and clean) and a baptismal candle. Look at photos; handle artefacts (robes, cards, etc.); use role play. ● Talk about how children are welcomed into another faith or belief community, e.g. the Islamic Aqiqah ceremony, whispering of adhan and cutting of hair; compare how non-religious families welcome new babies, e.g. some atheists (people who believe there is no God) might hold a Humanist naming ceremony. ● Consider ways of showing that people are special from other religions, e.g. stories about Hindus celebrating Raksha Bandhan, which celebrates the special bond between brothers and sisters. A sister ties a band (or rakhi) of gold and red threads around the right hand of her brother. ● Celebrate the fact that we are all special. No fingerprints are the same, and neither are our identities, but we all share one classroom – and one world.

Unit F5: Which places are specially valued and why?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Where is a special place for believers to go? What makes this place special? What do we want to know about both religious and non-religious 'special places'?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● talk about somewhere that is special to themselves, saying why ● recognise that some religious people have places which have special meaning for them ● talk about the things that are special and valued in a place of worship ● begin to recognise that for Christians, Muslims or Jews, these special things link to beliefs about God ● get to know and use appropriate words to talk about their thoughts and feelings when visiting a church ● express a personal response to the natural world 	One way of introducing this question is to discuss places that are important to children, for example: places to be happy, to have fun, to be quiet or to feel safe. When do they go to these places and what is it like being there? Use models to help children engage in small-world play, to talk about what happens in a library, hospital, football ground, etc., and why. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Invite visitors to talk about/show pictures of places that are spiritually significant to them and to say why they are special (e.g. special holiday destinations, or a childhood home, or a place where something memorable happened such as a concert, or the local park where they take children to meet together and play. This should build learning towards understanding special places for religious people). Children share and record their own special places in a variety of ways, drawing on all their senses in a way that is meaningful to them. ● Use some pictures (e.g. a beach, a trampoline, a bedroom) to help children talk about why some places are special, what makes them significant and to whom. Talk about when people like to go there and what they like to do there. ● Consider a church building as a special place for Christians and/or a mosque as a special place for Muslims, where they worship God. Look at some pictures of the features (e.g. church: font, cross, candle, Bible; mosque: washing area, prayer hall, prayer mats, minaret). Talk about what makes this a place of worship. Imagine what it would be like to be there. Find out what people do there. Ask children to choose the most interesting picture(s) and collect children's questions about the image(s). You might get them to create a small-world model of something they find in a place of worship, such as a cross or a pulpit. ● Consider a place of worship for members of another faith, e.g. a synagogue or temple. Find out what happens there. Show some pictures of all these different special places and help children to sort them into the right faiths/beliefs: a simple matching exercise using symbols of each faith, and putting some photos under each. ● Visit a local church or other place of worship. Prepare lots of questions to ask; think about which parts of the building make them feel safe, happy, sad and special. Find out which parts are important for Christians/believers and why. ● Create a special place in the inside/outside area or wider school grounds: a space for quiet reflection. Talk about how to use this well so that everyone can enjoy it. ● Go for a nature walk, handle and explore natural objects that inspire awe and wonder; talk about how special our world is, and about looking after it. Put some of their ideas into practice, e.g. planting flowers, recycling, etc. Talk with children about special places: some may be religious places, but others are natural, or remind us of some important idea or experience.

Unit F6: Which stories are specially valued and why?

RE in Key Stage 1: The programme of study

RE in KS1: programme of study

What do pupils get out of RE at this key stage?

Pupils should develop their knowledge and understanding of religions and worldviews, recognising their local, national and global contexts. They should use basic subject-specific vocabulary. They should raise questions and begin to express their own views in response to the material they learn about and in response to questions about their ideas. They will study Christianity and either Judaism, Islam or both (the minimum requirement is two different religions, but flexibility exists, especially where pupils from different religious communities are present in the class).

Aims and outcomes

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

RE teaching and learning increasingly enables pupils to:

A. make sense of a range of religious and non-religious beliefs	B. understand the impact and significance of religious and non-religious beliefs	C. make connections between religious and non-religious beliefs, concepts, practices and ideas studied
---	--	--

End-of-key-stage outcomes:

this RE enables most 7-year-olds at the end of Year 2 to:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • identify the core beliefs and concepts studied and give a simple description of what they mean 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • give examples of how people use stories, texts and teachings to guide their beliefs and actions 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • think, talk and ask questions about whether the ideas they have been studying have something to say to them
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • give examples of how stories show what people believe (e.g. the meaning behind a festival) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • give examples of ways in which believers put their beliefs into action 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • give a good reason for the views they have and the connections they make
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • give clear, simple accounts of what stories and other texts mean to believers

These general outcomes are related to specific content within the key question outlines/units of study.

Progression in knowledge: the value of checking pupils' knowledge, and planning for increasing knowledge and understanding, is built into every unit of the syllabus. Good teaching is not repetitive, but uses, reinforces and expands the knowledge taught to increase understanding. Learning processes such as reminding, recapping, checking facts, identifying misunderstandings and inviting learners to name what they know and what they need to know are a part of all good RE teaching.

Recommended units of study for Key Stage 1, as ‘key questions’

	Our RE investigation titles show the broad area of content. Phrased as questions, they encourage teachers to plan work where children find out for themselves.	The range of religions to be studied is carefully balanced in our planning to ensure that the local and national demands of RE are met. Usually 6–7 hours.	A particular year group for each plan – recommended.
1	What do Christians believe God is like?	Christians	Year 1
2	Why does Christmas matter to Christians? How and why do we celebrate special times?	Christians	Year 1
3	Who is Jewish? What do they believe and how do they live? (Double unit, schools to choose either 3 or 4)	Jewish people (maybe 12 lessons)	Year 1
4	Who is a Muslim? What do they believe and how do they live? (Double unit, schools to choose either 3 or 4)	Muslims (maybe 12 lessons)	Year 1
5	Why does Easter matter to Christians?	Christians	Year 1
6	What makes some places significant? What makes some places sacred to believers?	Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people	Year 1
7	How and why do we celebrate significant times? What makes some celebrations sacred to believers?	Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people	Year 2
8	What can we learn from sacred books and stories?	Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people	Year 2
9	How do we show we care for others? Why does it matter?	Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people	Year 2
10	How do we show we care for the Earth? Why does it matter?	Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people	Year 2
11	Who is an inspiring person? What stories inspire Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people?	Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people	Year 2
12	What is the ‘good news’ Christians believe Jesus brings?	Christians	Year 2

Notes and guidance

- These units of study are planned to be taught over half a term, in about seven hours of tuition. Six key questions can be covered in a year. The first six units are recommended for Year 1, but this is not a requirement. Mixed-age Key Stage 1 classes can use the units in any suitable order.
- There is no set teaching order for these units. The numbering does not imply a teaching sequence. Schools should plan for simple starting points and progression within the key stage.
- Non-religious worldviews may be taught in any of these units alongside the material from Christianity, Islam and Judaism. It is valuable to point out to children often that some people are religious, but not all of us.
- In some cases teachers may wish to write additional units of their own. This is welcome: such units must lead towards the outcomes specified for the end of the key stage, which are the statutory basis for RE.
- All our unit plans use outcomes from the three elements of the RE aim, colour-coded purple for beliefs, red for impact and green for connections.
- If a school decides to do three religions (Jews, Muslims and Christians) across the key stage, then both of the double units can be studied. Two of the thematic units (6–11) should then be left out. Depth of understanding is more important than covering large areas of content in this scheme of work.
- The planning in our syllabus for ages 4–14 reflects both the legal requirement for RE to include the principal religions in the UK, and to focus on local religious demographics. For example, Luton has one of the highest Islamic populations for towns in the UK. Bedford has a high percentage of Sikh children.

Key question 1.1: What do Christians believe God is like? (Key concept: God)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify what a parable is tell the story of the Lost Son from the Bible simply and recognise a link with the Christian idea of God as a forgiving Father give clear, simple accounts of what the story means to Christians Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give at least two examples of a way in which Christians show their belief in God as loving and forgiving (e.g. by saying ‘sorry’, by seeing God as welcoming them back, by forgiving others) give an example of how Christians put their beliefs into practice in worship (e.g. by saying ‘sorry’ to God) Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> think, talk and ask questions about whether they can learn anything from the story for themselves, exploring different ideas give a reason for the ideas they have and the connections they make 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Introduce idea that Christians believe in God; the Bible is the key way of finding out what they think God is like. Ask the children for their own ideas about God and see if they agree with Christian ideas that God is loving, powerful and creative. ‘Where is God?’ is a good question. Tell the story of the Lost Son (Luke 15:1–2, 11–32) using interactive and reflective storytelling techniques. Draw out the forgiveness and love shown by the father. Explain that the story is a ‘parable’ – a special story Jesus told to help people understand ideas. Parables might be harder to understand than some other stories as they have can have hidden messages. Refer back to the key question: ‘What do Christians believe God is like?’ Do pupils have any ideas yet, about what the story says about what Christians believe about God? Discuss: What might Christians understand about what God is like from this story? How might God be like the father? Look at the stories of the Lost Sheep and the Lost Coin, and also in Luke 15 for extra examples. The Parable of the Lost Son teaches that God loves people, even when they go off on their own way. As a class, think of ways that Christians might show how glad they are that God loves them so much, e.g. by singing praising songs, praying saying why they love God, reading about God in the Bible, loving people, forgiving people, caring for people, going to church, praying and talking to God, praying and asking God to help, and being generous. Explore some examples of these, e.g. by talking to some Christians, or matching pictures. Christians often understand the Parable of Lost Son as teaching them that God is loving and forgiving, and will forgive them too, and so forgiving and being forgiven is also important – they should also practise forgiveness. Talk about whether forgiving people is only important for Christians, or for other people too. What makes forgiving easy or hard? Talk about what happens in school if they do something wrong. Share any fresh start/new day practices you might have, and the importance of forgiving pupils in school. Talk about the importance of ‘turning round’ like the lost son or saying ‘sorry’. Talk about other times when forgiveness is given (through role play, if appropriate): at home? At out-of-school clubs? How do parents forgive? Link this last question to God as a forgiving father in the Lost Son. Refer to the question: ‘What do Christians believe God is like?’ How fully can pupils answer this, focusing on understanding of the parable’s meaning? What happens when forgiveness is not given? Get pupils to practise saying ‘I’m very sorry,’ and ‘That’s ok – I forgive you,’ to each other around the class. Talk together: is it good to forgive people? Why/why not? How does it feel if you don’t forgive? Why is it sometimes hard to forgive? Listen to ‘You Can Hold On’ by Fischy Music (there is a free extract on www.fischy.com). Discuss the messages in the song. Write an extra verse to the song or even a class poem focusing on what it is like to forgive or not forgive. Explain Christians often talk about there being four main types of prayer: praise, saying ‘sorry’, saying ‘thank you’ and asking for something. The Parable of the Lost Son might lead Christians to think it is very important to say praise and saying ‘sorry’ prayers. Look through the Lost Son and see if pupils can see what types of prayers the characters might say at different parts of the story. Write some examples of characters’ prayers. Compare with some Christian prayers from today (e.g. the Lord’s Prayer and some examples from Christian websites, such as www.prayerscapes.com/prayers/prayers.html). Refer back to the core question: ‘What do Christians believe God is like?’ The story teaches that, like the father in the story, God is loving and forgiving. Talk to a Christian about how this makes a difference to how they live.

Key question 1.2: Why does Christmas matter to Christians? (Incarnation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> recognise that stories of Jesus' life come from the Gospels give a clear, simple account of the story of Jesus' birth and why Jesus is important for Christians Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give examples of ways in which Christians use the story of the Nativity to guide their beliefs and actions at Christmas Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> think, talk and ask questions about Christmas for people who are Christians and for people who are not decide what they personally have to be thankful for, giving a reason for their ideas 	Introduce this unit by looking for signs that Christmas is coming – signs of winter, decorations, adverts. Ask pupils why they think Christmas is important for Christians. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Tell some familiar stories about a character who appears to be someone he/she is not (e.g. in Beauty and the Beast). Look at a picture of baby Jesus from the Christian tradition. What can pupils tell about him from the picture? Most Christians believe he was very special – not an ordinary baby, but God on Earth! Note that the word 'incarnation' means 'God in the flesh'. Christmas celebrates the incarnation. Talk about getting a bedroom ready for a new baby. What would families do to prepare? Imagine the new baby is 'God come to Earth' – what kind of room do the pupils expect would be suitable for this baby? Who might come and visit? Tell the story of the Nativity from the Gospel of Luke, chapters 1 and 2. You could use a Christmas story trail (e.g. Experience Christmas from Jumping Fish). Set up some stations: Gabriel visits Mary, the journey to Bethlehem, Jesus is born and placed in a manger, angels appear to shepherds, shepherds visit Mary. Pupils hear the story at each station then go back to their places and draw pictures/write sentences to retell it. Of course, many schools dramatise the Nativity story in Christmas plays. Use this practice for learning too. Talk about Jesus' birth in the outhouse/stable – what were conditions like, and who visited? Luke's story talks about Jesus' birth being 'good news'. Talk about who it might be good news for and why, and why Christmas is important for Christians. Look at a selection of Christmas cards: which ones have a clear link to the story in Luke? Ask pupils to explain the links. Either visit a church to find out what will be happening around Christmas, or get a local Christian leader to bring in photos. Find out about the colours the vicar/priest might wear. What other signs will there be about Jesus' birthday and that this is important to Christians? Introduce the word 'advent', which is when Christians prepare for Jesus' arrival. Find out about some Advent traditions (e.g. Advent wreath, candle, calendar; making a crib scene; etc.). Make connections with the kinds of decorations people put up for birthdays or for Diwali with those put up by Christians for Jesus' birthday. What decorations would connect with the story in Luke? Which ones are not connected to the Bible, but to other secular (non-religious) Christmas traditions? Are there themes, such as light, which can be found in different celebrations? People give gifts and say 'thank you' at Christmas. Ask pupils to create the 'thank you' prayers of all the characters in the Nativity story in Luke. Think about all the people pupils would like to thank at Christmas time. Ask pupils to create some of their own 'thank you' statements and give them out. Note: This unit focuses on Luke's Gospel, so that if your school does Christmas in each year group, the other class(es) could use Matthew's account (chapters 1 and 2), including the wise men and gifts, Christmas carols linking to giving and incarnation and ways in which people help and support others at Christmas.

Key question 1.3: Who is Jewish? What do they believe and how do they live?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to be able to achieve some of these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage: Making sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> recognise the words of the Shema as a Jewish prayer retell simply some stories used in Jewish celebrations (e.g. Hanukkah or Pesach) give examples of how the stories used in celebrations (e.g. Shabbat, Pesach) remind Jews about what God is like, talking about beliefs and the Torah Understanding the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give examples of how Jewish people celebrate special times (e.g. Shabbat, Sukkot, Hanukkah, Pesach) make links between Jewish ideas of God found in the stories of the Torah and how people live give an example of how some Jewish people might remember God in different ways (e.g. mezuzah, on Shabbat) 	Remembering <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 'Big reminders'. As a way in, discuss what precious items pupils have in their home – not in terms of money but in terms of being meaningful. Why are they important? Talk about remembering what really matters: how do people make a special time to remember? Find out what special objects Jewish people might have in their home (e.g. a 'through the keyhole' activity, looking at pictures of mezuzah, candlesticks, challah bread, challah board, challah cover, wine goblet, other kosher food, Seder plate, matzah cover, Star of David on a chain, prayer books, hanukiah, kippah). Gather pupils' questions about the objects. Help them make sense of them as they go through the unit – refer back to their questions and help them to understand each item in its context. Using Jewish artefacts can bring a powerful reality to the learning. Introduce Jewish beliefs about God as expressed in the Shema (i.e. God is one, Creator, and cares for all people). (Note that some Jewish people write 'G-d', because they do not want the name of God to be erased or defaced.) Use this as the background to exploring mezuzah, Shabbat and Jewish festivals – how they remind Jews about what God is like as described in the Shema, how God chose them as his people and how festivals help them to remember him. Look at a mezuzah, how it is used and how it has the words of the Shema inside. Find out why many Jews have this in their home. Ask pupils what words they would like to have displayed in their home and why. If this is hard, give some choices. Find out what many Jewish people do in the home on Shabbat, including preparation for Shabbat, candles, blessing the children, wine, challah bread, family meal, rest. Explore how some Jewish people call it the 'day of delight', and celebrate God's creation (God rested on the seventh day). Put together a 3D mind-map by collecting, connecting and labelling pictures of all of the parts of the Shabbat celebrations. Talk about what would be good about times of rest if the rest of life is very busy, and share examples of times of rest and for family in pupils' homes. Festivities and beliefs <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Use a variety of interactive ways of learning about the festivals of Sukkot, Hanukkah and Pesach (Passover), the stories from the Torah and meanings associated with them, including the Jews as God's Chosen People. Find out about the menorah (seven-branched candlestick) and how the nine-branched hanukiah links to the story of Hanukkah; explore how the Seder plate tells the story of Pesach/Passover. Explore how these experiences encourage times of reflection, thanksgiving, praise and remembrance for Jewish people. The festivals often show God as the rescuer; the saviour of his people. Consider the importance and value of celebration and remembrance in pupils' own lives. Experience celebrating in the classroom, with music, food or fun, and talk about how special times can make people happy and thoughtful.

Making connections

- ask some questions about what Jewish people celebrate and why
- talk about what they think is good about reflecting, thanking, praising and remembering for Jewish people
- give a good reason for their ideas about whether any of these things are good for them too

- Make connections with the ways in which Jews celebrate, talk and remember, and talk about why this is so important to them and to others. Draw attention to the idea that Jews believe God rescues people and brings freedom. Jewish people celebrate this, for example at Purim, Hanukkah or Pesach. What do the children think of the idea of 'God the rescuer'?

Sacred words: the Torah

- Ask the children to look at pictures, videos or artefacts connected to the Torah. What makes a Torah scroll special?
- Look at a picture of a Torah scroll in a synagogue, and hear about the ways the stories and words of the Torah are made special in Jewish homes and places of worship.
- Find out what Jewish people do on Shabbat. Why do they have Shabbat? When do you have times of rest and for family in your house? What makes a day very special? On Shabbat, at synagogue, the Torah scrolls are brought out of their special cupboard ('Ark') and read aloud for the people to hear altogether. Experience something like this, enacted in the classroom.
- Consider the importance of these holy words to Jewish people. We may have favourite books or films, but if something is holy, like the Torah, then it might mean more than even our favourites! Do children understand these ideas? 'For about 3,400 years, the Torah scrolls have been holy to Jewish people because the scrolls teach the people about God, the Creator of the world, our rescuer and the one who we serve.' What do children think of these big ideas?

'Sacred words' beyond religions?

- Talk to the children about whether some words are special, but not religious. Do words like peace, love, co-operation and kindness need religion to make them special, or are they important to every human, including those who are not religious? Link this discussion to the work described above.

Bringing the work together

- Children might use play, artefacts, photographs and storytelling to explore questions and express their knowledge about Jewish life, beliefs and identity for themselves.
- You might tell the pupils that there are approximately 250,000 Jewish people in the UK. It is a smaller religious community, but that is still a lot of people!
- Consider with the class: can they spot some connections between Jewish family life and their own family life?
- Talk about what really matters in the family and how it shows (Jewish family and their own family).

Key question 1.4: Who is Muslim? What do they believe and how do they live? (God/tawhid/ibadah/iman) (Double unit)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none">• recognise the words of the Shahadah and that it is very important for Muslims• identify some of the key Muslim beliefs about God found in the Shahadah and the 99 names of Allah, and give a simple description of what some of them mean• give examples of how stories about the Prophet Muhammad show what Muslims believe about him Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none">• give examples of how Muslims use the Shahadah to show what matters to them• give examples of how Muslims use stories about the Prophet to guide their beliefs and actions (e.g. care for creation, fast in Ramadan)• give examples of how Muslims put their beliefs about prayer and about Allah into action (e.g. by daily prayer, by using subhah beads)	Muslims believe there is one God only. Muslims say ‘Allah’ for God <ul style="list-style-type: none">• You could start by talking about prayer. What makes prayer special? Many people believe they are talking to God when they pray. God is invisible, but has the power to hear all the prayers. Ask the children to think up good questions about prayer and about God. Make some lists of questions. Talk about where we might find answers to these questions.• Show pupils the Muslim symbol of a moon and star, and introduce the idea that Muslims believe in Allah as the one true God (‘Allah’ is the word for ‘God’ in Arabic, not a name). In Islam, the central belief that there is only one God is referred to as tawhid.• Iman means belief, and it is expressed in the words of the Shahadah (‘There is no god except Allah, Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah’). Find out about the Shahadah, and how this is the most important belief for Muslims. It is part of Muslims’ daily prayers, and also shouted out as part of the call to prayer (adhan). Its words are incorporated into the adhan, is seen as the best first words for a baby to hear, so it is whispered into babies’ ears soon after birth. Talk about why it is used in these ways, and how it shows what is most important to Muslims. To be a Muslim is to submit willingly to God – to allow Allah to guide them through life.• Muslims believe it is impossible to capture fully what God is like, but they use 99 names for Allah to help them understand Allah better. Explore some of the names and what they mean; look at some of them written in beautiful calligraphy. Ask the pupils to choose one of the names, and to think about what the name means and how this quality might be seen in their life or the lives of others. Respond to the sentence starters: One beautiful name found in the Qur’an for Allah is ... If I was ... I would ... If other people were ... they would ... Ask the pupils to create some calligraphy around a ‘beautiful name’ of Allah; ask them to explain why this characteristic of God might be important to a Muslim. Examples might include: Merciful/Giver of Peace/Creator/Giver of Life/The Protector/The Knower of Secrets/The Majestic/The Care-Taker.• Look at calligraphy and listen to nasheeds that express ideas about God and Muhammad, e.g. calligraphy showing some of the 99 names of Allah; I am a Muslim by Zain Bhikka; share the words of the Shahadah; listen to the adhan. Give pupils a way to respond to their own big questions, e.g. writing a class ‘big questions’ poem or a ‘Where is God?’ poem: can they describe one of the beliefs that Muslims hold about God? Muslims follow the Messenger of God, called Muhammad <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Remind pupils that the Shahadah says Muhammad is God’s messenger (many Muslims say ‘Peace be upon him’ after his name, or write ‘PBUH’). Examine the idea that stories of Muhammad are very important in Islam. They say a lot about what the Prophet said and did, and these stories often teach Muslims an inspiring lesson. Muslims follow Allah (God), but they learn a lot from Muhammad’s example.• Give examples of some stories of Muhammad, e.g. he was considered very wise (Prophet Muhammad and the black stone) and he believed in fairness and justice for all (Bilal, the first muezzin, was a slave to a cruel master. The Prophet’s close companion, Abu Bakr, freed him and made him the first prayer caller of Islam. See www.natre.org.uk/primary/good-learning-in-re-films/). Talk about how these stories might inspire people today.

Make connections

- think, talk about and ask questions about Muslim beliefs and ways of living
- talk about what they think is good for Muslims about prayer, respect, celebration and self-control, giving a good reason for their ideas
- give a good reason for their ideas about whether prayer, respect, celebration and self-control have something to say to them too

- Revisit the Shahadah – it says Muhammad is God’s messenger. Now find out about the message given to Muhammad by exploring the story of the first revelation he received of the Holy Qur’an on the ‘Night of Power’. Find out about how, where, when and why Muslims read the Qur’an, and work out why Muslims treat it as they do (wrapped up and put on a stand, wash your hands before you handle it, learn it, do what it says, etc.). There are many online versions children could hear.
- Tell some stories of the Prophet, and use some good literacy learning activities to make sure the pupils understand them and are thinking for themselves. You might use the BBC’s programmes for 5–7s in the Religions of the World series on Islamic stories: www.bbc.co.uk/education/clips/z9tqb82. These are stories that help to show how Muslims think of God, and how following God shows them ways to behave, e.g. Muhammad and the Cat, or Muhammad and the Crying Camel. Can you arrange for the pupils to talk to Muslims about what they believe about God?

The Five Pillars of Islam: simple starting points

- Introduce the idea of the Five Pillars as examples of ibadah, or worship. Reciting the Shahadah is one Pillar. Another is prayer, salah. Look at how Muslims try to pray regularly (five times a day). Find out what they do and say, and why this is so important to them. What difference does it make to how they live every day? (Note that pupils will learn about all of the Five Pillars in more depth at KS2, so only introduce them at this point.) Again, the BBC’s animations of the Five Pillars from the Religions of the World series will be helpful: www.bbc.co.uk/education/clips/zwytk2p
- Reflect on what lessons there might be from how Muslims live: how do they set a good example to others? Consider whether prayer, respect, celebration and self-control are valuable practices and virtues for all people to develop, not just Muslims.

Prayer beads: Subhah and Subhanallah, bringing the learning together

- Show the class a string of subhah beads. Teach them that the word ‘Subhanallah’ means ‘Glory be to God’. The beads, often 99 in number, are used to praise God, remembering the 99 names. They are passed through the fingers as Muslims pray or recite ‘Glory be to God’ or remember God’s 99 names.
- Explore what the concept of God means for the children themselves. Identify the objects that are most precious to them, or work as powerful reminders of what matters. Why are they precious? How does it show? Ask pupils to each contribute one thought, image or idea about God, drawn or written onto a cardboard ‘bead’ to a classroom display. We all have different thoughts, and we can learn from each other.

You might tell the pupils that the Muslim communities in the UK add up to over three million people. There are about 1,900 mosques. It is the second biggest religion in the UK and in the world (to make sense of the numbers: there are about 30 million Christians according to the 2011 Census, and an estimated 50,000 churches).⁹

Key question 1.5: Why does Easter matter to Christians? (Salvation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> recognise that incarnation and salvation are part of a 'big story' of the Bible tell stories of Holy Week and Easter from the Bible and recognise a link with the idea of salvation (Jesus rescuing people) recognise that Jesus gives instructions about how to behave Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give at least three examples of how Christians show their beliefs about Jesus' death and resurrection in church worship at Easter Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> think, talk and ask questions about whether the story of Easter only has something to say to Christians, or if it has anything to say to pupils about sadness, hope or heaven, exploring different ideas and giving a good reason for their ideas 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> New life in spring: if you are doing this unit in the Spring Term (although this is not compulsory timing), you might introduce it by looking around for examples of the new life that comes in the spring, and get pupils to observe flowers, buds, eggs, lambs and so on. The story for Christians leads to the idea of new life. Introduce the story of Holy Week. (Note that pupils should understand that this story takes place about 33 years after the events of the Nativity, even though pupils have only celebrated Christmas three months earlier!) Set up an Easter labyrinth or outdoor trail for pupils, including: 1) The entry into Jerusalem, e.g. John 12:12–15; 2) Jesus asks his followers to remember him with bread and wine; 3) Jesus' betrayal and arrest at the Mount of Olives, e.g. Luke 22:47–53; 4) Jesus dies on the cross, e.g. Luke 23:26–56; 5) The empty tomb, e.g. Luke 24:1–12; 6) Jesus' appearance to Mary Magdalene and the disciples in John 20:11–23. At each stop on the labyrinth, pupils should hear part of the story and have a chance to discuss and reflect on it, expressing their thoughts, feelings and questions. Make the labyrinth as sensory as possible: for example, have palm leaves to feel (and wave) for the entry into Jerusalem, and vinegar to smell or taste for the crucifixion. Use a variety of active strategies to get pupils to become familiar with the story (e.g. simple role play, freeze-framing, simple diary entries for different characters, story-boarding, putting images in chronological order, retelling events to each other, making a symbol with playdough). Talk about the emotions of Jesus' followers during the week. Match the emotions to different characters at different times (e.g. being angry, sad, excited, worried, scared, surprised, happy, puzzled, overjoyed, etc.) Note the big change from Friday (sad) to Sunday (puzzled and overjoyed). Connect the idea of eggs, new life and the belief in Jesus' resurrection. Look at decorated Easter eggs. Children could draw onto two sides of an egg-shaped piece of card a scene from Good Friday and one from Easter Sunday. Talk about the Christian belief that Jesus rises from death (resurrection) on the Sunday after his death, and how this shows Christians that Jesus has opened up a way for them to have a new life after they die – a life with God in heaven. This is part of the idea of 'salvation' – for Christians, Jesus offers to save them from death. Talk about why this is important for Christians, and about the hope Christians have that heaven is a place without pain or suffering – a place of joy. Find out about how churches celebrate different parts of Holy Week, e.g. Palm Sunday crosses; Good Friday (church services, hot cross buns, Stations of the Cross); Easter Sunday (joyful songs, decorating a cross in church, giving and eating eggs). Connect these practices with the events in the story. Make up some simple actions that help them to remember the story – and that could be used in Christian celebrations. Ask pupils why people find it helpful to believe that there is life in heaven after death. Make a link with the idea that, for Christians, Jesus brings good news (see Unit 1.4). Give pupils time to reflect on the way the story changes from sadness to happiness, or from darkness to light. Give them a chance to paint some dark marks on a page, perhaps listening to some quiet music, then to paint some bright colours, with joyous music accompanying. Ask them to talk about what it might feel like when something good happens after something sad.

Key question 1.6: What makes some places significant? What makes some places sacred to believers?

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. E.g. key stories of Jesus are shown in a church, including clear links to Easter; mosques are used as a place of prayer, and often contain calligraphy; many Jewish symbols are seen in synagogues and in the home. Connect the work to children's own 'special places'. Sacred and holy places: find out! <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Talk about how the words 'sacred' and 'holy' are used; what makes some places and things special, sacred or holy; consider what things and places are special to pupils and their families, and why. Do they have any things that are holy and sacred? Look at photos of different holy buildings and objects found inside them: can pupils work out which objects might go inside which building, and talk about what the objects are for? Match photos to buildings, and some keywords. Talk about why it is important to show respect for other people's precious or sacred belongings (e.g. the importance of having clean hands; treating objects in certain ways or dressing in certain ways). Explore the main features of places of worship in Christianity and at least one other religion, ideally by visiting some places of worship. While visiting, ask questions, handle artefacts, take photos, listen to a story, sing a song, etc. Pupils should explore the unusual things they see, do some drawings of details and collect some keywords. Find out how the place of worship is used and talk to some Christians, Muslims and/or Jewish people about how and why it is important in their lives. Look carefully at objects found and used in a sacred building, drawing them carefully and adding labels, lists and captions. Talk about different objects with other learners. Notice some similarities and differences between places of worship and how they are used, talking about why people go there: to be friendly, to be thoughtful, to find peace, to feel close to God. Symbols and signs: look and learn <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore the meanings of signs, symbols, artefacts and actions and how they help in worship. Church: altar, cross, crucifix, font, lectern, candles and the symbol of light; specific features from different denominations as appropriate: vestments and colours, icons, Stations of the Cross, baptismal pool, pulpit. Synagogue: Ark, Ner Tamid, Torah scroll, tzizit (tassels), tefillin, Tallit (prayer shawl) and kippah (skullcap), hanukiah, bimah. Mosque/masjid: wudu, calligraphy, prayer mat, prayer beads, minbar, mihrab, muezzin. Explore how religious believers sometimes use music to help them in worship, e.g. Christians and Jewish people sing Psalms, hymns and prayers. These may be traditional or contemporary, with varied instruments and voices. Music can be used to praise God, thank God, say 'sorry' and prepare for prayer. Muslims do not use music so freely, but still use the human voice for the prayer call and to recite the Qur'an in beautiful ways. Listen to some songs, prayers or recitations that are used in a holy building, and talk about whether these songs are about peace, friendliness, looking for God, thanking God or thinking about God. How do the songs make people feel? Emotions of worship include feeling excited, calm, peaceful, secure, hopeful, etc. Use the idea of community: a group of people, who look after each other and do things together. Are holy buildings for God or for a community or both? Talk about other community buildings, and what makes religious buildings different from, say, a library, museum or school. Learn and use the word 'sacred', meaning 'a religious kind of special'.

Key question 1.7: How and why do we celebrate significant times? What makes some celebrations sacred to believers?

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

This is a chance to introduce some festivals the children have not already thought about. It is recommended that these come from three different religions and that you spend two or more lessons on each festival. Examples might include those celebrated by some members of the class, Diwali, Holi, Eid-ul-Fitr, Vaisakhi, Guru Nanak’s birthday, Pesach and Harvest. Non-religious celebrations include New Year and – maybe – Red Nose Day! For each festival you choose, plan a range of activities including story, enactment and multi-sensory work <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Talk about the people who celebrate the festival, what time of year it happens and what the best things about it might be. Tell the story of the festival’s origin (festivals always retell an old story of faith!). What does this festival give to your five senses? Look at, touch and handle pictures, videos and artefacts, listen to songs and prayers, smell and taste foods and drinks associated with the festival. Can children remember how all five senses are used in the three festivals they learn about? Which parts do they like the best? Explore the meaning of the festival. Is it about goodness winning over evil? How? Who are the goodies and baddies? What happens in the festival story to bring light or to send evil away? Find out about the symbols in the festival: are there trees/lights/dances/clothes/weather/food/clothing/stars/angels/stones/others? Can children suggest a meaning for some of the symbols and contribute a symbolic leaf/candle/star/other to a classroom display? What values and beliefs does the festival show off? Is it about God as a comforter, presence, rescuer or leader in the community? Are there values of peace, kindness, caring, generosity or remembrance being celebrated? Which ones, and how? Are they similar to others? Consider the importance and value of celebration and remembrance in pupils’ own lives. You might invite them all to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> think about a toy they have had for a long time, and talk about the memories that go with this toy. If the toy could talk, what conversation would they have? What have they ‘been through’ with the toy? ask parents or carers if there is a particular object, gift, place or song that is full of meaning or brings back good memories for the child. Parents and carers are often happy to help with this kind of focus – but be sensitive. Could children bring in the item, or a picture or description of it, to share and talk about? Use these personal remembrances from some children (some might be too personal to share) to focus the understanding of why festivals and all their fun are full of meaning. Have a talk session in which the children think, talk and ask good questions about big days in different religions, talk about links between how people celebrate today and old stories and notice simple similarities between different festivities such as special or sacred food, music, stories, gatherings prayers or gifts. Can children draw and perhaps label five of their favourite things from the festivals they have learned about? Can children contribute to a display? Make three sections to show all the information they have learned about the three festivals studied, and a fourth central section that shows what the festivals share: stories, food, prayers, special clothes, lights, symbols ...

Key question 1.8: What can we learn from sacred books and stories?

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning: Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none">• identify a belief about God linked to what a holy book says• recognise that sacred texts contain stories which are special to many people and should be treated with respect• identify at least three symbols of respect used by members of a religion when they use their holy book Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none">• recognise how different religions express their respect for their scriptures, using symbols and by doing what the scriptures say• give simple examples of ‘hidden messages’ in faith stories, or wise sayings Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none">• talk about what they like in the stories from sacred texts that they hear• think, talk and ask good questions about messages within sacred texts and the values, behaviour and attitudes of people• suggest feelings and reactions of characters at key points in faith stories, and suggest meanings in the stories• ask and suggest answers to questions arising from their learning about holy books	Throughout this unit, make connections with pupils’ prior learning from earlier RE. Examples of holy books: the Jewish Torah, Muslim Qur’an and Christian Bible <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Make a display of books for children to think about, including some favourite and famous books. Look at these together, and talk about why some books are especially important to us. Pupils explore in paired talk the books they like best and why. Are they funny? Good to read more than once? Moving? Exciting? Do they tell great stories? Tell the pupils that different religions often have a special/holy book that they love best of all, and show them either artefacts or pictures to do with the Torah, the Bible and the Qur’an. Note that many people learn from books that are not holy, but just great!• Teach the class that these holy books all have stories, wise words, messages for people from that religion from God and ideas about how to live – rules, if you like – inside them. Find out together what stories the children know that come from holy books: do they remember any stories of Moses, Jesus or the Prophet Muhammad? These people are associated with the holy books in Jewish, Christian and Muslim religions. Can the children consider some simple pieces of ‘wise advice’ from the different books and say what they like about it?• Symbols of respect: teach the children (with artefacts, pictures or videos) that religious people sometimes show their respect for their holy book with some symbols. Examples: a Jewish Torah is handwritten on a scroll, kept in a special place in the synagogue and never touched by hands, but with a pointer called a Yad. A Christian Bible may be read aloud in church. Some churches have the congregation stand as the Gospel is read. Bibles might be leather-bound and gold-leaf decorated. Many Muslims keep the Qur’an wrapped up on a high shelf and never on the floor, opened only with clean hands on a Qur’an stand. But also talk to the pupils about this idea: the best way to respect your holy book is to do what it says, e.g. love, forgive, care, share, be kind, trust in God. A story from each of the holy books to think about <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Notice that the books from these three religions tell us stories about God and about the people who try to follow God. Listen to a story from each of the religions, and think and talk about these questions: What does this story mean to believers? Does this story have some hidden messages? How do the stories and messages in these books help people know how to live their lives?• Learn and use the idea of hidden messages: think together about three examples. Here are three suggestions:<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Learn from a Jewish story that teaches about God looking after his people (e.g. Call of Samuel, 1 Samuel 3; David and Goliath, 1 Samuel 17; Jonah 1–3).○ Learn from a story Jesus told (e.g. The Lost Sheep/Lost Coin, Luke 15) and how to treat each other (e.g. The Good Samaritan, Luke 10).○ Learn from a story from Muslim tradition, e.g. Hagar and Ismail and the Well of ZamZam, where an angel provides a spring of water to save a mother and child when they are thirsty. The story expresses the idea that Allah is a caring rescuer of those in trouble, and answers prayers.• Can the pupils retell stories, suggest feelings and reactions of characters at key points in faith stories, suggest meanings in the stories and make a link to beliefs about God from the stories?

Key question 1.9: How should we care for each other? Why does it matter?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

For Jews and Christians, teachings such as Genesis 1, where humanity is called 'very good' by the Creator. Use the Golden Rule to illustrate a non-religious view of the value of all people. The Golden Rule is found in many religions. Talk about the benefits and responsibilities of friendship and the ways in which people care for others. Talk about characters in books exploring friendship, such as Winnie the Pooh and Piglet or the Rainbow Fish. Explore stories from the Christian Bible about friendship and care for others and how these show ideas of good and bad, right and wrong, e.g. Jesus' special friends (Luke 5:1–11), four friends take the paralysed man to Jesus (Luke 5:17–26), 'The Good Samaritan' (Luke 10:25–37); or the Jewish story of Ruth and Naomi (Ruth 1–4). Ask pupils to describe their friend's special skills, leading to the idea that we all have special skills we can use to benefit others. Are their friends good at talking kindly, making them laugh, having fun, playing for a long time, being happy together ...? Religious communities in service to humanity <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Learn that some religions believe that serving others and supporting the poor are important parts of being a religious believer, e.g. zakah (almsgiving) in Islam and tzedaka (charity) in Judaism. What do children know about charity? Why does it matter to help those who are not as well off or as fortunate as we are? Read stories about how some people or groups have been inspired to care for people because of their religious or ethical beliefs, e.g. Mother Teresa, Dr Barnardo, Sister Frances Dominica, Islamic Relief (a good child-friendly website), the Jewish charity Tzedek, non-religious charities such as WaterAid and Oxfam. Also find out about religious and non-religious people known in the local area. Other religions have charities for helping the poor as well, such as Khalsa Aid (Sikhi) or Sewa International (Hindu). Having studied the teachings of one religion on caring, work together as a group to create an event, e.g. a 'thank you' tea party for some school helpers – make cakes and 'thank you' cards, write invitations and provide cake and drink. Or you could organise a small fundraising event and donate the money to a local charity. Look carefully at some texts from different religious scriptures about the Golden Rule and see if the pupils can suggest times when it has been followed and times when it has not been followed. Talk about how the Golden Rule can make life better for everyone. Ask children to draw a two-part cartoon of what happens when people are selfish, and what happens when people follow the Golden Rule instead. In a circle time or whole-class discussion, identify people in school who make the school a kind and caring place. What do these people do? Can anyone and everyone join in? A display might be made: 'leaves on the tree of kindness'.

Key question 1.10: How should we care for the Earth? Why does it matter?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

Practice 'stop and stare' for 15 or 20 seconds. Try 'eyes closed and listen' for 20 seconds. Try out 'class shout'. What did you look at? What did you hear? Try out 'sniff and smell' with eyes closed too – pupils tell their partner if they could sense a scent. Encourage pupils to look at and think deeply about what they see. Ask them to choose three things that give them pleasure: one that is part of the school building (human-made), one that is outside and living (natural) and one that is a person. Talk together, both on the walk and back in class: were the children pleased with what they saw? Why? Discuss in buzz pairs. What could a person do to show thanks for these things? How did these things get there in the first place? Encourage the asking of big questions. Talk about and encourage questions and ideas about the human-made and natural origins of what they chose. Promote wide-ranging ideas: scientific, imaginative and speculative questions. Some people thank God for the Earth and its beauty – in various ways <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Genesis 1 is the Jewish and Christian story of creation. Tell the story, discussing with each other what it tells Jewish and Christian believers about God and creation (e.g. that God is great, creative, and concerned with creation; that creation is important; that humans are important within it). Talk about ways in which Jews and Christians might treat the world, making connections with the Genesis account (e.g. humans are important but have a role as God's representatives on God's creation; Genesis 2:15 says they are to care for it, as a gardener tends a garden). Find out about the idea of Khalifah in Islam. This means that humans have a responsibility to look after the Earth for God. In English this word can be translated as 'steward'. Discuss this word – a football ground or theatre has a steward – what are their roles and responsibilities? How should humans treat the natural world if they are to be good stewards? Read Psalm 8 (David praises God's creation and how each person is special in it). Can the children each suggest one or two lines for a 'class Psalm' that gives thanks for the beauty of the Earth? Can the most able writers put the lines together into a poem? Investigate ways that people can look after the world and think of good reasons why this is important for everyone, not just religious believers. Teach the class about the Jewish idea of Tikkun Olam (repairing the world) and Tu B'shevat (the festival of the new year for trees). Find out about practices and connect them to the belief that humans care for God's world, on God's behalf. Learning about Harvest thanksgiving: what happens and why? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ask the pupils to make a list of their favourite things from the natural world: view, place, beach, tree, flower, fruit, bird, tame animal, wild animal, kind of weather, season of the year, water. This can be made into a list poem, like the song 'Wonderful World' by Stephen Fischbacher (www.fischy.com). Find out about Harvest festival celebrations – holding a celebration is the best way, but this can be done from simple information books or from videos or web-based sources – try www.request.org.uk. Give pupils six features of a Christian Harvest festival service – a set of cards might work well. Examples include giving food to people in need/singing hymns to praise God/having a thankful heart/getting together for praying and worshipping/noticing all the ways the Earth is generous to humans/making a pretty box of fruit to display in church. Talk about these six things, and make sure children understand them – can they put them in a 'right order'?

Key question 1.11: Who is an inspiring person? What stories inspire Christian, Muslim and/or Jewish people?

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

Pupils could choose 10 words from a list of 20. Think of examples from sport, fiction, movies and local or personal examples. Ask the children to think about religious leaders: they might be people who are admired because they are good followers of God, or for other similar reasons. What might it mean to be a good follower of God? Christianity: Share stories from the life and teachings of Jesus and how these are important to Christians today, e.g. Peter and Andrew – the first disciples (Luke 5:1–11), Zacchaeus – how following Jesus changed his life (Luke 19:1–10). Why do people follow Jesus today? Pupils could select three good reasons from a longer list. Islam: Share stories and teachings from the life of the Prophet Muhammad, and consider why these are important for Muslim people today. The story of the First Revelation of the Qur’an, or of Muhammad and the Black Stone, would be good examples. Judaism: Share stories from the life of Moses, and consider why Moses was a good leader. How do some stories from his life show him as a leader sent by God? Good examples include Moses and the Burning Bush (Exodus 3), leading his people (Exodus 7–14), receiving the Ten Commandments from God (Exodus 20). Local examples <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Investigate local leaders in places of worship, their role in worship, care and the wider community. What are the differences between the great ancient leaders and the local leaders? Remind pupils of the list of heroes we made at the start of the unit. Can they describe a way a Muslim, Jew or a Christian might be inspired by a story from their faith and use religious vocabulary such as Patriarch, Lord or Prophet to describe who inspires Jews, Muslims and Christians? A display idea <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Can pupils each contribute to a class display about people who inspire us? Using key words, pictures, simple sayings from the leaders they study and their own ideas, the class might create a wall display about inspiration. Can they talk about how and why stories of religious leaders are important, talk about their own experiences of leaders who they admire and talk about what can be good and bad about following others? Can some pupils make connections between what they admire in other people and what kind of person they would like to be themselves? What sort of values, qualities or talents would they like to copy?

Key question 1.12: What is the ‘good news’ Christians say Jesus brings? (Gospel)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • tell stories from the Bible and recognise a link with the concept of ‘Gospel’ or ‘good news’ • give clear, simple accounts of what Bible texts (such as the story of Matthew the tax collector) mean to Christians • recognise that Jesus instructs people about how to behave Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • give at least two examples of ways in which Christians follow the teachings studied about forgiveness and peace and bringing good news to the friendless • give at least two examples of how Christians put these beliefs into practice in the Church community and their own lives (for example: charity, confession) Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • think, talk and ask questions about whether Jesus’ ‘good news’ is only good news for Christians, or if there are things for anyone to learn about how to live, giving a good reason for their ideas 	People who change the world <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ask pupils to come up with a class list of 12 people (or professions) to change the world: who would they choose and why? The New Testament describes the 12 people Jesus chose – they were not necessarily the kinds of people pupils might expect. Read, dramatise and illustrate the following story about one of Jesus’ ‘world-changers’: Matthew the tax collector (Matthew 9:9–13). Tax collectors were reviled by the Jewish people because they worked for the occupying Roman forces. Explore how and why Matthew’s life was changed by his encounter with Jesus, ‘friend of the friendless’. (Compare with story of Zacchaeus in Luke 19:1–10; Matthew becomes one of Jesus’ 12 disciples.) These accounts are part of the ‘Gospel’ of Jesus, meaning ‘good news’. What was the ‘good news’ that Jesus brought? Forgiveness, peace, friendship <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Forgiveness: Luke 6:37–38. Jesus teaches his followers that God forgives them, but they need to forgive others too. Talk about who needs forgiveness and how people might feel if they are forgiven. Pupils can talk about real life examples if appropriate. Talk about why forgiveness from God is good news for Christians, and why forgiveness from people is important for all of us. What happens if someone does not forgive, compared with if they do? • Peace: John 14:27 Jesus promises his followers peace. Talk about things that stop us having peace (e.g. worry, illness, conflict, fear). Talk about and try out some ways in which people get peace (music, laughter, being quiet, exercise, saying ‘sorry’ and being forgiven, a hug). How do Christians receive peace from Jesus? If they believe Jesus loves them and forgives them, how does that bring them peace? How is that ‘good news’ for Christians? • Explore some ways in which Christians try to bring Jesus’ ‘good news’ to others. For example, just like Jesus was ‘friend to the friendless’, Christians try to help people in need, e.g. through local food banks and working with the homeless – look at Trinity Church, Cheltenham (trinitycheltenham.com) or St George’s Crypt, Leeds (www.stgeorgescrypt.org.uk/charity). • Find out how Christians say ‘sorry’ to God and receive forgiveness. Sometimes they say ‘sorry’ in public (some examples at bit.ly/2ISR2Vo), sometimes in private (remember the ‘saying sorry’ prayers in Unit 1.1). Sometimes Christians say confession to a priest or vicar. Talk to a Christian to ask about why they say ‘sorry’, and what difference it makes to them, believing that God forgives them. Build on earlier learning about forgiveness as part of Jesus’ ‘good news’ for Christians. • Ask pupils to investigate a church building and find out how it helps Christians remember the ways in which Jesus’ life and teaching offers them ‘good news’: where can Christians find friendship, peace and forgiveness in this place? For example, how is prayer encouraged? (E.g. candles.) Does it feel peaceful? Are there groups who promote friendship in this church? (Note that this leads well into Unit 1.8, which talks about what makes some places sacred to believers.) • Explore the idea that offering friendship to others (especially the friendless), finding ways of being at peace and bringing peace, such as through forgiveness – these are all good things for people, not only Christians. Note that Christians believe they receive these things especially (but not exclusively) through Jesus.

RE in Key Stage 2

The programme of study

RE in Key Stage 2: programme of study

What do pupils get out of RE at this key stage?

Pupils should extend their knowledge and understanding of religions and worldviews, recognising their local, national and global contexts. They should be introduced to an extended range of sources and subject-specific vocabulary. They should be encouraged to be curious and to ask increasingly challenging questions about religion, belief, values and human life. Pupils should learn to express their own ideas in response to the material they engage with, identifying relevant information, selecting examples and giving reasons to support their ideas and views. 7–11s are also getting 'secondary ready' in their RE, although the learning in this key stage is focused on the needs of junior children.

Aims and outcomes

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

RE teaching and learning should enable pupils to:

A. make sense of a range of religious and non-religious beliefs	B. understand the impact and significance of religious and non-religious beliefs	C. make connections between religious and non-religious beliefs, concepts, practices and ideas studied
--	---	---

End of lower Key Stage 2 outcomes

RE should enable pupils to:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify and describe the core beliefs and concepts studied 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> make simple links between stories, teachings and concepts studied and how people live, individually and in communities 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise important questions and suggest answers about how far the beliefs and practices studied might make a difference to how pupils think and live
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear links between texts/sources of authority and the key concepts studied 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> describe how people show their beliefs in how they worship and in the way they live 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> make links between some of the beliefs and practices studied and life in the world today, expressing some ideas of their own clearly
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> offer suggestions about what texts/sources of authority can mean and give examples of what these sources mean to believers 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify some differences in how people put their beliefs into action 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> give good reasons for the views they have and the connections they make

These general outcomes are related to specific content within the unit outlines on pp. 54–65.

End of upper Key Stage 2 outcomes

RE should enable pupils to:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify and explain the core beliefs and concepts studied, using examples from sources of authority in religions 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between what people believe and how they live, individually and in communities 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Make connections between the beliefs and practices studied, evaluating and explaining their importance to different people (e.g. believers and atheists)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> describe examples of ways in which people use texts/sources of authority to make sense of core beliefs and concepts 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> using evidence and examples, show how and why people put their beliefs into action in different ways, e.g. in different communities, denominations or cultures 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> reflect on and articulate lessons people might gain from the beliefs/practices studied, including their own responses, recognising that others may think differently
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> give meanings for texts/sources of authority studied, comparing these ideas with ways in which believers interpret texts/sources of authority 		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> consider and weigh up how ideas studied in this unit relate to their own experiences and experiences of the world today, developing insights of their own and giving good reasons for the views they have and the connections they make

These general outcomes are related to specific content within the unit outlines which follow on pp. 69–80.

Progression in knowledge: the value of checking pupils' knowledge, and planning for increasing knowledge and understanding, is built into every unit of the syllabus. Good teaching is not repetitive, but uses, reinforces and expands the knowledge taught to increase understanding. Learning processes such as reminding, recapping, checking facts, identifying misunderstandings and inviting learners to name what they know and what they need to know are a part of all good RE teaching.

Religions and worldviews

During the key stage, pupils should be taught knowledge, skills and understanding through learning about Christians, Muslims, Hindus and Jews. This is the minimum entitlement. Pupils may also encounter other religions and worldviews (including non-religious worldviews) in thematic units.

Note: there are sufficient questions here for one per half term, assuming 6–8 hours of teaching time per unit. Teachers should plan a balanced programme that enables pupils to build on prior learning and gain a coherent understanding of the religions and beliefs studied, achieving the unit outcomes. This will be demanding, especially in the early days of implementation. Teachers should remember that not all of the suggested content needs to be covered: they should select content sufficient to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

The pages that follow provide sample long-term plans. Additional guidance will be provided for small schools with mixed-age classes.

Additional units

Church of England schools that are teaching Christianity for two-thirds of their RE timetable will find additional units for upper KS2 available in the Understanding Christianity resource pack, including, for example:

- How can following God bring freedom and justice? (People of God)
- What difference does the Resurrection make for Christians? (Salvation)

Judaism for Key Stage 2

Schools wishing to make a systematic study of Judaism in upper Key Stage 2 can use this supplementary unit, and should decide which of the other planned units they leave out.

- What are the main ways being Jewish makes a difference to people's lives in Britain today?

Big RE events

Some schools wish to teach their RE through an occasional RE week, or some RE days. It is important in this approach that appropriate time (45 hours per year) is given to RE. Some of the units have been found particularly appropriate for 'collapsed time' days for RE, including L2.1, L2.6, 2.7, 2.8, U2.3 and U2.9. Any other ways of planning whole-day or 'big' RE are also possible.

Secondary ready?

Junior schools are good at preparing pupils for the transition to secondary school. This syllabus requires challenging and rigorous learning for pupils at KS2, and this enables pupils to be RE-ready for secondary education. At the same time, the SACREs assert that RE in the junior school is an end in itself, enriching, challenging and opening minds for all 7–11s.

Unit L2.1: Where, how and why do people worship?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none">• identify and describe how key actions, features and artefacts help people worship in different religions• explain the meanings of examples of texts that believers use in worship• consider questions about the belief that worship can bring peace, comfort or challenge Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none">• make simple connections between sacred texts and the ways believers worship today• describe how people show devotion in different religions Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none">• raise questions about why believers value worship• express their own ideas about the meaning and value of worship• give good reasons for their views about worship and prayer	What is worship and what do people feel as they worship? <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Introduce the big concept of worship by talking about the one thing we love the most. One definition says that is what we worship. In different religions, worship is an activity expressed in many parts: community, music, prayer, ritual, symbol, shared food – but also service to God and other people. Worship can be private or shared; daily, weekly or occasional.• Ask pupils to think about how and why religious people think it matters to speak and listen to God in different ways of worshipping. For each religion studied (note that it makes sense here to carefully introduce a new religious community such as Hindus or Sikhs): <ul style="list-style-type: none">• choose questions and find answers about worship in the home, in the place of worship and in other settings, e.g. on pilgrimage• identify and describe symbolic actions in the worship of the community which express inner feelings, for example, of love for God, sorrow, aspiration or compassion• use religious vocabulary to identify and suggest meanings for some symbolic objects, actions and sounds found in a church (mandir/mosque/gurdwara/synagogue and say how these help people worship Why do some people choose to go to a place of worship? <ul style="list-style-type: none">• People use places of worship to seek peace, to think deeply, to be part of a community or to seek the presence of God. On a trip to a place of worship, ask groups of pupils to discuss, agree and photograph a peaceful/thoughtful/friendly/close-to-God place within the building. Use four photos for a written recount of the visit and the purposes of the place of worship.• Read and discuss the words of some prayer, devotional songs or liturgies and discuss their meanings. What beliefs lie behind these acts of worship? Can pupils express their own reflections in a prayer or a poem?• Get the pupils to ask – and sort – some thoughtful questions about why worshippers choose to attend a church, mosque, mandir or gurdwara, and then in pairs to suggest some possible answers. What happens when people worship? They consider and discuss how symbolic actions in everyday life express inner feelings and beliefs. They explore the meaning and main features, rituals, symbols and sounds that may be used in worship to express beliefs and feelings, considering similarities and differences in the way believers worship within and between different religions. As always, good RE plans deep learning from worship, but also notes that some non-religious people do not join in with religious worship. Are meditation, kindness and thoughtfulness the non-religious ways of doing something similar? Ask the class for their ideas.

Unit L2.2: Why do some people think that life is like a journey? How and why do some people mark the significant events of life?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify some beliefs about love, commitment and promises in two religious traditions and describe what they mean offer informed suggestions about the meaning and importance of ceremonies of commitment for religious and non-religious people today Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> describe what happens in ceremonies of commitment (e.g. baptism, sacred thread, marriage) and say what these rituals mean make simple links between beliefs about love and commitment and how people in at least two religious traditions live (e.g. through celebrating forgiveness, salvation and freedom at festivals) identify some differences in how people celebrate commitment (e.g. different practices of marriage, Christian baptism) Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise questions and suggest answers about whether it is good for everyone to see life as a journey, and to mark the milestones make links between ideas of love, commitment and promises in religious and non-religious ceremonies give good reasons why they think ceremonies of commitment are or are not valuable today 	Throughout this unit, make connections with pupils' prior learning from earlier in the year. What are the significant milestones on this journey? What other metaphors could be used for life? Consider the value and meaning of ceremonies that mark milestones in life, particularly those associated with growing up and taking responsibility within a faith community. How do these practices show what is important in the lives of those taking these steps? Explore the symbols and rituals used and the promises made; explore what meaning these ceremonies have to the individual, their family and their communities; reflect on the ongoing impact of these commitments: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Christians: Baptists/Pentecostals celebrate 'believers' baptism' or adult baptism. Compare this with Church of England and Roman Catholic celebrations of infant baptism. Roman Catholics celebrate first communion and confession; Church of England and Roman Catholics celebrate confirmation. Hindus: a sacred thread ceremony marks the start of adult life and responsibilities for some Hindus, involving a time of learning, new responsibilities and acceptance of adulthood (there are many varied Hindu rituals for these things, of which the sacred thread ceremony is just one visible example). Jews: Bar/Bat Mitzvah for boys and girls aged 12 or 13 to become 'son/daughter of the Commandments'. Consider whether and how non-religious people (e.g. pupils and families in your school who have no religious background; Humanists) mark these moments. Why are these moments important to people? Compare some different commitments held by believers in different religions – and by the pupils themselves. Think about the symbolism, meaning and value of ceremonies that mark the commitment of a loving relationship between two people: compare wedding ceremonies and marriage commitments in two religious traditions, e.g. Christian and Hindu or Jewish (note: Christian and Jewish marriages were introduced in Unit 1.10, so build on that learning). What happens? What promises are made? Why are they important? What prayers are offered? How do people's religious beliefs show through these ceremonies and commitments? Compare with non-religious, civil wedding ceremonies. Work with the metaphor of life as a journey: what might be the signposts, guidebooks, stopping points or traffic jams? Do religious or spiritual teachings have an impact on believers on life's journey? Create a 'map of life' for a Hindu, Jewish or Christian person, showing what these religions offer to guide people through life's journey. Can anyone learn from another person's 'map of life'? Is a religion like a 'map for life'? Pupils could reflect on their own ideas about the importance of love, commitment, community, belonging and belief. Note: Pupils may naturally bring up the topics of death or afterlife in this unit. If they do, discussions about these topics may be valid as part of pupils' RE in this unit and these discussions should be handled sensitively. However, these topics are not the main focus of this unit as they appear in the upper Key Stage 2 units.

Unit L2.3: What is the 'Trinity' and why is it important for Christians? (God/Incarnation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> recognise what a 'Gospel' is and give an example of the kinds of stories it contains offer suggestions about what texts about baptism and the Trinity mean give examples of what these texts mean to some Christians today Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> describe how Christians show their beliefs about God the Trinity in worship in different ways (in baptism and prayer, for example) and in the way they live Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make links between some Bible texts studied and the idea of God in Christianity, expressing clearly some ideas of their own about what Christians believe God is like 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The symbol of water. A way into this unit would be to explore how and why water is used as a symbol in Christianity: use some water to prompt pupils to think about how and when it can be cleansing, refreshing, life-giving, beautiful, dangerous, still, flowing, reflective, thirst-quenching, fun, etc. Make a link with why water is used in Christian baptisms – because of its many symbolic meanings. Introduce the idea of a 'gospel' – a life story or biography of the life and teaching of Jesus. Tell pupils the story from one of the four Gospels, Matthew 3:13–17. Ask what they think is going on. Ask for suggestions about the meaning of details: the water, the voice, the dove. At the very start of Jesus' public life, it pictures the Trinity: the voice of God announces Jesus as the Son of God, and the Holy Spirit is present in the form of a dove. Christians believe that one important thing the story teaches is that Jesus is not just a good man, but God who has come to Earth to rescue humanity. Ask pupils to list clues they can find in the story for this message. Look carefully at two paintings of the Baptism (for example, by Verrocchio and Daniel Bonnell – see www.artbible.info and search 'baptism'). Discuss similarities and differences between how the different painters show God. Christians believe God is three in one: Father, Son and Holy Spirit. They sometimes describe the Trinity according to their different roles: God the Father and Creator, God the Son and Saviour and God the Holy Spirit as the presence and power of God at work in all life today. Ask pupils to list ways in which these pictures show this belief. Ask the class to make their own pictures of the baptism of Jesus which include symbols for the voice of God and the Holy Spirit. Ask pupils to draft a suggestion for a baptism prayer for a baby in a Christian family today: from their learning about Jesus' baptism, what kinds of words do they think will be in the prayer? Investigate what happens and what prayers are said at Christian baptisms, and compare the official prayers with their suggestions: what did they miss out? (See e.g. bit.ly/1xR5bBc). (Note that baptism has been introduced in Units F4, 1.8 and 1.10, so build on that learning.) Notice where Christian belief in the Trinity (God as three persons in one, Father, Son and Holy Spirit) is shown in the celebrations. Explore the differences between baptising babies and adults. List similarities and differences between the celebrations and make connections with the story of Jesus' baptism. Remind pupils of the symbolism of water: list as many ideas as possible for what water symbolises in baptism. Return to the unit question: What is the 'Trinity' and why is it important for Christians? Ask pupils to express their response using symbols and art. Use a triangle, a triptych or a three-piece Venn diagram and ask pupils to design a work of art for a church called 'Holy Trinity'. (There will be one not too far from you – there are at least eight in Bedfordshire and many hundreds in the UK.) Ask them to write a short piece to explain their artwork and the 'big idea'.

Unit L2.4: What kind of world did Jesus want? (Gospel)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none">• identify texts that come from a Gospel, which tells the story of the life and teaching of Jesus• make clear links between the calling of the first disciples and how Christians today try to follow Jesus and be ‘fishers of people’• suggest ideas and then find out about what Jesus’ actions towards outcasts mean for a Christian Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none">• give examples of how Christians try to show love for all, including how Christian leaders try to follow Jesus’ teaching in different ways Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none">• make links between the importance of love in the Bible stories studied and life in the world today, giving a good reason for their ideas	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Introduce this unit by getting pupils to think about their favourite possessions and what things they spend their time doing on a regular weekend.• Remind pupils that Jesus is revered in Muslim life as the Prophet Isa.• Read the account of Jesus calling his first disciples (Matthew 4:18–22). Note what Jesus asks these people to do. What would they have to give up? How much would pupils be prepared to give up of their weekend routines? Why did these men leave everything to follow Jesus? Role-play this, getting pupils to suggest what the disciples thought and why. What might a ‘fisher of people’ be expected to do? Note that the word ‘gospel’ means ‘good news’ – Jesus must have seemed like good news to them. This unit explores some examples of why people thought he and his message were ‘good news’.• Tell pupils that this story is part of a ‘gospel’, which tells the story of the life and teaching of Jesus. It’s a kind of biography, and the writers made choices about what to include – they don’t tell everything he ever said and did (and not all Christians agree about whether they include the actual words of Jesus). Ask pupils why they think Matthew included this story in his Gospel. Why didn’t Matthew just give a list of qualities Jesus was looking for in a disciple – like a set of entry qualifications?• Look at some other stories that show what kind of world Jesus wanted. E.g. the story of the healing of the leper in Mark 1:40–44. Note how lepers were viewed at the time – as unclean and rejected. Explore why Jesus touched and healed this person, and note Jesus’ practice of showing love to those most vulnerable and often rejected by society). Or the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:25–37). What kind of world did Jesus want? How did he want his followers to behave?• Look for evidence that churches are making the world like the one Jesus wanted: look at local church noticeboards or websites to see what they spend their time doing. Get pupils to reflect on the impact of these actions by weighing up which is more important to Christians: toddler groups or food banks; worship services or caring for the elderly; celebrating a baptism, a wedding or a funeral; reading the Bible or giving to charity, etc. These are all important to Christians, so pupils need to give good reasons, connecting with Jesus’ teaching and example of love for others.• Imagine a day/week in the life of a church leader – what do pupils think will be involved? How much time is spent ‘fishing for people’? How will they show love for God and for their neighbour? Then invite a church leader in to talk about their week.• Find some examples of Christian leaders going beyond the everyday routines to show love for others (e.g. Keith Hebden fasting for 40 days, and some local examples).• Of course, it is not only Christians who want a better world – so do people from other faiths and those with no religious faith. First, ask pupils to describe what kind of world they would like to see and why, and what they would do to bring it about. Second, ask pupils to describe what kind of world they think Jesus wanted (e.g. showing love for all, even the outcasts). Compare these two worlds – similarities and differences. What is good and what is challenging about Jesus’ teaching of love? Talk about what pupils think are the most important things all people can do to make a better world.

Unit L2.5: Why do Christians call the day Jesus died ‘Good Friday’? (Salvation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> recognise the word ‘salvation’, and that Christians believe Jesus came to ‘save’ or ‘rescue’ people, e.g. by showing them how to live offer informed suggestions about what the events of Holy Week mean to Christians give examples of what Christians say about the importance of the events of Holy Week Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make simple links between the Gospel accounts and how Christians mark the Easter events in their communities describe how Christians show their beliefs about Jesus in worship in different ways Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise thoughtful questions and suggest some answers about why Christians call the day Jesus died ‘Good Friday’, giving good reasons for their suggestions 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Remind pupils that Christians believe humans are separated from God because they all sin – that is, they prefer to go their own way rather than God’s. Most Christians say that Jesus came to show people how to live a life of love and obedience – saving or rescuing them by helping them to live God’s way. (Some Christians say Jesus did more – that he actually died to pay the penalty for all people’s sin. This will be explored more in Unit U2.5.) Recap work on Holy Week from Unit 1.5 – what can pupils remember? Get pupils to prepare to write a diary entry for Mary, the mother of Jesus, for three important days in Holy Week: Palm Sunday (entry to Jerusalem: Matthew 21:7–11), Good Friday (Jesus’ death: Luke 23:13–25, 32–48) and Easter Sunday (Jesus is raised to life: Luke 24:1–12). Use active strategies to tell the story of each day, discussing how Mary might be feeling, perhaps through some hot-seating, freeze-framing and role play; explore questions pupils have about the stories and any surprises for the characters and for pupils. Create an emotion graph for Mary for the week. Use these to help pupils write a simple diary for the three days, showing ideas about what happened, how Mary might feel, and why she thought it happened. Would Mary call the day Jesus died ‘Good Friday’? Would she say something different on Sunday? Talk about pupils’ responses and reaction to the story: how did it make them feel? How do they think Christians will feel as they read this account? What would Christians learn from Jesus’ example and teaching in these accounts? Use visits, visitors, church websites and church programme cards to find photos and other information about what different churches do on Palm Sunday, Good Friday and Easter Sunday (e.g. types of service, music, readings, actions and rituals, colours, decorations). Use this BBC clip to explore these ideas more fully: www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/p02mww94. Record how Christians (e.g. Nathan and Lara in the clip) might feel on each Good Friday and Easter Sunday – perhaps compare their emotion graph with Mary’s. Talk about what Christians think about Jesus and the idea of ‘salvation’: one idea is that Christians see Jesus shows them how to live a life that pleases God, a life of love for all – ‘saving’ them from going down the wrong path in life. Design a display to show the importance of each day – linking the texts, various Christian practices and the meanings for Christians. For people at the time, these three parts of the story provoke hope, sadness and joy. Why was there hope as Jesus arrived as King? (E.g. the people were expecting God to rescue them and restore their land.) Why was there sadness? (E.g. their King was killed and everything seemed lost.) Why was there joy? (E.g. Jesus was alive!) You could annotate Mary’s emotion graph with these explanations. Explore why these stories still provoke these emotions in Christians today. Compare with what brings hope, sadness and joy to pupils. Reflect on the key question: Why do Christians call the day Jesus died ‘Good’ Friday? (E.g. they think that Jesus rose from death so Friday was not the end, and he opened up a way to heaven too, which Christians say is good news for all.)

Unit L2.6: How do festivals and family life show what matters to Jewish people? (God/Torah/the People)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

You could revisit the celebration of Shabbat and deepen pupils' understanding in this context. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Use a variety of creative and interactive ways to explore the stories behind Jewish festivals: what they mean, their significance, and how believers express the meanings through symbols, sounds, actions, stories and rituals: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur: Explore Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish new year festival. Consider how Jews examine their deeds from the past year and look to make a fresh start for the next one; find out about the shofar and eating sweet foods, tashlich. Yom Kippur is the 'Day of Atonement': a day of fasting and praying for forgiveness. What happens, and why? Explore the main themes of repentance, deliverance and salvation; consider how for Jews this is both solemn (because of the reality of sin) and joyful (God's readiness to forgive). (Note that some Jewish people write 'G-d', because they wish to respect the name of God and do not want it to be erased or defaced.) Talk about the value in pupils' own lives of reflection, saying 'sorry', being forgiven and making resolutions to improve. Pesach/Passover: Explore the epic story of the Exodus through text, art, film and drama, exploring the relationship between the people and God; find out how this dramatic story is remembered at the festival of Pesach and celebrated in Jewish homes, including the preparation and the Seder meal. Reflect on the important themes of Pesach (e.g. freedom, faithfulness of God, the Jewish people's place as God's Chosen or Favoured People – rescued from slavery to demonstrate this, brought into the Promised Land) and what Pesach means to Jews today. Talk about the ways in which slavery is still present in the world today, and how important freedom is. What role do all of us have in bringing freedom? Learn that after their escape from Egypt, the Jewish people were given the Ten Commandments. Consider the important of the Commandments to the Jewish people at the time, and why they are still important to Jews (and Christians) today. Find out about some of the prayers and blessings that Jewish people say through the day (e.g. the Talmud teaches that Jews should say 'thank you' 100 times a day! The Siddur prayer book contains numerous 'baruch atah Adonai' prayers – 'Blessed are you, King of the Universe'). What are the benefits of expressing gratitude regularly? Note that non-religious people are encouraged to keep 'gratitude journals' today because it makes them happier. Make connections with the practice of gratitude in Jewish living (and other faith traditions). Compare and consider the value of family rituals in pupils' own lives. Make connections with the way Jewish family life and festivals encourage a reflective approach to life and living, and talk about whether there are good opportunities for reflection, remembering past times and looking forward in school life as well.

Unit L2.7: How is faith expressed in Hindu communities and traditions? (Dharma)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

People within the tradition itself often call Hinduism ‘Sanatan Dharma’, which means ‘Eternal Way’ and describes a complete way of life rather than a set of beliefs. Introduce the word dharma. This describes a Hindu’s whole way of life – there is no separation between their religious, social and moral duties. (Note: this is why the Understanding the impact element comes first in this unit.) Find out about how Hindus show their faith within their families. Show pupils objects you might find in a Hindu’s home, and why, e.g. murtis; family shrine; statues and pictures of deities; puja tray including incense, fruit, bells, flowers, candles; some sacred texts such as the Bhagavad Gita; Aum symbols. Find out what they mean, how they are used, when and why. Explore the kinds of things Hindu families would do during the week, e.g. daily puja, blessing food, arti ceremony, singing hymns, reading holy texts, visit the temple, etc. Talk about which objects and actions are most important, and why. What similarities and differences are there with the family values and home rituals of pupils in the class? Explore what Hindus do to show their tradition within their faith communities. Find out what Hindus do together, and why, e.g. visiting the temple/mandir; performing rituals including prayer, praise such as singing hymns/songs (bhajans); offerings before the murtis; sharing and receiving prashad (an apple or sweet) representing the grace of God; looking at Hindu iconography – make links with learning from Unit L2.7 about how the different images show the different characters and attributes of the deities. Find out how Hindus celebrate Diwali in Britain today. Show images of Diwali being celebrated in the UK (e.g. www.leicestermercury.co.uk/live-diwali-day-2016-in-leicester/story-29853142-detail/story.html) and recall the story of Rama and Sita from Unit L2.7. Identify the characters; connect with ideas of Rama as the god Vishnu in human form (avatar); examine the role of Sita; examine the use of light in Hindu celebrations to represent good overcoming bad and Hindus overcoming temptation in their own lives; and the festival as an invitation to Lakshmi, goddess of prosperity and good fortune. Ask pupils to weigh up what matters most at Diwali. Talk about whether Hindus should be given a day off for Diwali in Britain: a social justice issue? Find out about other Hindu celebrations, e.g. Holi, or Navaratri/Durga Puja in Britain (e.g. www.londonpuja.com). There is a BBC clip on Durga Puja in Kolkata here: www.bbc.co.uk/religion/religions/hinduism/holydays/navaratri.shtml). Talk about what good things come from sharing in worship and rituals in family and community. Are there similarities and differences with people in other faith communities pupils have studied already? Are there similarities and differences with people who are not part of a faith community? If possible, invite a Hindu visitor to talk about how they live, including ideas studied above.

Unit L2.8: How is faith expressed in Sikh communities and traditions?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

Find out that Sikh people in the UK number over half a million, and there are over 120 gurdwaras, including three in Bedfordshire. Consider what beliefs, practices and values are significant in the pupils' lives, and consider their experience of community in comparison to Sikh community life. Explain the key beliefs of Sikhs and how these affect the ways Sikhs choose to behave. Explore the importance of the Ten Gurus through stories and teachings. For example, Guru Nanak's calling to preach, the story of the Milk and the Jasmine Flower, Guru Nanak and the Needle. The forming of the Khalsa under Guru Gobind Singh; the collecting together of the first Sikh scriptures, 'Adi Granth' by Guru Arjan; the celebration of Guru Nanak's birthday in the UK. Discuss the importance of sacred words, especially the Guru Granth Sahib for Sikhs – understood as a living Guru. How is it used, treated and learnt from? Recognise and describe how the Guru Granth Sahib may provide inspiration or guidance to a Sikh. Enquire into the importance of the Sikh community, for example, the Khalsa, wearing of the Five Ks, worship in the gurdwara, eating together in the langar and serving others. Consider and investigate the gurdwaras in Bedfordshire and Luton: why are these buildings significant to Sikhs? Should everyone go and have a look? What can be learned? What are the five main things that show Sikh spiritual ideas at a gurdwara? (Might be: the Guru Granth Sahib, signs of respect, a place where everyone can eat for free, a bedroom for the Guru, a community centre.) Evaluate the spiritual significance of Amritsar in the lives of Sikhs. The Golden Temple is a centre and embodiment of Sikh spiritual ideals and a place to visit and be inspired. Look at the work of Pingalwara – to include anyone 'left out': pingalwara.org Give pupils opportunities to make connections with their learning about Sikh life for themselves, so that they can ask and respond to questions (stimulated by a range of source material) about how Sikhs everyday lives are affected by their beliefs. Describe the forms of guidance a Sikh uses and compare them with forms of guidance experienced by pupils. Reflect with pupils on the beliefs, values and practices that are important in their own lives, and how these have an effect on people's lives. Pupils could be invited to express their own views, commitments, beliefs and responsibilities in the light of their learning about Sikhism.

Unit L2.9: How do festivals and worship show what matters to a Muslim? (Ibadah, the Muslim concept of worship)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Remind pupils about the Five Pillars. This unit builds on prior learning by digging a little deeper into prayer, then looking at fasting in Ramadan and the festival of Eid-ul-Fitr. Introduce the meaning of the words 'Islam' and 'Muslim': based on the Arabic root 'slm', which means 'peace'. 'Islam' means 'the peace that comes from being in harmony with God', and 'Muslim' means 'one who willingly submits to God'. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Read Sura 1 (chapter 1) of the Qur'an. What does it tell Muslims about what God is like? Explore how this chapter shows the nature of God in Islam (tawhid – the oneness of God). Look at the five names of God used in the chapter. Think together about salah – prayer five times a day. Build on prior learning: ask pupils why they think Muslims pray. For Muslims, the God revealed in Qur'an in Sura 1 is worth worshipping, submitting to and praying to. Look at what happens in prayer: the preparation and the rak'ah (prayer positions), etc. Use this to help find out about the significance of prayer to Muslims – why it is important to worship God and pray, and what difference it makes to Muslim ways of living; talk about how regular praying might make life easier and/or harder. The BBC series My Life, My Religion: Islam has good video clips. Compare prayer at home with Friday prayer at the mosque. Look at the use of subhah beads as part of prayer. How does prayer show what matters to a Muslim? The mosque/masjid is important within the Muslim communities. Explore how it is a place of prayer, teaching and community support. Another of the Five Pillars is fasting during Ramadan. Find out about the experiences of a Muslim fasting during Ramadan and how Muslims celebrate Eid-ul-Fitr at the end of the fast: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore how Muslims show self-control by fasting during Ramadan and why this is important. What are the benefits for Muslims of fasting, and what can they learn from this experience? Explore the 'Night of Power' (Laylat-ul-Qadr) which is celebrated during the last ten days of Ramadan to mark the giving of the Qur'an. What happens in the community, and why? Explore what happens in a Muslim household for Eid-ul-Fitr, and how this shows that Muslims worship Allah. Why do they celebrate the end of Ramadan? Willing submission to God is central to Islam; ideally Muslims demonstrate this through ibadah (worship). What are the benefits for anyone of living a self-disciplined life? What things might people who are not Muslims stop and reflect on five times a day, and what benefits could these things have? How can pupils live more harmoniously? What steps could the class, school, neighbourhood, country and world take to live in harmony?

Unit L2.10: For Christians, what was the impact of Pentecost? (Kingdom of God)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • make clear links between the story of Pentecost and Christian beliefs about the ‘kingdom of God’ on Earth • offer informed suggestions about what the events of Pentecost in Acts 2 might mean • give examples of what Pentecost means to some Christians now Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • make simple links between the description of Pentecost in Acts 2, the Holy Spirit, the kingdom of God and how Christians live now • describe how Christians show their beliefs about the Holy Spirit in worship Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • make links between ideas about the kingdom of God in the Bible and what people believe about following God today, giving good reasons for their ideas 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Recall learning from Unit L2.5, about belief in Jesus’ death and resurrection. Many Christians say Jesus was raised to new life to bring in a new ‘kingdom’ where God rules in people’s lives. The Bible says that Jesus went to heaven after his resurrection, leaving his disciples behind. They wanted to show everyone that God rules on Earth – but how? Ask pupils what they think happens next. The story says God sent his Holy Spirit to empower the disciples. • Read or tell the story of Pentecost (Acts 2:1–15, 22 and 37–41) using a suitable translation (e.g. International Children’s Bible on www.biblegateway.com). Make it dramatic and exciting (fire, tornadoes, accusations of drunkenness, confusion and 3,000 people changing their lives!) Ask ‘I wonder ...’ questions as you go: Why is the Spirit like a wind? Like a flame? Why do they appear drunk? Why did the people who listened come from 15 different countries? Consider pupils’ responses to the story – their questions, comments, surprises, puzzles. • Give pupils part of some artwork that shows the story (e.g. from www.artbible.info) and ask pupils to sketch the rest of the picture from the story. Compare with the original artwork to see what they included and left out. How have artists expressed the idea of the power of the Holy Spirit and the impact on the disciples and listeners? • In the final part of the chapter, Acts 2:41–47, 3,000 people accept Jesus as king of their lives, and join the ‘kingdom of God’. Ask pupils to use the text to find out what these new followers of Jesus were told to do, what they did and how they felt. • Connect with their learning on God as Trinity (Unit L2.3). Who or what do Christians think the Holy Spirit is? Why do Christians think the Holy Spirit is important now? Christians might say the Spirit of God is like a battery: Christians can’t do God’s work and live in God’s way without the Holy Spirit’s power. Find out more about Christian beliefs about the Holy Spirit (e.g. bit.ly/2mfD7fG) and list the ways in which Christians believe the Holy Spirit helps them. • Since Pentecost, Christians have been trying to make the world look more like the kingdom of God. Ask pupils to describe what it might be like, if the God described by Christians really did rule in everyone’s heart. Talk about why Christians would say God’s rule on Earth is a good thing today. Look at the words of the Lord’s Prayer: what clues does that give to what Christians might believe the kingdom of God should be like? • Pentecost is the Church’s birthday. Ask pupils to suggest ways in which Christians should celebrate this birthday – the giving of the Holy Spirit. List some activities Christians might do and say, where this would be, and why. Think about ways of capturing the excitement of that first Pentecost with sound, movement, colour, and so on. Compare with examples of what churches do. • Consider why quite a few people do not want to have God as ‘king’ in their life. See if pupils can give some reasons, from people being atheists to preferring to make up their own minds about how to live. Consider why Christians believe allowing God to rule in their lives is a good thing, and is a thing which guides and comforts them. Ask pupils to explain what difference they think the giving of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost made to Christians, then and now.

Unit L2.11: What are the deeper meanings of religious festivals? Six aspects of celebration – religious study

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify and describe how festivals from at least three religions are celebrated, using the right words explain examples of texts and stories which lie behind the festivals in terms of the values and beliefs they show consider questions about the belief that God is at work in human life, and stories which show this should be celebrated Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make simple connections between sacred texts and the practice of religious festivals today describe how people show devotion to God and commitment to key values in their festivals identify similarities, differences and generalities in relation to the festivals they study Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise questions about what is worth celebrating and why, suggesting answers of their own with reasons make links between different religions, which all celebrate the triumph of goodness over evil 	Pupils will have studied some religious festivals previously, so the key to this unit is a progression to thinking about the deeper meanings. Examples given here are Diwali, Eid-ul-Fitr, Passover and Vaisakhi, but other examples could be used. Check pupils' prior learning to ensure good progress in the time available. Put the six aspects onto a wheel display, and keep turning it as you look at each festival you have planned to study. Pupils will have come across these festivals in earlier RE but the point here is to see how they work to express deeper meaning. Six aspects of festivals: ancient story/modern community/sacred symbols/rituals/remembrance/celebrating spiritual values <ul style="list-style-type: none"> For each festival studied, connect to pupils' own lives and enable them to think about times in their own lives when pupils remember and celebrate significant events/people and why and how they do this. Consider the meanings of stories behind key religious festivals, looking for the reasons why these stories are worth retelling every year, sometimes for thousands of years, and how this is done in the community. Explore and describe how believers express the meaning of religious festivals through symbols, sounds, actions, stories and rituals (which vary, but may include shared food, expressing devotion in worship in many ways and some 'upside down' moments, when 'normal' behaviour is reversed, for fun and learning). Notice and think about similarities and differences in the ways festival are celebrated, e.g. Diwali within both Sikh and Hindu communities – the festival has the same name, but tells different stories. Are the values the same? Ask: who remembers what? Consider – using 'Philosophy for Children' methods where possible – questions about the deep meaning of the festivals: does light conquer darkness (Diwali)? Is love stronger than death (Easter)? Can God free people from slavery (Pesach)? Does fasting make you a better person? How (Ramadan and Eid-ul-Fitr)? Is it important to commit your life to your religion (Vaisakhi)? Contemporary celebrations in the UK <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Consider questions about the role of festivals in the life of Britain today: are New Years' Day, Valentine's Day and Remembrance Day non-religious festivals for all? Is Comic Relief a bigger festival than Easter? Should everyone be allowed a day off work for their festivals? Is Christmas for Christians or for everyone? Can the real meaning of a festival be preserved, or do the shops and shopping always take over? Is Halloween a 'religious' festival? What about Saint Valentine's Day, or Remembrance Day on 11 November? Consider whether religious festivals or secular festivals have a stronger future. Thinking about deeper meanings: set activities which get the pupils thinking about these questions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Can we identify some differences between religious festivals and other types of celebrations? What are the connections between stories, symbols and beliefs with what happens at Eid, Diwali, Pesach or Vaisakhi? What are the main similarities and differences in the way festivals are celebrated within and between religions? What is worth remembering and celebrating every year? What values are important in each celebration? Creative engagement: can the class create a group display of the festivals they have studied, showing common features? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Use religious vocabulary, symbols, art, music, dance, drama and ICT to express understanding of the meaning of religious festivals for believers, reflecting on what is worth celebrating and remembering in their own life and community, and expressing responses that show their understanding of the values and beliefs at the heart of each festival studied, using a variety of media.

Unit L2.12: How and why do people try to make the world a better place?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none">• identify some beliefs about why the world is not always a good place (e.g. Christian ideas of sin)• make links between religious beliefs and teachings and why people try to live and make the world a better place Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none">• make simple links between teachings about how to live and ways in which people try to make the world a better place (e.g. Tikkun Olam and the charity Tzedek)• describe some examples of how people try to live (e.g. individuals and organisations)• identify some differences in how people put their beliefs into action Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none">• raise questions and suggest answers about why the world is not always a good place, and the best ways of making it better• make links between some commands for living from religious traditions, non-religious worldviews and pupils' own ideas• express their own ideas about the best ways to make the world a better place, making links with religious ideas studied, giving good reasons for their views	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Throughout this unit, make connections with pupils' learning from earlier in the year: what have they already learned about how believers try to live? Why do believers want to follow the commands and teachings of their traditions?• Think about some of the ways in which the world is not such a good place: you could start small and local, and end up big and global, e.g. from upsetting people in the dinner queue through to messing up the environment. Talk about why people are not always as good as they could be. Connect with Units L2.1 and L2.4 which explore the idea for Christians (and Jews) that people prefer to do their own thing rather than obey the Creator (sin) and so keep needing to say 'sorry' and ask for help. Recall that Christians believe God helps them through the Holy Spirit (see Unit L2.1). Muslims also believe people do good and bad deeds and need God's mercy.• Religions suggest that people need help and guidance to live in the right way. Explore teachings which act as guides for living within two religious traditions studied during the year, and a non-religious belief system, e.g. the Ten Commandments (Exodus 20:1–21, Deuteronomy 5:1–22), the Two Commandments of Jesus (Mark 12:28–34) and the 'Golden Rule' (Matthew 7:12). Note that the Golden Rule is important in many traditions, including for Humanists. Work out what people must have been doing if they needed to be given those rules. Do people still behave like that? What difference would it make if people keep these guides for living? How would it make the world a better place?• Explore some ideas and individuals that help inspire people to make the world a better place:<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ The Jewish teaching of Tikkun Olam (mending the world) and tzedaka (charity). Find some examples of Jewish charities that try to make the world better: what do they do, and why? (E.g. Tzedek, Jewish Child's Day.) Find out about the Jewish new year festival for trees (Tu B'shevat) and how that can 'mend the world'.○ The Muslim belief in charity (zakah): find out what it is and how Muslims give charity. Use some examples of charities such as www.Islamic-Relief.org.uk or www.muslimhands.org.uk and find out how and why they help to make the world a better place.• Explore the lives of inspirational Christians (e.g. Desmond Tutu, Martin Luther King Jr, Mother Teresa, etc.). Consider how their religious faith inspired and guided them in their lives, and their contributions to making the world a better place.• Compare the work of Christian Aid and Islamic Relief: can they change the world? Other development charities could be studied: Khalsa Aid is a Sikh charity and Sewa International is a Hindu charity.• Compare non-religious ways of 'being good without God', e.g. what do Humanists use to guide their ways of living? Many use the Golden Rule (which is common across many religions too), using reason and listening to conscience. Look at some inspiring Humanists who fight for justice (e.g. Annie Besant, who worked for women's rights) and why they did this. Look at the work of a secular charity such as Oxfam. How have they made the world a better place?• Enable pupils to reflect on the values of love, forgiveness, honesty, kindness, generosity and service in their own lives and the lives of others, in the light of their studies in RE. How can these values become stronger in our lives and in the world?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Note A: an additional medium-term unit plan is available for those wishing to plan an additional systematic study of Judaism in Year 5 or 6, but schools taking this route should decide which of these 12 plans not to follow.

Note B: this plan provides for six units per year, each taking about 6–7 hours of tuition. Some schools may wish to cover fewer units in greater depth, depending on time available: the balance of religions and the achievement of the age-related outcomes must guide planning in line with the law on RE.

Unit U2.1: What does it mean for Christians to believe that God is holy and loving? (God)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

Ask pupils to put together some words to describe a divine being, a god. If the being they imagine existed, what would this God be like? Collect their ideas from their previous study of religions in RE, naming specific ideas from different traditions where they can. Biblical ideas of God. Explore what Christians believe about God, using a selection of Bible texts, e.g. Psalm 103 (a prayer of King David), Isaiah 6:1–5 (where a prophet has a religious experience) and 1 John 4:7–13 (where one of the followers of Jesus writes a letter about what God is like). Gather all the words and ideas describing what Christians believe about God and compare with pupils' ideas from the first section. Holy God, Loving God. Explore which parts of the texts talk about God being holy and which are about God being loving. Examine the difference between these ideas, coming up with good definitions of both terms. Beliefs in music from Christians. Listen to some Christian worship songs, both traditional and contemporary. Find some that talk about God and look closely to work out how much they emphasise the idea of God's holiness and/or love. (Modern songs can be found here: www.praisecharts.com/songs/ccli-top-100-songs/ and a list of more traditional hymns from the BBC's Songs of Praise here: bbc.in/1PSm10Q). Building to God's glory. Mediaeval Christians built cathedrals 'to the glory of God'. Talk about what kind of God cathedrals suggest the builders had in mind. Investigate how different parts of cathedrals express ideas about God as holy and loving, connecting with the ideas about God learnt earlier in the unit. Get creative. Ask pupils to express creatively the Christian ideas they have learned about God in this unit. They should use symbols, images, signs and colours to represent the qualities and attributes explored. Bear in mind the prohibition on depicting God in Judaism and Islam and teach appropriately for the pupils in your class. Writing poems might be an acceptable alternative for classes with Jewish and Muslim pupils.) Two things that matter to Christians. Set a short writing task where pupils explain why it is important for Christians that the God they believe in and worship is not only holy, and not only loving, but holy and loving. God – maybe not! Many people do not believe in God, so what kinds of guidelines for living might they draw up? Compare with Humanist ideas. Consider whether these guidelines reflect more of a 'holy' or a 'loving' response to humanity, i.e. do they balance justice and mercy? Are they more strict or relaxed, stern or forgiving? Discuss how far it is good that there are strict rules and laws in the UK; and how far it is good that people can be forgiven. Pupils could compare their own experiences: what are the advantages/disadvantages of having strict rules in a school (for example) or of being in a place where forgiveness is offered? What could the world do with more of? These areas are explored more fully in Unit 2.3 on Humanist and Christian values.

Unit U2.2: Creation and science: conflicting or complementary? (Creation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify what type of text some Christians say Genesis 1 is, and its purpose taking account of the context, suggest what Genesis 1 might mean, and compare their ideas with ways in which Christians interpret it, showing awareness of different interpretations Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between Genesis 1 and Christian belief about God as Creator show understanding of why many Christians find science and faith go together Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify key ideas arising from their study of Genesis 1 and comment on how far these are helpful or inspiring, justifying their responses weigh up how far the Genesis 1 creation narrative is in conflict, or is complementary, with a scientific account, giving good reasons for their views 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> As preparation for this unit, revise work on genre with pupils. Give them a range of text types (e.g. newspaper, poem, prayer) and match them to the possible author and audience. Read Genesis 1:1 – 2:3 in creative and interactive ways. Talk about what the story means, how it makes them feel, and any surprising, interesting or puzzling moments. Engage with this first as a story, a narrative. Remind pupils that this text is sacred to three religions, Judaism, Christianity and Islam. In fact, this unit can draw on ideas from any religion alongside those presented here. Suggest to pupils that this text is a detective story or a newspaper report. Ask them to find any evidence for or against these ideas. Ask them to suggest what type of writing/genre it is and why they think that. Think about the context of the story – it’s at least 2,500 years old and was written within an ancient society/culture. Look at The Message translation (bit.ly/2m3tv6M). What clues are there to show that this is a poem? If it is, what effect does that have on the meaning? Note that people (including Christians) disagree about the genre, purpose and meaning of Genesis. Some say it is a literal account (the Universe was created in six days), others that it is more a description of what God and creation are like rather than how creation actually happened. Explore the scientific account of cosmology (the beginning of the Universe) and evolution (the development of living beings). Summarise them in a simplified diagram. Children will have many questions about this – record them all for a ‘community of enquiry’ activity. Work out what difference it makes if someone interprets Genesis literally or poetically, when considering the connection between Genesis and science. (Literal readings lead to conflict with science; poetic readings do not necessarily.) Ask pupils to come up with as many questions as they can about the Genesis text and the beginnings of the Universe and life. Sort them – are some better answered by science and some by the text? Recall work on genre and purpose: which purposes are more likely for Genesis (e.g. for a science textbook or a worship prayer; for worshippers of God or ‘unbelievers’; to explain who God is, why the world is beautiful, who humans are, etc.). Reflect on why some might say science and belief in creation are in conflict or complementary. Find out about Christians who are also scientists (e.g. astrophysicist Jennifer Wiseman – see interview clips at www.faradayschools.com/library/video-gallery/ and bit.ly/1lv1o1G). How do they reconcile their faith with their professional work? Invite some local Christians who are scientists (e.g. teachers, parents, a local vicar, vet, doctor or engineer). How do they make sense of believing in God and doing science? (Note links with Unit U2.11.) Set a homework where pupils silently gaze up at the night sky outdoors for two minutes. Ask them to record their feelings and sensations. Connect responses with the sense of awe Christians describe and their belief in a Creator. Ask pupils to see how far they agree or disagree with the statement: ‘Genesis explores why the Universe and life exists. Science explores how the Universe works the way it does.’ Come up with some questions that science definitely can answer (e.g. to do with properties or laws of nature) and ones it cannot (e.g. to do with questions of personal meaning and value). Look at the key question: ‘Creation and science: conflicting or complementary?’ Ask pupils to give a written response, giving good reasons, and a creative response to the ideas explored. They can use material from Christianity, non-religious ideas and ideas from other religions if they wish.

Unit U2.3: Values: what matters most to Humanists and Christians?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

Rank some of these ideas – which are the worst, and which are less bad? Why? Reflect on the question: why do people do good things and bad things? Are we all a mixture of good and bad? Explore pupils’ answers. Make a link with previous learning on the Christian belief about humans being made in the image of God (Genesis 1:28) and also sinful (the ‘Fall’ in Genesis 3). Why do some Christians think this is a good explanation of why humans are good and bad? Note that not everyone agrees with this idea. Other faith traditions have different explanations. People who are non-religious may just say that people have developed with a mix of good and bad. Teach pupils that Humanists are the modern representatives of a philosophical tradition, dating back to ancient Greek thinkers, which holds that since there is no secure evidence of divine influence in our lives, humans must work out their own way of being good, without reference to any ‘divine being’ or ancient authority: they maintain that people can be ‘good without god’. Note that many pupils may not have heard the term ‘Humanist’ before. Refer to Humanists UK, whose high-quality website is a key resource for this unit of work. Talk about how having a ‘code for living’ might help people to be good: we don’t always keep the rules, but they can still help us to be clear about what we want to do and determined to follow our ‘moral plan’ or ‘path of goodness’. Look at a Humanist ‘code for living’, e.g. Be honest. Use your mind to think for yourself. Tell the truth. Do to other people what you would like them to do to you. How would this help people to behave? What would a Humanist class, school or town look like? Can these moral ideas be out into practice without divine help? Humanists say ‘yes’. Explore the meanings of some big moral concepts, e.g. fairness, freedom, truth, honesty, kindness, peace. What do they look like in everyday life? Give some examples. Christian codes for living can be summed up in Jesus’ two rules: love God and love your neighbour. Explore in detail how Jesus expects his followers to behave through the story of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:25–37) and Jesus’ attitude on the cross (Luke 23:32–35). Jesus talks about actions as fruit. What does he mean? If a person’s intentions are bad, can their actions produce good fruit? Discuss what matters most, e.g. by ranking, sorting and ordering a list of ‘valuable things’: family/friends/Xbox/pets/God/food/being safe/being clever/being beautiful/being good/sport/music/worship/love/honesty/human beings. Get pupils to consider why they hold the values they do, and how these values make a difference to their lives. Consider some direct questions about values: is peace more valuable than money? Is love more important than freedom? Is thinking bad thoughts as bad as acting upon them? Notice and think about the fact that values can clash, and that doing the right thing can be difficult. How do pupils decide for themselves? Consider similarities and differences between Christian and Humanist values. They often share similar values but the beliefs behind them are different – see Unit U2.11 for more. What have pupils learned about what matters most to Humanists and Christians?

Unit U2.4: How and why do some people inspire others? Examples of Hindus, Sikhs, Jewish people and Muslims

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain beliefs about how inspirational people can bring believers closer to God describe examples of texts or quotes which explain what an ideal way of life might be compare about different inspiring leaders from different religions Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between belief about living a good life and the leaders they study give examples of the impact of faith on life explain differences between leaders from different religions Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise questions about the concept of ‘inspirational people’, suggesting good answers explain the importance of role models from different religions express their own response to the inspiring lives they have studied 	In this unit plan, we suggest pupils spend six or more lessons learning about three people who might be inspiring. We have not chosen religious founders or people from many centuries past here. These examples are specific, but other ‘great lives’ could be studied too. Inspiring people: what does it mean? And what does it mean in religion? And who is a non-religious inspiring person? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Pupils consider and ask questions about what makes a person inspirational to others, identifying characteristics of a good role model. We are sometimes inspired by people who are good at one thing – sport, music or cookery, for example. But others are inspiring because they are good in a human and humane sense. Make some lists and distinguish these kinds of inspiration. This unit gives pupils a chance to hear stories of inspiring people from different religions. Teachers might use these examples: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Hindu religion: Pandurang Shastri Athavale (1920–2003) who changed India with campaigns for fairness, justice and love for the Earth. 120 million follow his ideas for justice, fairness and Hindu dharma today. Muslim religion: Malala Yousafzai is an Islamic campaigner for girls’ education and equality. Despite being shot by sexist troops, she went on to become the youngest-ever Nobel Peace Prize winner, and a movie of her life won many prizes. Sikh religion: Bhagat Puran Singh set up Pingalwara, a home for destitute people in Amritsar, inspiring a generation to Sikhi Sewa, after his own life was changed by friendship with a person with profound learning needs. Jewish religion: Rabbi Hugo Gryn, who survived the Holocaust and became a much-loved Jewish leader in the UK. Christian religion: Revd Dr Martin Luther King Jr, a civil rights campaigner in 1950s USA who was shot dead aged 39 after a lifelong struggle against racism. Exploring inspiration: four keys <ul style="list-style-type: none"> As pupils study the actions and words of an inspiring person (and it could be someone local instead of the examples given – John Bunyan maybe?), make sure they link the life story into the beliefs and values of the religion. Four key ways to do this can be seen in these four questions: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Did this person follow the teaching of their scriptures? How? Give three or more examples. Does this person encourage others to follow God in their religion? How? Give three examples. What difference did this person make to others? Is there a movement inspired by their life? What is their ‘legacy’? Did this person sum up their vision in some famous sayings or memorable quotes? What do you think of them? Investigations and enquiries: can the class work in small research teams? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The class might work on group presentations in teams of four or five to investigate one person from religion who is inspiring. Can they retell that person’s life story, or some key incidents from it? Can they give several reasons and examples of what makes this person inspirational? Can they use religious vocabulary to describe aspects of lives and teachings of inspiring leaders and inspirational people? Can they make links and identify similarities and differences between the different people studied? Can they accept that no one is perfect, and that these heroes (to some) may also have a ‘downside’ to their lives? These studies may have a personal impact. Can pupils working alone explain the qualities they admire in their heroes/role models? Can they say why they admire them and how this may influence their own lives? Can they respond to questions raised by the stories from the lives of key religious figures and contemporary followers? Can they make links between what they have learnt about inspirational people and their own behaviour?

Unit U2.5: How do Christians decide how to live? ‘What would Jesus do?’ (Gospel)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify features of Gospel texts (for example, teachings, parable, narrative) taking account of the context, suggest meanings of Gospel texts studied, and compare their own ideas with ways in which Christians interpret biblical texts Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between Gospel texts, Jesus’ ‘good news’ and how Christians live in the Christian community and in their individual lives Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make connections between Christian teachings (e.g. about peace, forgiveness, healing) and the issues, problems and opportunities in the world today, including their own lives articulate their own responses to the issues studied, recognising different points of view 	Examine Jesus’ teaching about the two greatest commandments – to love God and love your neighbour (Matthew 22:36–40). How do these help Christians to decide how to live? Keep these commands in mind as pupils explore the following teachings. Christians might ask ‘What would Jesus do?’ as they encounter issues in life. So, what would Jesus do? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Foundations for living: the wise and foolish builders (Matthew 7:24–27). Why did Matthew record these words? Why did Jesus have to teach them? What were people doing? What did the wise and foolish builders learn? So, what is the message for Jesus’ listeners? Is it the same message for Christians today? Sermon on the Mount: Matthew 5–7. Note that these help Christians to think about ‘what Jesus would do’. Are there any surprising ideas in the passage? Take extracts from the Sermon; ask pupils to suggest what they think they mean. What does Jesus think people are like if he needs to give this sermon? Is he right? Look for clues as to what people at the time thought was the right way to live. In what way was Jesus’ view different? If this is ‘good news’, who is it good news for? Collect the vivid metaphors/similes Jesus uses. Which are the most effective for communicating Jesus’ teachings about loving God and neighbour? A healing miracle: The Centurion’s Servant: Luke 7:1–10. Dramatise this story. For whom does Jesus bring ‘good news’ here? Remember that the Romans were the occupying forces in Israel. Jesus’ ‘good news’ is meant to extend beyond the ‘people of God’. Explore ways in which Christians try to use Jesus’ words as their ‘foundations for living’ <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Prayer: recall the common components of Christian prayer – praise, confession, asking, thanking (see Units 1.1 and 1.4). Find some examples of Christian prayers; what prayers might Christians say on the topics of justice, health, kindness or peace, linking to the Sermon on the Mount? Justice: there are many people who are persecuted and who mourn; look at the work of Christian Aid in trying to bring justice www.christianaid.org.uk/whatwedo/ Illness and healing: e.g. explore the work of www.leprosymission.org.uk and its connection with Jesus’ life and teachings, and find out about the role of the Roman Catholic Church – it runs over 5,000 hospitals, 17,000 dispensaries, 577 leprosy clinics and over 15,000 houses for the elderly and chronically ill (Catholic Herald, bit.ly/1UgFgl1). How do these examples put Jesus’ teachings into practice? Which examples show Jesus’ teaching most clearly? Turning enemies into friends: Jesus talks about turning the other cheek, not using violence. Find out about Christian Peacemaker Teams, who stand between warring forces to stop violence (cpt.org/work). Look at the work of Desmond Tutu and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, or stories from the Forgiveness Project, or Taizé. Can pupils work out what it is that helps people to forgive? Is there anything we can learn from these examples? 100 ways to be generous: look at ways in which people show generosity to those in need, e.g. supporting foodbanks, volunteering for charities. Non-religious people and people of other faiths are also committed to serving others – why do they do it? Which of these examples is the most inspiring to pupils? Are there any practical ways they can help people in need? Should they?

Unit U2.6: What do Christians believe Jesus did to ‘save’ people? (Salvation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> outline the ‘big story’ of the Bible, explaining how incarnation and salvation fit within it explain what Christians mean when they say that Jesus’ death was a sacrifice Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between the Christian belief in Jesus’ death as a sacrifice and how Christians celebrate Holy Communion/the Lord’s Supper show how Christians put their beliefs into practice in different ways Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> weigh up the value and impact of ideas of sacrifice in their own lives and the world today articulate their own responses to the idea of sacrifice, recognising different points of view 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore what happened in Holy Week. All four Gospels describe the events, but Mark 14–15 offers the most succinct account. You could start by giving pairs of pupils some short extracts (e.g. Last Supper, Garden of Gethsemane, Judas’ betrayal and arrest, trial, Peter’s denial, Pilate, crucifixion, death, burial, resurrection), asking them to decide how they would portray this scene in art, or do a freeze frame. Hand out some examples of artwork of these scenes (see jesus-story.net/index.htm) and see what differences there are with their ideas. Talk about why the artists presented the scenes the way they did. How have they communicated the events? Get pupils to order the extracts. Talk about their responses: key moments, feelings, surprises, puzzles? How would they sum up the meaning of the story? Consider who was responsible for Jesus’ death: e.g. the Romans, the crowd, Pilate, the Jewish authorities, God, Jesus himself. Remind pupils of the wider context of the ‘big story’. What difference does this make to their ideas? Many Christians say that Jesus willingly gave his life to repair the damage done between humans and God (see sin and ‘the Fall’, Unit L2.1). Explore the mainstream Christian belief that Jesus’s death was a sacrifice – a price he paid to save people from their sins and bring them back to God. Christians think of this in different ways, e.g. people deserve punishment for their sins, but Jesus was punished in the place of everyone – he was a substitute; Jesus took everyone’s sins as he died, lifting the burden from the believer; Jesus’ example guides the lost back to God. How might Christians respond to the idea that Jesus sacrificed his life for their sakes? Remember that Christians believe Jesus’ death was not the end. Christians remember Jesus’ death and resurrection throughout the year, particularly through the celebration of Holy Communion/the Lord’s Supper. Find out about how different Christian churches celebrate Communion. Talk about what symbols are, and then explore the symbolism of the bread and wine, linking with the Passover celebration (see Unit L2.10) but also connecting with sacrifice – representing Jesus’ body and blood. Ask pupils for some suitable ideas that could be included in a ceremony for Christians to remember the salvation brought by Jesus. Ask pupils to say how the actions, words, music and symbols they have included are appropriate for such an important ceremony, and how they link with Jesus’ life, death and resurrection, and the idea of ‘salvation’. Some Christians follow Jesus’ example even to the point of dying. Talk about what a martyr is and show images of the commemoration of twentieth-century martyrs at Westminster Abbey (bit.ly/2lrOQCP). Find out a bit about these people. Talk about what kinds of things people are prepared to die for. How much are pupils prepared to sacrifice for something they believe in? What would they sacrifice and for what? Find a good cause that would be worth putting some effort into supporting. www.givingwhatwecan.org indicates charities that make a big impact; www.toilettwinning.org is another worthwhile cause. What would your class be prepared to do to bring health and life to others in need? Connect this with a Christian understanding of Jesus’ sacrifice bringing salvation. Ask pupils to draft a short charter for the school, local community or the world (if they can get that far) to explain how far the idea of sacrifice is good and necessary for making the world a better place. They should make links with Christian ideas and Jesus’ teachings. It is perfectly fine for them to say that sacrifice is not good, but they must offer good reasons and alternatives that will make the world a better place!

Unit U2.7: What helps Hindu people as they try to be good? (Karma/dharma/samsara/moksha)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> identify and explain Hindu beliefs, e.g. dharma, karma, samsara and moksha, using technical terms accurately give meanings for the story of the man in the well and explain how it relates to Hindu beliefs about samsara, moksha and dharma Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between Hindu beliefs about dharma, karma, samsara and moksha and ways in which Hindus live connect the four Hindu aims of life and the four stages of life with beliefs about dharma, karma, moksha, etc. give evidence and examples to show how Hindus put their beliefs into practice in different ways Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make connections between Hindu beliefs studied (e.g. karma and dharma), and explain how and why they are important to Hindus reflect on and articulate what impact belief in karma and dharma might have on individuals and the world, recognising different points of view 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Recall learning about Brahman (God, Ultimate Reality) and atman (eternal self) from earlier work in RE. Remember that Hinduism is very diverse, and so there is hardly anything that we can say which starts ‘all Hindus believe ...’ However, the ideas of dharma, karma, samsara and moksha are commonly held, although described in a range of ways. The BBC’s My Life, My Religion: Hinduism is an excellent source for this unit. Teachers will also find the online Heart of Hinduism resource helpful: iskconeducationservices.org/HoH/concepts/103.htm Explore the Hindu story from the Mahabharata, the ‘man in the well’ (www.indianetzone.com/50/man_well.htm) in a creative way. This presents one picture of the way the world is for a Hindu worldview: the atman is trapped in the physical body and wants to escape the terrible dangers, but the human is distracted by the trivial pleasures instead of trying to get out. This is a warning to Hindus that they should pay attention to finding the way to escape the cycle of life, death and rebirth. Use this to set the scene for learning about karma, samsara and dharma below. Explore Hindu idea of karma – the law of cause and effect, and how actions bring good or bad karma. Connect this with Hindu beliefs or ideas about samsara – the cycle of life death and rebirth travelled by the atman through various reincarnations, to achieve moksha (release from the cycle of samsara, and – for many Hindus – the goal of union with Brahman (for some)). Find out how and why the game of ‘snakes and ladders’ links with Hindu ideas of karma and moksha. Reflect on how these beliefs offer reasons why a Hindu might try to be good – to gain good karma and a better reincarnation, and ultimately release from samsara. Uses resources from within the Hindu community if possible, e.g. Heart of Hinduism (see link above). Explore Hindu ideas about the four aims of life (punusharthas): dharma – religious or moral duty; artha – economic development, providing for family and society by honest means; kama – regulated enjoyment of the pleasures and beauty of life; moksha – liberation from the cycle of birth and rebirth/reincarnation. Compare these with pupils’ goals for living. Connect with the idea of karma – pursuing these aims contribute to good karma; doing things selfishly or in ways that harm other living things brings bad karma. Hindus might describe life as a journey towards moksha. Hindu life is also part of a journey through different stages (ashramas), each with different duties. Look at the different dharma/duties Hindus have at the four ashramas: student, householder, retired person, renouncer. How does the dharma for these stages help Hindus to be good? Compare with the duties pupils have now, and ones they think they will have at later stages of life. Consider some Hindu values and how they make a difference to Hindu life, individually and in community, e.g. ahimsa (non-violence) and satya (truthfulness). Connect these with ideas of atman/karma (all living beings have an eternal self/atman and so deserve to be treated well; learning the truth and speaking truthfully are ways of worshipping God). Find out about some ways in which Hindus make a difference in the worldwide community. How does a Hindu way of life guide them in how they live? E.g. Mahatma Gandhi, Pandurang Shastri Athavale. Consider the value of the idea of karma and reincarnation: what difference would it make to the way people live if everything they did carries good or bad karma, affecting future rebirths? If no one escapes from this law of justice, how does that change how we view injustice now? Talk about how different people respond to this idea, including non-religious responses and the ideas of pupils themselves. What difference would it make to how they live? Why?

Unit U2.8: How is faith expressed in Islam? (Tawhid/iman/ibadah)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.

Ask pupils how many Muslims they think there are in Britain and in Bedfordshire. This unit explores what it is like to be one of these Muslims. Talk about the fact that there are two main Muslim groups: Sunni and Shi'a. Give an overview of the Five Pillars as expressions of ibadah (worship and belief in action). Deepen pupils' understanding of the ones to which they have already been introduced: Shahadah (belief in one God and the Prophet of God); salat (daily prayer); sawm (fasting); and zakah (almsgiving). Introduce Hajj (pilgrimage): what happens, where, when, why? Introduce the idea of 'God-consciousness', or taqwa in Arabic. It can also be translated as 'mindfulness'. Talk about the Five Pillars in terms of being conscious of God, or mindful of God, moment by moment, daily, annually and over a lifetime. Think about and discuss the value and challenge for Muslims of following the Five Pillars, and how they might make a difference to individual Muslims and to the Muslim community (Ummah). Investigate how they are practised by Muslims in Bedfordshire/Britain today. Consider what beliefs, practices and values are significant in pupils' lives. Find out about the festival of Eid-ul-Adha, at the end of Hajj, celebrated to recall Ibrahim's faith being tested when he was asked to sacrifice Isma'il. Consider the significance of the Holy Qur'an for Muslims as the final revealed word of God, including how it was revealed to the Prophet Muhammad by the Angel Jibril, and examples of key stories of the Prophets (e.g. Ibrahim, Musa, Isa, Prophet Muhammad), noting how some of these stories are shared with Christian and Jewish people (e.g. Ibrahim/Abraham, Musa/Moses, Isa/Jesus). Examples of stories and teachings could include Sura 1, 'The Opening' and Sura 17, the Prophet's Night Journey). Look at how they are used, treated and learnt. Find out about people who memorise the Qur'an and why (hafiz, hafiza). Find out about the difference between the authority of the Qur'an and other forms of guidance for Muslims: Sunnah (model practices, customs and traditions of the Prophet Muhammad) and Hadith (sayings and actions of the Prophet Muhammad). Reflect on what forms of guidance pupils turn to when they need guidance or advice, and examine ways in which these are different from the Qur'an for Muslims. Explore how Muslims put the words of the Qur'an and the words and actions of the Prophet Muhammad into practice, and what difference they make to the lives of Muslims, e.g. giving of sadaqah (voluntary charity); respect for guests, teachers, elders and the wise; refraining from gossip; being truthful and trustworthy. Investigate the design and purpose of a mosque/masjid and explain how and why the architecture, artwork and activities (e.g. preparing for prayer) reflect Muslim beliefs. *Note: many Muslims say the words 'Peace be upon him' after saying the name of the Prophet Muhammad. This is sometimes abbreviated to 'PBUH' when written down.

U2.9: Justice and poverty: does faith make a difference?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain beliefs and teachings about justice from Christian and Muslim texts compare their ideas about justice and fairness with those studied in Islam and Christianity Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between belief about justice from sacred texts and the actions of a modern religiously based charity describe clearly examples of the impact of charitable work in the world today explain some differences between the two charities Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise questions about charity, justice and the impact of religion and beliefs, suggesting answers explain the importance of the idea that God loves justice and is just to Muslims and Christians express their own ideas about justice 	Discuss what, within the experience of the pupils, is fair and unfair, in terms of wealth and poverty. Draw meanings from stories and teachings from Islam and Christianity (or other religions and beliefs) which highlight justice and fairness for all people. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> E.g. Christian teachings of Jesus and Paul on values and justice and their meaning for Christians today. The Widow's Mite (Mark 12:41–44), The Rich Fool (Luke 12:16–21), Two Great Commandments (Mark 12:28–34), All Equal in Christ (Galatians 3:28), The Fruit of the Holy Spirit (Galatians 5:22). E.g. Muslim teachings in the Qur'an and Hadith: Muhammad overcomes hatred with kindness: the woman at the gates of Makkah; the practice of the Third Pillar of Islam – zakah – giving 2.5% of one's wealth to those in need. Qur'anic quotes: 'And be steadfast in prayer and regular in charity. And whatever good you send out before you, you shall find it with Allah: for Allah sees all that you do' (Qur'an 2.110); 'So establish regular prayer and give regular charity; and obey the Apostle; that you may receive mercy.' (Qur'an 24.56); 'For those who give in charity, men and women, and loan to Allah a beautiful loan, it shall be increased manifold (to their credit) and they shall have (besides) a liberal reward' (Qur'an 57.18). Islam and Christianity are among many religions which encourage charitable giving as a way of compensating for the unfairness which seems to surround us. Accordingly, many of our major charities have religious origins, e.g. Christian Aid and Islamic Relief. Many others do not, e.g. Save the Children and Oxfam. Donors to any of these may or may not be motivated by religion. Investigate the work of two charities, one religious, one not, for example, www.cinnamonnetwork.co.uk and practicalaction.org. Consider the ways they encourage people to give, and the aims and methods of the organisations' work in affected communities. Can they see any differences between faith-based and other kinds of appeal? Is faith likely to make a difference to people's reasons for donating, or their willingness to donate? Give pairs of pupils a series of questions to find answers to – the websites of these charities are very helpful. How do they interpret and follow the principles of their worldview? What is the impact of the charities' work? What money do they raise? How do they spend it? What difference do these two charities make? How are they changing the world? Pairs of pupils might examine a particular project from the charity in an area such as medical, educational, agricultural, emergency relief or conflict reduction. Many charities work in all these areas. Make sure that work focuses on the beliefs, values and convictions that motivate the charity as well as its practical projects. The Charities Aid Foundation publishes a report showing total donations in the UK, at around £10 billion annually, and analyses how this is distributed. Religious organisations are the largest single category, at 20% of the total. How should this figure be interpreted? All our major religious traditions originated in a world where inequality was taken as a natural part of life, and charitable giving was a way of making up for any sense of unfairness. Have modern societies found other ways of addressing the same problems? For example, there has recently been huge growth in food banks, because of the increasing number of families on very low incomes. Are these to be welcomed as an opportunity to exercise our generosity, or are there better ways of approaching the issue? Set a final task that enables pupils to make connections between the teachings of St Paul and Jesus and the work of Christians today, between the teachings of Islam and the work of Islamic Relief/Muslim Aid today, and similarly between these and secular ways of addressing the same issues, asking and responding to questions about fairness and justice in the world. Why? Return to the key question: 'Does faith make a difference?' Discuss with the class, drawing on their wider knowledge and understanding, whether faith seems to make a difference to practical, community-based work in the fight against injustice.

U2.10: What will make our community a more respectful place? (Many different religions and worldviews)

This local unit focuses on the need for respect between those who believe differently in modern Britain.

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain beliefs about the value of religious and cultural diversity in their local town/community describe examples of texts which explain why honouring all humans is important in, for example, both Christianity and Islam compare their ideas about respect for all with those studied Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between belief in the 'Golden Rule' and the needs of a mixed community give examples of the impact of interfaith work in their community Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> raise questions about how we can be a more tolerant and respectful community, suggesting answers explain the importance of tolerance, respect and liberty for all in making a community that is harmonious give good reasons for their views about harmony in our communities 	Religion, demographics and co-operation <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Play a simple guessing game about the statistics of religion in Bedfordshire and Luton, in Britain and in the world to get a sense of 'how religious the world is' today. What surprises the pupils? What do they learn from the statistics? Link to Geography. This plan provides for pupils to learn from diversity through visiting places of worship from different faiths. Find out about local examples of different religious communities in your area, looking at changes over time and differences between them, e.g. food, buildings, community work. Why are there now 20+ mosques/Islamic centres in Luton, and maybe 40 in Bedfordshire (and nearly 2,000 in the UK), where 50 years ago there were none? Why are there hundreds of churches in Bedfordshire, some of them over 500 years old and some brand new? Compare your community with another more diverse community. Identify similarities and differences. Explore with pupils the tensions that are identified between religious and non-religious communities. Develop understanding of examples of community harmony, reflecting that this does not mean 'being all the same' but does mean 'accepting our differences'. Find out about examples of interfaith work in your area or another nearby, e.g. The Inter Faith Network or the Luton Peace Walk. Do people from different religions co-operate well in our area? How? (The RE syllabus itself is an example of an interfaith shared endeavour). Have pupils worked on shared social justice projects, or are there shared celebrations, e.g. an interfaith week? Consider teaching from different religions about dealing with differences, e.g. responses of respect, tolerance, mutual learning and recognising each other's spirituality rather than mere argument or even conflict. Do recognise that conflict and tension are a part of the picture too. Why? What can be done? Study different examples of the Golden Rule from many religions. Weigh up examples of how people have dealt well with difference or conflict. Give pupils some scenarios to think about in which people choose conflict or acceptance, hostility or tolerance, enabling pupils to show an increasing understanding of the richness of religious diversity of Great Britain and in our own locality. Making recommendations: a charter for a more tolerant and respectful community <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Help pupils to describe similarities and differences between living in a plural community and living in a community where almost everyone has similar beliefs and customs, noticing that our communities vary from towns like Luton and Bedford to villages. Make links between how we treat each other and the idea of a respectful community, and introduce the task of the 'charter for respect'. Can pupils understand, select, develop and justify up to ten ideas that will help a community be more respectful? Ideas might include: equality for different religions/more RE for everyone/the chance to visit different religious buildings without joining them/celebrations and festivals that are for all religions at once/strong support for people to 'be themselves'/getting your roots down into your own religion so you are not scared of other religions. There are many more ... Pupils might tackle this task: Imagine you are the speechwriter for someone who wants to be elected as the mayor in your community, and s/he is giving a speech to members of all the main religions. Write the speech.

Unit U2.11: Why do some people believe in God and some people not?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> define the terms ‘theist’, ‘atheist’ and ‘agnostic’ and give examples of statements that reflect these beliefs identify and explain what religious and non-religious people believe about God, saying where they get their ideas from give examples of reasons why people do or do not believe in God Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between what people believe about God and the impact of this belief on how they live give evidence and examples to show how Christians sometimes disagree about what God is like (e.g. some differences in interpreting Genesis) Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> reflect on and articulate some ways in which believing in God is valuable in the lives of believers, and ways it can be challenging consider and weigh up different views on theism, agnosticism and atheism, expressing insights of their own about why people believe in God or not make connections between belief and behaviour in their own lives, in the light of their learning 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> During this unit, take the opportunity to find out what pupils already know from previous study, and build on that prior learning. Their understanding of what God is like as far as Christians, Jews and Muslims are concerned should be reasonably developed by now. Find out about how many people in the world and in your local area believe in God – using global statistics and the 2011 UK Census. Ask pupils why they think so many people believe in God. Collect these reasons. Find out about how many do not believe. Learn the words ‘theist’ (believes in God), agnostic (cannot say if God exists or not) and atheist (believes there is no god). To explore the key question, ask pupils to raise questions about the existence and nature of God. Focus on Christian ideas of God, in order to make this more manageable. Start by clarifying what Christians believe God is like and where they get their ideas from. Revisit some of the names of God and metaphors for God in the Bible (e.g. God as Father, Spirit, Son, eternal, almighty, holy, shepherd, rock, fortress, light, mother). If this God exists, what difference would ‘he’ make to the way people live? Investigate a range of viewpoints on the question, from believers to atheists. Compare the sources of authority of Christians (e.g. Bible, Church teachings, religious leaders, individual conscience) with some non-religious sources (e.g. individual conscience, some philosophers and other thinkers). Explore some reasons why people do or do not believe in God. Consider some of the main reasons. These include: family background – many people believe (or don’t believe) because of their home background; religious experience – many people say they have experienced a sense of ‘the presence of God’ or had prayer answered; many would argue that the Universe, the Earth and life are extraordinary and are best explained as the result of an all-powerful Creator. Many people who do not believe in God point to the existence of terrible suffering as a key reason. Many atheists argue that religions are all created by humans. Some argue that there is no need to use a Creator to explain the existence of the Universe and life; they argue that science provides reliable evidence and explanations, and that religion does not. Recall and build on learning from Unit U2.2 to explore how and why Christians still believe in God in an age of science. Many Christians would say that they want to find out more about the world and how it works – doing science is part of their response to belief in God as Creator. Find out about Christians who are also scientists (e.g. Jennifer Wiseman, John Polkinghorne, Denis Alexander, Russell Stannard and local examples). Invite some Christians, agnostics and atheists in to answer questions about why they do or do not believe in God. Explore what impact believing in God might make on the way someone lives his or her everyday life. Is faith in God restricting or liberating? How do people respond to God? E.g. from personal responses in private prayer, study, worship; communal responses of worship and striving for justice. Talk about and reflect upon the possible benefits and challenges of believing or not believing in God in Britain today. Get pupils to reflect upon their own views and how they view people with different beliefs than their own.

Unit U2.12: How far does faith enable resilience? (Christians, Muslims, Hindus, Jewish people, non-religious people, others)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes selected from these):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable pupils to achieve some of these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> describe at least three examples of ways in which religions guide people in how to respond to good and hard times in life identify beliefs about life after death in at least two religious traditions, comparing and explaining similarities and differences Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> make clear connections between what people believe about God and how they respond to challenges in life (e.g. suffering, bereavement) give examples of ways in which beliefs about resurrection/judgement/heaven/karma/reincarnation make a difference to how someone lives Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> interpret a range of artistic expressions of the afterlife, offering and explaining different ways of understanding these offer a reasoned response to the unit question, with evidence and examples, expressing insights of their own 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Show age-appropriate stimuli referencing suffering or disasters on the news currently. Ask the class to consider: can any good ever be said to come out of suffering? Does suffering make some people stronger or more loving? Discuss a range of answers. Explore ways in which religions help people to live, even when times are tough, e.g. through prayer, giving a sense of purpose, a guide to deciding what is right and wrong, membership of a community who care for each other, opportunities to celebrate together. Ask some religious believers to explain how their faith has helped them in difficult times, and how it encourages them to enjoy life too. Use the story of Job in the Jewish and Christian scriptures (he is also a Prophet of Islam). Material from, for example, the Bahá'í faith could be added to the usual religions studied. Islam teaches that life is a test and humans can use hard times as an opportunity for growth. Make a list of the ways a person might grow through suffering. Make links to the initial conversation above. Can people become strong, more courageous or more merciful because of hard times? Recap the idea of God-consciousness in Islam (Unit U2.8 above). If God-consciousness can be understood as 'mindfulness', discuss how far faith offers mind-growth in the face of suffering. Introduce the idea that most religious traditions teach about some form of life after death, which can bring comfort to people as they face suffering, or if they are bereaved. Does believing in heaven or paradise make it more possible to bear suffering on Earth? Learn some key concepts about life after death, comparing beliefs and sources of authority, and exploring whether these beliefs make a difference to people when facing death and bereavement. Christianity: Bible teaching on resurrection of the body, judgment by God, salvation through Jesus, heaven. Hinduism: the law of karma affects the reincarnation of the individual atman, pinning it to samsara (the cycle of life death and rebirth) until it can escape (moksha) and be absorbed back to Brahman. For most Hindus, moksha refers to merging with the Brahman, while others according to their denomination may prefer a different 'destination'. Islam: find out about the communal nature of prayer in Islam: jammah. Prayer is done together. Discuss how communal prayer could strengthen community spirit, and how this could be of benefit in times of hardship or struggle. One secular/non-religious view about what happens after death, e.g. Humanism. Many Humanists believe that what happens after death is nothing: we might continue in people's memories and through our achievements, but death is final. Compare different funeral ceremonies that mark death/passing away, noting similarities and differences, how these express different beliefs and how they might be important to the living. Read and respond to prayers, liturgies, meditation texts and songs/hymns used when someone has died, and think about the questions and beliefs they address. Look at examples of 'art of heaven' in which religious believers imagine the afterlife; explore how these artworks reflect Christian, Hindu and non-religious beliefs. Get pupils to respond with artwork of their own. How do ideas of life after death help people in difficult times? Respond to the question, 'How far does faith enable resilience?' Encourage pupils to think more widely than religious faith. How could faith in justice, community or love enable a person to reach out to others and grow through suffering?

RE in Key Stage 3

The programme of study

'Seeking the truth is like a spiral' by Alicia, 12

RE in KS3: programme of study

What do pupils get out of RE at this key stage?

Students should extend and deepen their knowledge and understanding of a range of religions and beliefs, recognising their local, national and global context. Building on their prior learning, they learn to appreciate religions and beliefs in systematic ways. They should draw on a wide range of subject-specific language confidently and flexibly, learning to use the concepts of religious study to describe the nature of religion. They should understand how beliefs influence the values and lives of individuals and groups, and how religions and beliefs have an impact on wider current affairs. They should be able to appraise the practices and beliefs they study with increasing discernment based on analysis, interpretation and evaluation, developing their capacity to articulate well-reasoned positions.

Aims and outcomes

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

RE teaching and learning should enable pupils to:

A. make sense of a range of religious and non-religious beliefs	B. understand the impact and significance of religious and non-religious beliefs	C. make connections between religious and non-religious beliefs, concepts, practices and ideas studied
---	--	--

End-of-key-stage outcomes

More specifically, students should be taught to:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> give reasoned explanations of how and why the selected core beliefs and concepts are important within the religions studied 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> give reasons and examples to account for how and why people put their beliefs into practice in different ways, individually and in various communities (e.g. denominations, times or cultures; faith or other communities) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> give coherent accounts of the significance and implications of the beliefs and practices studied in the world today
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> taking account of context(s), explain how and why people use and make sense of texts/sources of authority differently 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how beliefs guide people in making moral and religious decisions, applying these ideas to situations in the world today 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> evaluate how far the beliefs and practices studied help pupils themselves and others to make sense of the world
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> in the light of their learning, explain how appropriate different interpretations of texts/sources of authority are, including their own ideas 		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> respond to the challenges raised by questions of belief and practice, both in the world today and in their own lives, offering reasons and justifications for their responses

Religions and worldviews: planning for breadth, balance and depth in RE

During the key stage, pupils should be taught knowledge, skills and understanding through learning about Christians, Muslims, Sikhs and Buddhists. This implements the plan of the whole agreed syllabus for 5–14 RE to include the six principal religions in the UK, and reflects the place of Christianity in the law about RE. Pupils should also encounter non-religious worldviews such as Humanism, and may encounter other religions and worldviews in thematic units where appropriate.

These 22 units are based on key questions which have been planned for schools to use or adapt. Schools should select a minimum of four and a maximum of six investigations per year, or plan their own units using the syllabus outcomes. Schools must balance the religions studied, and match work to pupils' learning needs as they construct their own programmes from these 'raw materials'.

Additional units written by the school must enable students to achieve the outcomes of the syllabus.

These questions are intended to be challenging and enable rigour, while at the same time giving all pupils a chance to increase their knowledge and understanding from very varied starting points. Differentiation of learning by task, resource, choice and outcome is part of teachers' responsibilities in curriculum planning.

Selecting the questions

There are more than enough questions here to have one per half term in a three-year KS3. Teachers should select the questions that they think will work best for their school and context, ensuring a balanced programme that enables students to build on prior learning and to gain a coherent understanding of the religions and beliefs studied and the connections between them. The suggested content in the unit outlines on the following pages include key information that is also found in the GCSE specifications.

Liaison between middle and upper schools is essential.

Teachers may see KS3 RE learning as laying the foundations for learning at KS4 and in GCSE, but 11–14 RE is a valuable and broad experience of investigating religion and belief in itself.

Progression in knowledge: the value of checking pupils' knowledge, and planning for increasing knowledge and understanding, is built into every unit of the syllabus. Good teaching is not repetitive, but uses, reinforces and expands the knowledge taught to increase understanding. Learning processes such as reminding, recapping, checking facts, identifying misunderstandings and inviting learners to name what they know and what they need to know are a part of all good RE teaching.

Unit 3.1: Why do Christians believe Jesus was God on Earth? (Incarnation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain, with reference to the 'I am' sayings and/or the signs, what John's Gospel says about Jesus' true nature, and how this connects to Christian beliefs about what God is like explain how the Bible uses different types of text (for example, the Gospels) and language (such as metaphor) to communicate ideas about Jesus as God incarnate suggest meanings of the selected texts, explaining their ideas with reasons and evidence Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how Christian worship reflects Christian beliefs in Jesus as God incarnate comment on the different ways in which Christians express worship of God Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> reflect on the value of belief in Jesus as God incarnate for Christians in the world today comment on how far the world today could benefit from a saviour, offering their own reasons and justifying their responses 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Christian religion is founded on the belief in incarnation: God became human to bring divine grace and forgiveness to anyone. This central belief is studied here in depth. Recap students' learning and knowledge about the nature of God in Christian belief, including the Bible's use of metaphors and similes to express some of these ideas. Look at the episode of Moses and the 'burning bush' (Exodus 3) and the name for God found here: 'I am who I am'. Use this as background for the seven 'I am' statements John's Gospel applies to Jesus. Connect this with prior learning about Jesus as God, as one member of the Trinity. Consider the 'I am' statements of Jesus in St John's Gospel. 'I am the bread of life' (John 6:35, 48, 51); 'I am the light of the world' (8:12, 9:5); 'I am the door of the sheep' (10:7, 9); 'I am the good shepherd' (10:11, 14); 'I am the resurrection and the life' (11:25); 'I am the way, the truth and the life' (14:6); 'I am the true vine' (15:1). Consider in what ways these metaphors relate to the particular time and context of John's readers: what significance did water, bread, shepherd, light, etc., have? Consider how Christians might interpret these metaphors today and what they find out about Jesus from them. What difference would it make for people to believe these seven things about Jesus? Find out about the seven 'signs' in John's Gospel: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Changing water into wine (2:1–12). Healing the royal official's son (4:46–54). Healing the paralytic at Bethesda (5:1–15). Feeding the crowd in Galilee (6:1–15), which links with 'I am the bread of life'. Walking on the Sea of Galilee (6:16–21). Healing the blind man in Jerusalem (9:1–7), which links with 'I am the light of the world'. Raising Lazarus to life at Bethany (11:1–3, 17–44), which links with 'I am the resurrection and the life'. What do these add to the picture of Jesus? How do these ideas relate to Christian belief in the person and role of Jesus as God? Explore how contemporary Christian worship music uses metaphors and similes to communicate belief in Jesus as God, and God as Trinity (e.g. www.worshipcentral.org/music). Compare these styles of worship with other music (e.g. Christian heavy metal bands such as 'Stryper') and other forms of worship, e.g. Quaker, Pentecostal, and Anglican cathedral worship. What do they communicate about the nature of Jesus and God, and what effect do they have on worshippers? Comment on the central importance of belief in Jesus as God incarnate and Saviour for most Christians today, in the light of students' learning in this unit. Reflect on whether or not students think the world could do with a 'saviour' today. If so, how and why might such a 'saviour' offer guidance, direction, sustenance, wisdom, protection, life, hope and so on? Explore a Humanist alternative argument that we need to be our own 'saviours' and not think there is any external source of salvation. The thinking here is about human nature, and its 'dark side'.

Unit 3.2: Core and diverse Islam: what is universal and what is different? (Iman/ibadah/akhlaq)

The principal aim of religious education is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain the importance of the key beliefs studied (e.g. iman, ibadah, akhlaq) for Muslim ways of living in Britain today Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give reasons and examples to explain how and why Muslims put their beliefs into action in different ways (e.g. Sunni/Shi'a traditions) show how beliefs and teachings guide Muslims in responding to the challenges of life in Britain today Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give a coherent account of the challenges and opportunities of being a Muslim teenager in Britain today, offering reasons and justifications for their responses 	This unit explores what unites Muslim people (core) and also looks at Muslim diversity. Revise the key concepts of iman (faith), ibadah (worship and belief-in-action) and akhlaq (character and moral conduct). <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Discuss questions about Muslims who are British. Find examples of British Muslims creating contemporary media forms, such as British Muslim TV, whose tagline is 'confidently Muslim and comfortably British'. Use their programme list to see how British Muslims are exploring their faith in a Western context. From the starting point of British Islam, consider global Islam, such as using a map of Islamic populations globally. Discuss the main languages and cultures of global Islam: Arabic, South Asian, Central Asian, South East Asian, Russian, Eastern European, etc. Consider an image of pilgrims at the Ka'aba during Hajj. Muslims from around the globe wear the Ihram robes to eradicate their differences and stand before God. Explore where Sunni and Shi'a Islam differ in subtle ways from the universal or central 'core' of Islamic life, such as in the six articles of Sunni faith and the five roots of Shi'a faith. Note that the idea of a 'core' is controversial to some as well. Using prior knowledge of Islamic belief and living and the Sunni and Shi'a learning above, create a diagram showing 'core' Islamic belief and 'diversity' for Sunni and Shi'a Muslims. Research Sunni and Shi'a populations around the world. Identify Saudi Arabia as the heart of the Sunni world, and Iran and Iraq as the heart of the Shi'a world. Find out what languages would be spoken in these countries. Research famous mosques around the world, such as in Indonesia, Russia, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, London and Mali. What similar features can the class identify? What cultural 'flavours' can they see in the different mosques? Add 'core' mosque features and 'diverse' mosque features to the 'core' and 'diversity' diagram. Examine the term ijtihad to consider some different approaches to Islam in the modern world. Ijtihad is the intellectual effort of qualified scholars to employ reason and analysis of authoritative sources (Qur'an and Sunnah) to find legal solutions to new and challenging situations or where sources are ambiguous on issues. Some Muslims argue that the time for ijtihad is past and Muslims should live according to traditional ways; some Muslims argue that it is the duty of all Muslims to engage in ijtihad. Find out the arguments for different views on this continuum. Consider how far the requirement for submission in Islam incorporates the highest intellectual effort, and that submission does not bypass the brain. Consider how far this applies to all religions and beliefs. Reflect on how much effort students put into working out their own ideas.

Unit 3.3: How are Sikh teachings on equality and service put into practice today? (God/the Guru/Panth)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

Set Sikhi in the context of the religions of the time. Examine how the teachings and lives of Guru Nanak and the Ten Gurus guide Sikh living today. Explore examples of how they are put into practice by Sikhs (e.g. impact of Sewa (loving action); equality of women; langar meal (including recent 'langar on the streets' initiatives, food banks and homelessness projects); gurdwara open to all). How are these teachings communicated in the Guru Granth Sahib? How do they connect to pupils' own sense of 'the good life'? Find out about a Sikh's three duties: nam japna (meditation on God's name), kirat karna (hard work) and vand chhakna (sharing, charitable giving). Discover how these can be fulfilled in the gurdwara and how the gurdwara helps Sikhs in their relationship with God. Explore the Sikh path of life, away from being self-centred (manmukh) towards being God-centred (gurmukh), overcoming the ego (haumai) by living according to the will of God (Hukam), and how this enables a person to escape from the cycle of life, death and rebirth (samsara) and achieve liberation (mukti). Find out about what it means to be Amritdhari Sikh: the obligations (rahit – Five Ks, prayer) and prohibitions (kurahit – e.g. not cutting hair, no harmful drugs, no adultery, etc.). Consider the implications of being Amritdhari at school. Note that there is diversity in Sikh practice and that not all Sikhs are Amritdhari. Should Sikhi practice be welcome in British schools? How and why? Consider the questions of Sikh identity in modern British culture, from religious and sociological perspectives. Investigate what it means to be a young Sikh in Britain today: what are the challenges? Opportunities? Read the 'British Sikh Report (BSR) 2015' online, a quantitative analysis of the attitudes and actions of the British Sikh community. List the ways Sikhs view life in Britain as good, and ways Sikhs make a positive difference to life in Britain. Devise a diagram of the multiple identities of British Sikhs. Find out about Gurmukhi, the language developed by Guru Nanak so people from all castes could read the Sikh scriptures. The 2014 BSR notes only 26% of British Sikhs can understand Gurmukhi or Punjabi (www.britishsikhreport.org/british-sikh-report-download-2014/, p. 23). How and why is this a challenge for Sikh teenagers: are they losing touch with their roots, or putting down new ones? Create a set of ten suggestions for Sikh futures: how can Sikhi communities put their beliefs and values into action in modern Britain? Think about charity, arts, community, celebration, worship and other areas.

Unit 3.4: What happens when we die? What difference does it make if you believe in life after death?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain the key beliefs about life after death in at least two traditions explain how and why Christians interpret biblical sources about life after death differently (e.g. Protestant/Catholic) Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how religious and non-religious beliefs about life after death affect the way people live, including how death is marked give reasons and examples to explain why people have different views on the idea of life after death Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> offer a coherent account of the impact of beliefs about life after death, comparing two views (e.g. one religious and one non-religious; or contrasting religious views, within or between faith traditions) evaluate how far different ideas about life after death help students to make sense of the world, offering reasons and justifications for their responses 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Consider a range of reasons people give for belief in life after death (e.g. religious teachings, religious and near-death experiences, desire for justice to offset an unjust world, etc). Reflect on the persistence of this belief and consider why it is so enduring. The charity Christian Aid often runs the tagline ‘we believe in life before death’. Discuss which is more important, this life or a possible one to come? To what extent does one affect the other? Do you live differently if you believe ‘You Only Live Once’? Examine and compare a range of beliefs and teachings about death. All religions and worldviews say something about this, but here it is good to focus on two or three, e.g.: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Christian ideas: explore some Christian teachings (e.g. resurrection appearances of Jesus, such as in Luke 24, John 5:24–25 and 28–29, John 14:1–7, 1 Corinthians 15:51–56 and Revelation 21:1–4. The Nicene Creed also states the Christian belief in a life after bodily death). What do these teachings say about what life after death is like? How do Christians interpret them differently? Consider how different Christian traditions offer different ideas about life after death, e.g. purgatory, heaven, hell, eternal soul or bodily resurrection. Explore the kinds of music, hymns and songs used at Christian and secular funeral services. What do the words used tell us about different beliefs about life and life after death in Britain today? Muslim ideas about Paradise, Akhirah and the Day of Judgment (e.g. resurrection of the body, Qur’an 56.60–61; accounting for actions, Qur’an 23.99–100; standing before God as Judge, Qur’an 35.18; deeds recorded in the Book of Life, Qur’an 17.13–14; heaven and hell, Qur’an 32.17). You could look at treatment of bodies, burial, etc. Buddhist ideas of rebirth and nirvana/nibbana and the role of arhat/arahant/Bodhisattva. Sikh ideas of immortality of the soul, reincarnation and mukti. Humanist ideas: this life is all there is, the human person is annihilated at death, and so the only kind of immortality is by remembrance, which is limited. The British Humanist Association affirms Humanist ethics ‘for the one life we have’. Humanists think the lack of an afterlife is a reason to make the most of this life. Reflect on whether ‘one life’ is a liberating or terrifying notion. Consider the effects of these beliefs on the lives of individuals and communities, e.g. impact of beliefs about rewards/punishments on moral choices, and implications of believing that there is no judgement after death. How far does the idea of an afterlife help religious people live a good earthly life? Is existence a state of suffering, an ordeal to endure on a path to eternal happiness, or a chance to achieve one’s goals and hopes?

Unit 3.5: What do people believe about God and the Universe? (Concept: science and religions)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

How do atheists account for the beauty, love, order or grandeur of the Earth and humanity? Why do some people believe/not believe in God? Why are some people uncertain about God? What are my beliefs? Can science and religion both tell the truth about questions of origins? Note that pupils' science knowledge is not all uniform – they may know little of the science this unit explores, so working with science teachers is a good idea. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Identify key vocabulary: theist, atheist, agnostic, omnipotent, omnipresent, omniscient, evolution, science, evidence, origins, design, intelligent design, creationist. Pupils will be increasingly enabled to use these ideas reasonably through the unit. Raise questions about the origins, meaning and purpose of life – why, how, who, what for? Sort and classify these questions. Are there some which religions try to answer? Are some answered by science? Make sure students understand that some people think 'science versus religion' is a fight science has won, but others think there is no fight, and the two address different questions in different ways. Investigate diversity of beliefs and reasons for the diversity. Explore beliefs about God, the nature of the Universe, questions of origins and purpose, people's spiritual experiences, the nature of good and evil, the ideas of evolution and the Big Bang. Investigate ways in which people claim to experience God, e.g. in prayer, poetry, meditation, music, drama, sacred writings, art, sacred places or times, worshipping with others. Evaluate evidence of these experiences and consider how these experiences can be 'true' for the individual or group. Draw out statements that pupils believe to be true with explanations or evidence. Notice that evidence and proof are different but connected. Differentiate between fact, opinion and belief. Consider a range of types of truth, e.g. history, science, experience, myth. Consider how and why science and religion are sometimes seen as conflicting, and sometimes as partners. The YouTube video series of 12 programs by Professor Russell Stannard is useful, complete with a teacher book of resources, free at www.retoday.org.uk/resources/23/read/160 Engage with the debate on creationism, evolution, design and the ways questions of origins can be handled. From a focus on the 'Big Bang' and evolutionary theories, learn about how some Christian or Muslim scientists hold their faith in God and also accept evolutionary theory. Read and consider the purposes and uses of the Genesis narratives of creation. Were these written as history, myth, poetry or what? Are they still useful today for exploring religion? History? Science? Explore questions about the Universe. Accident or plan? Act of love or random? Purposeful or purposeless? Consider philosophical questions and arguments about the origin of all things. Does the Universe have a First Cause? Is the Universe designed? Does natural selection explain human complexity (Darwin's theory of evolution)? Discuss the importance of human beings – are we just more developed brains or are we special to God with higher consciousness and/or souls? What makes humanity different to other animals? Is it moral choice, the ability to think abstractly, the potential for spirituality, or what? Enable students to engage with and articulate personal evaluation and response to the key issue 'Can science and religion both be true?' Look at the strengths and weaknesses of all arguments. Note: it is important and valuable to liaise with the science department and between middle/upper schools on this. Presume nothing about prior learning.

Unit 3.6: Should Christians be greener than everyone else? (Creation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain the type and purpose of the Genesis creation texts, and their place in the overall Bible narrative explain the concepts of creation and stewardship in Christianity explain what Genesis 1 and 2 tell Christians about the nature of humans, their capacities and responsibilities Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give some examples of how Christians have responded to the idea of stewardship, as a community and individually show how Christians have used Genesis 1 and 2 to guide how they treat the environment Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> offer a justified response to the question of whether Christians should be better stewards than everyone else (e.g. non-religious people or members of another faith) respond to the challenge of caring for the planet, in the light of their learning, offering reasons and arguments for their responses 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Consider the place, genre and purpose of Genesis 1 (e.g. as a narrative that originated among a small group in the Middle East c. 4,000 years ago; as a prelude to a longer drama; viewed differently as a possibly mythic/poetic/historical or proto-historical text). Look at the text to explore how interpretations can lead to different ideas. Examine the place of human beings in Genesis 1 and 2 and what they reveal about the role of God and the place of human beings in creation – their capacities and responsibilities. Examine the Christian idea of stewardship that arises from these passages. Consider what stewardship might have looked like 2,000 years ago, 200 years ago and today: how would the guidelines for stewardship change over those changing contexts? Are there implications for how Christians apply the Bible today? Explore some Christian responses to the call for stewardship in Genesis 1 and 2, e.g. the Eco Church Awards. Look at other examples of good stewardship of the Earth and its resources from beyond the Christian community – e.g. the use of scientific advances to make life better in terms of protecting crops, responding to disease, etc. Collect examples of good and bad stewardship; reflect on whether Christians have been good enough stewards. How might Christians respond to a challenge from their Creator about the state of the environment and human attitudes to it? Explore the different context from the early audiences for the Genesis accounts (e.g. at the mercy of the environment) and today (e.g. for many in the West, we are distanced from the Earth that sustains us). What difference does that make to how people read Genesis and respond to the idea of a Creator? Consider how far Christians and non-religious responses to the environment are effective and sufficient for the future. Weigh up and evaluate the key question, using evidence and argument: ‘Should Christians be greener than everyone else because of their beliefs about God, creation and stewardship?’ Or do all humans have an equal responsibility on behalf of future generations? Note: schools might like to write a version of this unit based upon another religion. The focus on Christianity here is not exclusive. There are environmental movements in all faiths.

Unit 3.7: Why are people good and bad? (Fall)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain how the idea of ‘the Fall’ is found in the text of Genesis 3, and that this is a significant part of the ‘salvation narrative’ of the Bible explain the nature of the texts in Genesis 1, 2 and 3; give at least two examples of how they have been interpreted differently by Christians and explain why give reasons and arguments for why most Christians view humans as ‘fallen’, using examples Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain the impact of Genesis 3 and how belief in the Fall has affected the treatment of women show how Christians have responded to the idea of being ‘fallen’, in the Church community and personal living, for example, through confession, forgiveness, and seeking a holy life Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give a coherent account of how being ‘fallen’ has influenced how people live and behave evaluate personally and impersonally how far this helps to make sense of the world 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Reflect on why human beings are both good and bad, considering example of what Pascal called ‘the glory and wretchedness’ of humanity. Investigate the different presentations of God in Genesis 1 (Elohim – powerful eternal, transcendent) and 2 (Yahweh – personal, parental, immanent). Explore what it means for Christians to believe that humans are made ‘in the image of God’ (Genesis 1:27). Contrast the relationship between God and humans in Genesis 1 and 2 with the story of ‘the Fall’ in Genesis 3 – read it, hot-seating characters, and recording how the relationships change as a result of the actions of the man and the woman. Consider the type of text this could be (e.g. history, myth, narrative of purposes) and what difference that makes to how people interpret it. Examine the mainstream Christian view that this account expresses a truth about the human condition – that humans are ‘fallen’, people’s character is spoiled by sin, and the relationship between humans and God is seriously damaged, so that something needs to be done to put it right, according to Christians. Consider how persuasive this account is in terms of explaining why humans are both good (‘image of God) and bad (‘fallen’): is a human a ‘good thing, spoiled’? Explore some consequences of belief in fallen human nature: if humans are fallen, what evidence is there for this? Build on examples from the start of this unit and Unit 3.2. Include additional case studies, e.g. gender issues: how has male language dominated the language about God (king, lord, father, etc.) and what impact has this had on the role, place and treatment of women? Consider some examples of the general role of women through history, such as the role of women priests in Anglican Church as a specific example. How far can the idea of ‘fallen human nature’ explain gender inequality? Show how the idea of ‘the Fall’ leads to the belief that humanity needs to be saved – rescued by God; and how this leads to belief in Jesus as Saviour – repairing the effects of sin. Explore examples of how Christians acknowledge their ‘sinfulness’ and need for a saviour, so they can receive forgiveness and reconciliation (e.g. Roman Catholic practices of confession and reconciliation). Explore alternative explanations for human nature: e.g. Hindu ideas of karma/samsara, psychological accounts such as Freud’s, sociological accounts such as Durkheim’s, evolutionary accounts and Humanist accounts of human responsibility. How effective are these at explaining why humans are good and bad?

Unit 3.8: It's my life: what should I do with it? (Concepts: commitment, identity, belief, values)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

Is there a God and a devil? What do I think? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Introduce this topic by exploring the uniqueness of individual human beings: physical, emotional, intellectual, moral, spiritual. Consider the factors and influences that shape a person. Encourage pupils' personal engagement. Identify some ultimate questions. Why are they asked and why are they difficult to answer? What is the purpose of life? Are humans made in the image of God or is God made in the image of humans? What shall we live for? Is there anything worth dying for? What matters most? Discuss a range of views/beliefs. Reflect and make a personal response. Identify examples of some basic good and evil actions/choices in everyday life, e.g. decision making, questions of freedom and constraint. What are the worst things faced by young people in the UK today? What values and virtues help people to respond well to the negatives? Truthfulness, honesty, kindness, solidarity, co-operation, fairness, patience, love, etc. Analyse the portrayal of good and evil in the media, e.g. soaps, films, the press. Is the world made up of goodies and baddies? No! Where do we learn a more complex and real view of the world and our own natures? Compare and evaluate religious and secular views of good and evil: as forces (e.g. concepts of karma, yin and yang); as beings (e.g. images of God and the devil, the story of Adam and Eve) and as purely the result of higher consciousness, genes and upbringing. Analyse human values such as love, peace, non-violence, truth, justice, forgiveness, honesty and integrity and how these values are determined (explore religious and secular viewpoints). Can we live out these values, turning values into virtues, or are we all hypocrites? Identify key points, religious and secular, 'for' and 'against' for some moral dilemmas, e.g. capital punishment, embryo research, development aid, giving to charity, choosing to be an ethical consumer. How do these topics relate to the questions 'What does it mean to be human?' and 'What is the value of a human life?' Identify beliefs that inform views and actions on these issues, and investigate the source of authority for religious people, e.g. sacred writings, sources of wisdom, teaching of leaders and institutions, past and present. Evaluate whether a religious or a secular stance makes a positive difference to a person's life. Reflect on and evaluate personal views: their source and how they compare to others. Ask students to summarise their own thinking and beliefs in a personal creed and a personal set of 'Ten Commandments'.

Unit 3.9: What difference does it make to be an atheist or agnostic in Britain today?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

Note how many people are recorded as ‘not religious’, and the diverse breakdown of these ‘nones’ as they are sometimes called (including atheist, agnostic, Humanist and Jedi ...). Comment on these numbers and the changes from 2001. You might use the 2012 Theos Report Post-Religious Britain? The Faith of the Faithless (www.theosthinktank.co.uk/files/files/Post%20Religious%20Britain%20pdf.pdf) to find out more about the varied beliefs of atheists, the ‘non-religious’ and those who never participate in religious services (e.g. 11% of atheists describe themselves as Christian; 15% believe in life after death, etc.). Reflect on this information and try and give reasons for the diversity. Explore the identity of people who are SBNR (e.g. via work of Linda Woodhead: bit.ly/2mofcqs). Describe some beliefs and practices that might characterise this group. Consider alternative non-religious rituals, such as the Sunday Assembly. Investigate non-religious ceremonies, e.g. weddings, funerals and namings (www.humanism.org.uk/ceremonies/find-a-celebrant/). To what extent do non-religious people replicate the practices of religion, without the supernatural, and why? Look at the ideas of Alain de Botton, who looks to retrieve the personal and community benefits of religion without the supernatural elements (see Religion for Atheists, Pantheon Books 2012). Find out about Humanist beliefs, as presented by the British Humanist Association/Humanists UK and their local group of Humanists. Invite a Humanist in to talk about being ‘godless’ ‘happy Humanists’. Explore the arguments they offer for living a life without religion, and the key ideas and beliefs that are at the heart of this non-religious worldview (e.g. the Universe as a natural phenomenon best understood through science; the importance of making this life meaningful without belief in any kind of afterlife; the importance of using human reason, empathy, compassion and respect when deciding how to act). See understandinghumanism.org.uk for ideas and resources. Consider the range of beliefs encompassed by the term ‘non-religious’, from the SBNRs, through some agnostics who may be indifferent to religion, to some atheists who seek to persuade people of the falsehood of religious beliefs. Find some examples of people with this range of views, perhaps including some of your students. To what extent is it fair to describe the ‘non-religious’ in relation to religion?

Unit 3.10: Do prophets still influence us today? (Key concepts: the word of God, the People of God)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

Choose examples from many religions and worldviews. Introduce the role of the prophet in the Hebrew scriptures: reminding the People of God of their covenant responsibilities to their God. One significant call from the prophets of Israel and Judah was for justice. Explore some prophetic texts that call for justice (e.g. Amos 5:6–24 and 8:4–10). Work out what must have been going on – present an account of ‘what’s wrong with the world’ in relation to Amos’ experience. Consider why the behaviour Amos saw runs contrary to God’s covenant with his people, according to the Bible (see the Ten Commandments in Exodus 20). Compare these accusations from the eighth-century BCE with behaviour in the world today. Does the world need prophets today? Look at Isaiah 2:15. Consider why the prophet called for peace-making then, and give reasons why some would say it is a call worth heeding today too. What steps could or should people take to bring peace? The Jewish and Christian idea of a prophet is one who sees things as they are, denounces what is wrong and announces God’s good news. Find out about some recent or living Christians who perform this prophetic role, such as Dietrich Bonhoeffer, Martin Luther King, Maria Gomez, Shane Claiborne. What did they denounce and announce and why? How did they communicate, and what impact did they have? Connect with contemporary world issues and events. Who are the equivalent prophetic voices from other religious or non-religious communities? Compare their motivations. Consider what the biblical prophets might say about our current culture and ways of living. What would Amos say about, for example, treatment of the elderly, child refugees, asylum seekers, migrants, bankers’ bonuses, sexism, racism, the environment, faith and commitment, if he were around now? As well as denouncing, what might Amos or Isaiah announce today and why? Reflect on the need for people to champion justice and truth: whose responsibility is this? Comment in the context of a country of declining religious adherence, such as a secular UK, and in a world of growing religious commitment. Note: Jewish, Christian and Islamic concepts of prophethood overlap in many ways and are also distinctive to each religion. Jesus, the Prophet Isa in Islam, is not always seen as a prophet in Christianity. Abraham/Ibrahim and Moses/Musa are key figures for Jews, Christians and Muslims. Whilst this unit has a Christian focus, the syllabus is always broad and open to other religious examples.

Unit 3.11: Why is there suffering in the world? Are there any good solutions?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> compare and explain two religious views of why humans suffer explain at least two solutions to suffering offered by religious traditions Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how some religious and non-religious beliefs and teachings affect how people respond to suffering give reasons and examples to explain why people respond to suffering in different ways (e.g. reject God; seek to heal the world) Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> offer a coherent account of the causes of suffering and the solutions offered by at least one religious tradition evaluate how far it is the case that religions exist to help humans cope with suffering, fear and despair, offering reasons and justifications for their responses 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore questions raised by the experience of suffering, in relation to God, the world, human life and life after death. Explore different causes and types of suffering: emotional, physical, existential. Consider how suffering differs around the world, e.g. compare relative poverty to absolute poverty. Consider the phrase ‘first world problems’ – do students suffer from these? Is suffering a natural human state, wherever we live and whatever we have? Explore Old Testament accounts of why we suffer. Link with Unit 3.3 and the story of the ‘Fall’ in Genesis 3. Explore some Christian understandings of how sin is the root cause of human problems. Read some Proverbs, e.g. Proverbs 10:1 and 22:1. If we follow these instructions (work hard, don’t be greedy, be obedient, etc.) will we avoid suffering? Compare to Job, who demands to know why the righteous suffer. Explore the story of Job (build on Unit 3.5). Read God’s answers in e.g. Job 38:2–11. How far is Job happy with this response and why? How do Christians respond to Job’s example? Can students suggest alternative answers to Job as to why good people suffer? In the New Testament, Jesus says his followers should alleviate suffering. In Matthew 25:31–46 Jesus explains that when ‘you help one of my brothers/sisters, you help me’. Is there suffering because humans do not help each other? Explore examples of Christians who seek to alleviate suffering. Explore a philosophical approach: how can a good God allow suffering? Many people argue that God cannot be good, or that God does not exist. How do Christians see the death and resurrection of Jesus (the ‘crucified God’, says German theologian Jurgen Moltmann) as an answer to the challenge of the problem of suffering? Explore Buddhist explanations of the suffering as dukkha, or discontentment (the First Noble Truth). We cause discontentment through craving (the Second Noble Truth). Look for examples of how craving brings discontentment in the lives of individuals. How far does this reflect students’ own experience? Find out about the Buddhist solution to suffering: cessation of craving (tanha) through following the Middle Way. How does the wheel of life offer a map to escape the jaws of dukkha? Consider how far humans are responsible for causing discontentment and overcoming it. Consider different views: are suffering, cruelty and injustice easier or more difficult to understand and come to terms with if, like humanists, we have no expectations of a ‘higher power’? Link with Unit 3.15 and evaluate how far Christian, Buddhist and Humanist beliefs about life after death affect their views on suffering. All religions and worldviews take a view of these questions of course, while the focus here is specific. Ask students to summarise each religious teaching, e.g. behave well and trust God (Old Testament), get your hands dirty; follow Jesus (New Testament); stop wanting what you cannot have (Buddhism). Evaluate each of the ideas and thinking frameworks they have studied and express students’ own responses to the question: Are there any good solutions to suffering?

Unit 3.12: What do we do when life gets hard? (Key concept: wisdom)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> suggest meanings of biblical concepts and texts to do with wisdom, suffering, evil and the meaning of life, explaining their ideas with reasons and evidence Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give reasons and examples to explain the range of ways Christians respond to and are influenced by Bible texts about meaning in life, suffering and wisdom and the key concepts studied Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> respond to the challenges of biblical ideas and teachings in the world today and in their own lives, offering reasons and justifications for their responses 	Note the overlap with Unit 3.11: Why is there suffering? Teachers will probably not use both these units. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore examples of evils and types of suffering in the world. Consider some questions: Which evils and suffering are our own fault? Should God be blamed for evil? If there is a great, all-loving God, why is the world so terrible for so many? Does a wise life avoid evil or attack it? Can religion help to reduce evil or does it contribute to it? Explore the ancient biblical Book of Job to see how it responds to the existence of suffering and how someone should respond to it. What is the image of God that is conveyed in the text? How does it depict the relationship between Job and God? What is its message about evil and suffering? What comforts does the book offer the Jewish or Christian reader today? Examine the ancient context of the story and decide how it can translate to today's world. Consider what a twenty-first-century version of the Book of Job would look like. Explore different ways Christians respond to the challenge of evil and suffering, for example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Apologetics: what arguments do Christians use to counter the charge that evil means God does not exist, and to persuade people that their God is all-loving, despite the presence of evil and suffering? Action: instead of philosophical arguments, many Christians argue that the response to suffering should be love and action. Find out about ways in which local Christians respond to examples of suffering in their neighbourhood and further afield. Debate some of these issues, drawing on learning about Job and Christian responses today, e.g. use debate statements such as 'Innocent suffering means that there cannot be a God', 'God is beyond understanding, so why God allows suffering is also beyond human understanding' or 'Instead of arguing about evil and suffering, Christians should just get on with overcoming it with love and care'. Recall the view of many Christians that evil and suffering was ultimately dealt with through Jesus' sacrifice on the cross. Ask some Christians how that helps them deal with it. Write responses to the unit question, 'What do we do when life gets hard?' Answer from a variety of different perspectives, including a Christian and an atheist response. Weigh up how satisfying, persuasive or feeble each response is, giving reasons and evidence. Can they articulate their own response to suffering?

Unit 3.13: What makes a person inspirational to others? (This unit takes a 'case study' approach. Students prepare a presentation)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can:	This unit will examine questions such as: What makes a person inspiring to others? Who is worthy of the Nobel Peace Prize? Why are inspiring exemplars important in different religions? 'No one is perfect' – how should we respond when our sources of inspiration are disappointing?
Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • use religious text, vocabulary and concepts to explain the impact of a selected inspirational leader • raise and research questions about the power of religious and spiritual ideals to effect social change • give reasoned arguments which justify or question the work of a selected inspirational figure in relation to social and political issues 	Students will choose, investigate and present a case study of one or more inspirational leaders, exploring their religion, belief and convictions and the impact they have had on today's world. Examples from Judaism, Islam, Christianity and Hindu traditions might include: Marc Chagall and Elie Wiesel (Jewish people), Malala Yousafzai and Dr Hany El Banna (Muslims), Sister Teresa Forcades and Revd Dr Martin Luther King Jr (Christians) and Mahatma Gandhi and Pandurang Shastri Athavale (Hindus). Students can be encouraged to look more widely than this too. The Nobel Peace Prize list of winners is a good place to begin research. Questions for the investigation: students might use this initial list and develop their own questions What inspired the leader you chose? Investigate the key events in their life. Relate their choices to sources of wisdom and authority in their tradition.
Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • show how some religious beliefs and teachings affect the life and influence of an inspirational leader • give reasons and examples to explain the concept of inspirational leadership, communicating ideas effectively 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Evaluate the influence of faith on your chosen person's approach to changing society, promoting goodness or challenging evil. What conflict and opposition did your chosen leader meet, and how did they respond? • Reflect on the key actions, speeches, leadership roles and impact of your chosen leader. What were their greatest achievements? How did the community get inspired? What is the long-term impact? • Express your personal views about why this person's beliefs and practices made a difference. • Select some key quotations and give a commentary on them. • How has your inspirational figure been celebrated – with prizes, in song, in film, or with a movement that follows his/her example? How will this person's inspiration live on into the future, do you think? • Consider this question: if your inspiring person came to your school and joined in with everything for one week, then, on Friday, took assembly, what would s/he say to your school? What would they like? What would they challenge?
Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • offer a coherent account and personal evaluation of the impact of the leader they chose on the modern world, using evidence and examples • evaluate how far it is the case that religions provide a context for inspirational leaders to flourish 	Presentations: encourage pupils to write their presentation for the rest of the class, for assembly or for younger pupils in RE, as well as presenting a Prezi, PowerPoint or similar. Note: it is important to liaise with other curriculum areas (e.g. History) to ensure that RE complements, and does not repeat, work undertaken elsewhere.

Unit 3.14: How can people express the spiritual through the arts?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> compare and explain at least two ways to describe ‘the spiritual’ explain how and why music and art are important ways of expressing the spiritual Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how people express spirituality in different ways (e.g. through art, music, activism) give reasons and examples to explain how music and art can help people understand big ideas in their tradition Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> offer a coherent account of the value of spirituality in the lives of religious and non-religious people, including themselves evaluate how far growing up in a tradition will shape the way someone sees all aspects of life, offering insights, reasons and justifications for their responses 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore a range of definitions of ‘spiritual’ and ‘spirituality’, including students’ ideas. Investigate what some people mean by ‘living a spiritual life’ or being a spiritual person. Consider: is spirituality about how we relate to ourselves, others, the Earth and ‘God’ or the ‘ultimate’? Muslims: explore modern Islamic art such as Ali Omar Ermes’ use of Arabic letters. Find out about the rich meanings behind each piece. Discover the use of words and phrases in Islamic art and architecture, such as those carved into stone in the Alhambra or the Taj Mahal. Christians: learn that Christians represent Jesus in Christian art because they believe he represented himself as a human in becoming incarnate (e.g. John 1:14). Explore diverse cultural or ethnic depictions of Jesus. Why do Christians want to portray Jesus as the same type of person as them? What does this tell us about what Jesus is to Christians? How do artists convey Jesus as equally God and human? Buddhists: find out about sand mandalas; representations of the Universe to aid meditation in Tibetan Buddhism. Watch a video to see how the mandalas are destroyed, to remind Buddhists of the all-important teaching of impermanence. Make a mandala (with pasta and rice?). How difficult is it for students to destroy their own mandala? Why is impermanence an important idea in Buddhism? How is spirituality expressed in the mandalas? Jews: listen to some klezmer, the music of Ashkenazi Jewish communities, played at joyful events (simcha) such as weddings. The music, a mixture of religious phrases, lively folk tunes and mournful, wordless passages evoking the human voice, is designed to make people want to dance, to feel joy, sadness and hope. The Hasidim (ultra-Orthodox Jews) used klezmer to attain joyful connection with God. Explore whether the human experiences of love, longing and joy are central to spirituality – or to music. Consider whether spiritual experiences are always positive. Sikhs: explore why music takes central stage in Sikh worship, and how it is used as a way to alter the emotional state to reach a better understanding of God. The scriptures are written in 60 different melodies that each establish a mood. E.g. Raag Asa (inspiration and courage) and Raag Asavari (enthusiasm). Explain why music can be seen as a spiritual form of expression. Examine these methods of expressing and exploring the spiritual beyond words. How far do music and the visual arts access the spiritual dimension (including Rudolf Otto’s idea of the mysterium tremendum et fascinans – the numinous), in a way rational thought and discussion cannot? Pupils could express creatively their own sense of the spiritual, and use art, music, poetry, text to express personal reflections on key themes, e.g. God, incarnation, salvation, justice, impermanence, hope. Teachers helping develop this scheme of work suggest that if you do not choose this unit, you might split its methods across other units taught during KS3. This is also a unit in which a range of smaller religious communities can be studied, e.g. through Bahá’í architecture or Jain sculptures.

Unit 3.15: Good, bad; right, wrong: how do I decide?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain the differences between absolute and relative morality and what difference they make for how people decide what is right and wrong explain how and why people use and make sense of different sources of authority in deciding how to live Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how some religious and non-religious ideas, beliefs and teachings guide people in making moral decisions give reasons and examples to explain why people come to different views on moral issues Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> offer a coherent account of the impact of beliefs on how people decide what is right and wrong, comparing two views (e.g. one religious and one non-religious, or contrasting religious views within or between faith traditions) evaluate how far the beliefs and principles studied help students to make sense of the world, offering reasons and justifications for their responses 	Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Examine the key terms: ethics, morality, absolute morality, relative morality, and how beliefs, values and principles act as a guide for moral decision-making, using case studies and moral dilemmas. Enable and encourage students to reflect upon their own process of moral decision-making throughout this unit. Consider where people get their moral values from, e.g. society, family, conscience and religion. Explore which have most authority, and why. Do my morals and ethics come from family? Friends? Films? Our own hearts? How can I tell? Explore how Christians, Buddhists, Sikhs or Muslims decide what is right and wrong, by looking at teachings and codes for living in Christianity and at least one other religion and examining how these are applied to everyday living and social issues. Reflect on the practice of virtue as well as the application of laws. Christianity: teachings of Jesus: Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5–7), Two Great Commandments (Matthew 22:36–39), The Golden Rule (Matthew 7:12), The Sheep and the Goats (Matthew 25:31–46). Consider humanity from a Christian perspective of being at once ‘fallen’ and ‘in the image of God’. How do they affect Christian ideas about how to be good? Ask: what do students admire here? Sikhism: meditation on God’s name (nam japna); honest work (kirat karna); sharing (vand chhakna); service to others (Sewa) regardless of colour, caste, class or creed; obeying God’s will. Read some extracts of the Sikhi manual Rohiy Maryada to explore Sikh moral guidance. Behaviour is often linked to belief about God here. Ask: what do students value here? Buddhism: the Noble Eightfold Path and the Five Moral Precepts. Find out what ‘good’ involves in Buddhist communal life. What approach to living do Buddhist principles demand? Buddhists might prefer the term ‘wise’ to ‘good’, and ‘unwise’ to ‘bad’ or ‘evil’. Discuss what difference it makes to strive for ‘wisdom’ rather than ‘goodness’. What do students appreciate here? Islam: Muslim teachings in the Qur’an, such as that righteousness comes from iman, assenting to the seven key beliefs (2.177); some things are forbidden by Allah (7.33); fasting and zakah in the Five Pillars; ihsan (excellence, doing what is good; from the Hadith of Gabriel). Consider the importance of submission in Islam – how does it affect moral decision-making? Consider why Ibrahim’s willingness to sacrifice his son Isma’il made him the perfect Muslim. For Muslims, what is the necessity and benefit of submission to Allah? Do students agree? Non-religious: compare religious moral rules with non-religious moral principles. For example, enquire into non-religious ethicist Peter Singer’s charity ‘The Life You Can Save’. Singer is not inspired by God to be good – debate how far God or religion encourages and inspires loving actions. What do students value here? Reflect upon what students have learned about their own ways of thinking and deciding about moral issues. Ask them to create a ‘Charter for a better Luton/Bedford’, expressing their own moral vision.

Unit 3.16: What is so radical about Jesus? (Gospel)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> suggest meanings of the texts studied, and how they challenged religious and political authorities, explaining ideas with reasons and evidence consider which interpretations are appropriate, and why Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give reasons and examples to explain how far Christians respond to the teaching of Jesus explain how Christians use Jesus' teaching to guide their actions/behaviour Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> express an account of the implications for the modern world of Jesus' treatment of the marginalised respond to the challenges of Jesus' teaching about love and justice, offering reasons and justifications for their responses 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore the background contexts of Gospel accounts on Jesus' relationship with 'sinners' and with the religious authorities (e.g. Mark 2:15–18 and Matthew 23:1–12). What do these texts suggest were the attitudes of the religious authorities to 'sinners', and how was Jesus' attitude different? Explore other texts which articulate Jesus' concerns, as far as the Gospel writers saw it (e.g. Mark 11:15–19 and Luke 4:16–12). In the context of the 'big story' or 'salvation narrative' of the Bible, what was Jesus' 'good news'? (I.e. in the context of the 'big story' of creation, Fall and God's rescue attempts leading to his offer of salvation in Jesus, what was Jesus' message and what did he offer those who seemed outside the system at the time? In what ways were Jesus' message and actions radical?) Explore a range of ways in which Christians try to put Jesus' message of 'good news' into action. Examples include putting the needs of the outcasts and vulnerable first (e.g. poor people, ill people, refugees, asylum seekers, etc.); challenging injustice and hypocrisy where they encounter it (e.g. challenging governments and corporate greed); the role of street pastors, the Salvation Army, the Society of St Vincent de Paul, L'Arche, Jubilee Debt Campaign, liberation theology; World Vision, World Relief; individuals like William Tyndale, Elizabeth Fry, Olaudah Equiano and John Sentamu. Consider whose actions were most radical. Consider how Christians might respond to challenges such as: 'You can't call yourself a Christian if you are not serving the marginalised. Christianity is basically a call for radically loving action.' Summarise five ways Christians could put Jesus' teaching into action in the world today. Add five more of students' own ideas for ways for bringing love and justice to the world, drawing on ideas from other faiths and from non-religious traditions. Reflect on the challenge of putting these ideas into practice, and how far they would be prepared to follow this guidance. Building on prior learning in Unit 3.3 about 'fallen' human nature, account for why people often know the good we should do but do not always do it.

Unit 3.17: Why don't Hindus want to be reincarnated and what do they do about it? (Samsara/karma/moksha/dharma/Brahman/atman)

This is an optional unit for schools teaching Hinduism at GCSE.

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain the importance of the key beliefs studied (e.g. karma, samsara, moksha) for Hindu ways of living Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give reasons and examples to explain how and why Hindus put their beliefs into action in different ways (e.g. paths to moksha; aims in life; varnas) show how Hindu beliefs and teachings guide them in making moral decisions (e.g. non-violence, vegetarianism) Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give a coherent account of why a Hindu would not want to be reincarnated, and what they might do about it evaluate how far the ideas of karma and samsara help students to make sense of the world and their own experiences 	Check out upper KS2 Unit 2.7 and reinforce or build on prior learning. The story of ‘the man in the well’ from the Mahabharata is a good starting point for this unit too. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore Hindu ideas about samsara, karma and moksha. What is the problem that causes the individual eternal self (atman) to be trapped within the cycle of life, death and rebirth (samsara)? Examine how the law of karma governs reincarnation. Consider how endless reincarnations is not an appealing prospect, and hence the desire to escape from samsara. Explore some of the ways Hindus can escape from samsara and attain moksha, e.g. karma yoga (a path of unselfish action), bhakti yoga (a path of devotion to God), jnana yoga (a path of knowledge) and astanga yoga (a path of meditation). Explore Hindu ideas about the four aims of life (punusharthas): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Dharma: religious or moral duty. Artha: economic development, providing for family and society by honest means. Kama: regulated enjoyment of the pleasures and beauty of life. Moksha: liberation from the cycle of birth and rebirth. Explore British Hindu teenagers’ lives, their multiple identities and thoughts about their traditions. Investigate what they think about goals in life, connecting with dharma, artha, karma and moksha. Compare similarities and differences with the diverse lives of students in your class. Analyse sacred texts dealing with dharma, such as passages from the Bhagavad Gita or the Ramayana. Explore the idea of dharma and varna in modern Indian and British Hindu communities. Evaluate this system of social organisation. Explore Hindu commitments to non-violence (ahimsa), harmlessness and vegetarian food. Contrast this with some Western attitudes. Evaluate the proposition that the Hindu path is our best hope in the battle to protect the environment.

Unit 3.18: What does it mean for Christians to believe in God as Trinity? (God)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain what Christians mean by talking about God as Father, Son and Holy Spirit, using evidence from at least three Bible texts show understanding of different types of text that talk about God as ‘Father, Son and Holy Spirit’, and how these can be read (narrative, prayer, letter, and so on) make links between the concept of Trinity and the roles and actions of God through the ‘big story’ of the Bible Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> give examples of how the Christian community responds to the idea of God as Trinity, for example, in expressing ideas about God through art, symbols, etc., in churches Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> evaluate their learning and express a view, giving a coherent account and offering reasons for their responses. Why do Christians worship God as Trinity, and what difference does belief in God as Trinity make to them? 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Clarify what Christians mean by the term ‘God’. Consider the inadequacy of the view that God is ‘an old man in the sky’ as far as Christians are concerned. Explore biblical views of God as Trinity through three key texts, noting the different kinds of texts: God the Father and Creator: Psalm 104:5–14, God the Son: Romans 5:6–8, and God the Spirit: Galatians 5:22–23. Compare with Christian statements of belief in the Trinity in the Apostles’ Creed, for example. Compare this view of God with the ‘old man in the sky concept’ – note differences. Reflect on what differences there might be in Christian practice without belief in God as Trinity. Reflect on the ‘big story’ of the Bible, from creation and Fall to salvation and the kingdom of God. Note the role of God at each stage (e.g. God as Creator, Son as Saviour, Spirit as Comforter to Christians). Construct a theological ‘timeline’ of these stages by finding and using artworks that express these ideas. Imagine how a church called ‘Holy Trinity Church’ might be appropriately decorated and used. Use art, architecture, symbol, signs, rituals and actions that reflect beliefs about God as Father, Son and Holy Spirit. How do Christians express and communicate their belief in God as Trinity, including use of symbols in art? Explore what this belief in God as Trinity teaches Christians. If God is like this, what should Christians be like? Christians say all three persons of the Trinity love and serve each other in a mutual relationship. Ask the class to suggest at least five examples of how Christians should live and act in the light of this teaching (for example, follow Jesus’ examples in love, self-sacrifice and obedience; allow the Holy Spirit to work in their lives and so on). What difference would it make if Christians only believed in one person of the Trinity? Add to students’ earlier discussion. Ask them to articulate reasons and arguments why most Christians worship God as Trinity, on the basis of their learning in this unit. Ask students to express their own responses to the idea, with reasons, evidence and argument.

Unit 3.19: Sharing one world: are religions part of the problem or the solution?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

Why do they exist? Do these barriers matter – to the world, to me? Does religion do more harm or more good in the world today? Is religion part of the problem to sharing one world, or part of the solution? How can we share one world more fairly? Can the human race tackle racism, sexism and poverty more effectively in the next generation? What do I think? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> If religions preach peace, why do they often fight? Consider with pupils the inclusive and loving intentions of religions, in texts and in contemporary life. What examples of religious action have challenged prejudices about race, religion, gender and homophobia? But also, what examples have reinforced these prejudices? What stops people sharing one world fairly? Evaluate the underlying causes of the prejudice that creates all these barriers. Learn to use negative terms such as ignorance, fear, scapegoating, stereotyping and prejudice. Learn to use positive terms such as tolerance, acceptance, respect, mutual understanding and celebration of diversity. Think about the directions of travel that the world is taking in relation to respect. This work may open up some ‘dangerous conversations’ if genuine dialogue is promoted. Consider relevant school principles and values, legislation on discrimination and incitement to religious hatred, and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Set clear ground rules for discussion. Investigate recent and current examples of racial/religious prejudice and the consequences. Refer to the Holocaust, Rwanda, Darfur, Bosnia, Afghanistan, Iraq, Syria – and, close to home, the prejudices often expressed about migrants, refugees and people who are newcomers to the UK. What does religious teaching say about attitudes to such people? Reflect on what questions these events raise about the nature and power of God: has God made one world to work as one, or does the existence of many religions make human unity impossible? Hans Küng said that there can be ‘no peace among the nations without peace among the religions’*. Make personal responses to the personal, social and moral issues raised by prejudice. Analyse common threads in religious teaching about the equality of all human beings. Explore differing religious responses to these issues, e.g. investigate the differing beliefs about women in the Church and attitudes to homosexuality in Christianity, and make comparisons with other faiths, selecting from Judaism (Orthodox and Reform), Islam, Sikhism and Hinduism. Evaluate these differing religious attitudes and beliefs. Research the impact of relevant legislation on discrimination on grounds of gender and sexual orientation (e.g. the Civil Partnerships Act). Is our world taking steps forward to accept that rights apply equally to all? Is there still some way to go? Analyse the barriers created by religion (with its close link to politics). For example: the tensions in the Middle East with reference to the Jewish/Palestinian situation and the conflict over Jerusalem; differing beliefs in Islam about the interpretation of jihad; the conflicts over land and power between Roman Catholic and Protestant Christians in Northern Ireland; conflicts between Muslims and Hindus; the caste system. Research and reflect on the attempts by religious groups or individuals to build ‘bridges’. This should include local community and interfaith activities, and a selection from the following: Desmond Tutu and the Peace and Reconciliation movement in South Africa, Corrymeela in Northern Ireland, the Community of the Cross of Nails (Coventry Cathedral) and Neve Shalom (an interfaith school in Jerusalem).

Unit 3.20: What will make our community a more respectful place? (Concepts: cohesion, tolerance, mutual respect)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.
Teachers will enable students to achieve these outcomes, as appropriate to their age and stage, so that they can: Make sense of belief <ul style="list-style-type: none"> explain and interpret reasons why a plural society in our region of the UK is sometimes seen as a good thing and sometimes raises problems use religious vocabulary, texts and concepts to explain attitudes of respect and fairness, or prejudice and inequality Understand the impact <ul style="list-style-type: none"> show how some religious and non-religious beliefs and teachings can affect attitudes to our plural society raise and research questions and explanations about how to make Luton and Bedfordshire places where respect for all can flourish give reasoned arguments to show their interpretation of the kind of society that is good for all its communities Make connections <ul style="list-style-type: none"> develop insights into questions and issues about living in a multi-religious community engage critically and personally with some questions, issues and dilemmas about community cohesion, respect for all and fairness, using religious teachings to evaluate our society 	This unit will explore questions such as: What can reduce prejudice? What can build respect for all? Am I making our town more or less respectful? Is respect a religious or spiritual matter? Is it a personal or ethical matter? What actions can be taken in our area to increase inter-religious respect? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Investigate how the area where the school is contrasts with other parts of Luton and Bedfordshire. Some areas are very plural, and others have a single cultural group in a dominant position. List what is good and bad about this state of affairs. Explore the idea that interfaith dialogue contributes to prejudice reduction: what is valuable in this? Does a society grow more cohesive where people can share their varied religions and beliefs openly? Look at census statistics that picture the plurality of our towns, area, county or region. What is changing in our country and what challenges are we facing? Luton has a higher Muslim population than any other part of the UK. The proportion of non-religious people is growing. In one survey, almost 50 per cent of the UK population said they were Christians (see bit.ly/2r533g8). What sense can we make of these facts? Consider the different kinds of prejudice that can sometimes divide our communities. Race, gender, sexuality, religion and social class are all differences: why do they sometimes divide us? Is anyone free of such prejudices? Can everyone decide how to be less prejudiced for themselves? Consider some teachings – found in every religion – about the duty to care and show love or compassion to people who are different. One example is the ‘Golden Rule’, but there are many more. Is our area/town/region marked by tolerance and respect or hostility and prejudice? If the answer is ‘a bit of both’ then what can be done to make our area more respectful, for the well-being of all? Consider: if pupils were mayor, how would they promote the well-being of all citizens? Pupils might create speeches, ten-point action plans or debating points. Suggest resolutions to some dilemmas we face in a plural society. Should mosques call to prayer on Fridays? Should Hindus celebrate Diwali on the streets? Does everyone need a bank holiday for Christmas and Easter? Should all religions be taught in school RE? Why does religious fairness matter? When racists come to town preaching hate, who can stop them? What are the benefits of a non-violent approach to conflict? Identify and research some approaches to living in a plural society: multiculturalism, anti-racism, community cohesion and respect for all projects are suitable for study. Does everyone have a moral duty of respect or care for others in society, or should everyone just look after themselves? If the Buddha, Muhammad or Jesus came to Luton or Bedfordshire, what would they praise and commend? What would they challenge? What teachings from the religions can be applied to our situation? Engage in personal reflection on whether pupils feel they are a contributor to a more respectful society. Include consideration of why and how a person might have this as a goal in life: a positive, personal, moral choice.

Unit 3.21: The Buddha: how and why do his experiences and teachings have meaning for people today? (Buddha/dharma/Sangha)

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Explain what the Buddha is saying about wisdom, justice and strength in this story. Analyse ways in which ‘engaged Buddhism’ promotes peace and justice, e.g. using the teachings and example of Thich Nhat Hanh. Explore some Buddhist symbols and artefacts beyond statues of Buddha (rupas): lotus flower, stupa, bells, mala (beads), prayer wheel, prayer flags, singing bowls, mudras (hand gestures). Introduce the Sangha – the Buddhist community. Outline the different schools in Buddhism (i.e. Mahayana, Theravada). Introduce some diverse perspectives on Buddhism in British Buddhist communities. Compare the outlooks of a traditional perspective (e.g. Tibetan, Pure Land or Zen) with a recent perspective (e.g. Triratna). Find out what it means to be Buddhist in a British context. Compare Buddhist ethics with Humanist ethics. Is Buddhism an early form of Humanism? Investigate what it is about Buddhism that makes it attractive to Westerners. Analyse how it is marketed and used in marketing. Evaluate whether its interpretation as a philosophy makes it ‘acceptable’ to a secular media or society. Weigh up the unit key question: ‘How and why do the Buddha’s life and teachings have meaning for people today?’ Give examples, reasons and evidence.

Unit 3.22: Should happiness be the purpose of life?

The principal aim of RE is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

Learning outcomes (intended to enable students to achieve end-of-key-stage outcomes):	Ideas and some content for learning: Teachers can select content from these examples, and add more of their own to enable students to achieve the outcomes.

Decide which might be most easily measured when governments want to promote happiness, and which view of happiness might be most satisfying. Christianity: explore what the Bible says: compare the happiness that comes from a life lived in relationship with God (e.g. Psalms 2:12, 32:1–2) to the happiness that comes from acting to make the world better (e.g. Psalms 41:1, Matthew 5:9). Consider how far the commands in Matthew 22:37–39 encapsulate Christian ideas of happiness. Is Christianity concerned with happiness on Earth or joy and contentment in heaven? Is there some other purpose that is more important? Buddhism: explore the unsatisfactoriness of life: dukkha. Find out whether the teachings of the Buddha can be understood as above all, a search for happiness, through relinquishing the hold that craving has on us. Would students define this as 'happiness', or something else? Non-religious worldviews: find out about the secular organisation Action for Happiness, which promotes mindfulness, celebration of life and community action. How does a religious idea of 'the good life' compare to a non-religious view? Compare secular views of how to gain happiness from positive psychology (see e.g. www.actionforhappiness.org/10-keys-to-happier-living). To what extent does the positive psychology 'happiness movement' offer a secular version of religion? Explore contrasting existentialist or nihilist responses about the struggle or meaninglessness of existence. Consider how religious or spiritual happiness is attained: e.g. through acting in the world (such as the actions of Bodhisattvas), or through prayer and contemplation? Compare to a consumerist or materialist pursuit of happiness. Consider if attaining happiness is morally acceptable: can we evaluate the sort of happiness aimed for, and say one is morally better than another? Reflect on where people attain happiness – the future or the here and now. The Buddhist 'wheel of life' suggests that 'heaven' and 'hell' are found in daily existence in our outlook and mood. Compare this to a Humanist view that no one can be happy while others suffer (e.g. Peter Singer). Are these similar views of 'heaven' as states of mind attained here on Earth? Compare to a Christian vision of heaven, and debate whether spiritual happiness negates earthly, physical happiness. Consider whether students see happiness as the purpose of life, or whether there are higher goals.

RE for 14–19-year-olds

The programme of study

'Does it help the poor more to pray or to pay?' by Ilsa, 17

RE for all, 14s–19s

The statutory requirements for RE are clear in law: RE is for all students

All state-funded schools of all types must teach RE to all students on school rolls, including all those in 14–19 education (unless withdrawn by their parents, or, if 18 or over, they withdraw themselves). It is important that teaching enables suitable progression from the end of Key Stage 3, in varied ways that meet the learning needs of all students. All students can reasonably expect their learning will be accredited, and this agreed syllabus requires that all 14–16 students should pursue an accredited course of religious study. Normally this is to be GCSE RS, while some lower-achieving students' learning needs will be better met by using an entry-level accredited course.

Schools should enable all 14–16 students to pursue a national qualification at this stage.

It is clearly good practice to provide opportunities for students to study RS A level in 16–19 settings.

Schools are also required to provide enrichment opportunities in core RE for those who do not take examined and certificated courses.

Appropriate modes of accreditation include nationally accredited courses in RE such as GCSE and A level RS, and a wide range of enrichment courses and opportunities, such as the Extended Project Qualification. Good practice examples include many schools where all students take GCSE RS courses at 16, since these qualifications are an excellent platform for 14–16 RE.

What do students get out of RE at this age?

All students should extend and deepen their knowledge and understanding of religions and worldviews (including non-religious worldviews), explaining local, national and global contexts. Building on their prior learning, they appreciate and appraise the nature of different religions and worldviews in systematic ways. They should use a wide range of concepts in the field of Religious Studies confidently and flexibly to contextualise and analyse the expressions of religions and worldviews they encounter. They should be able to research and investigate the influence and impact of religions and worldviews on the values and lives of both individuals and groups, evaluating their impact on current affairs. They should be able to appreciate and appraise the beliefs and practices of different religions and worldviews with an increasing level of discernment based on interpretation, evaluation and analysis, developing and articulating well-reasoned positions. They should be able to use different disciplines of religious study to analyse the nature of religion.

Specifically students should be taught to:

- investigate and analyse the beliefs and practices of religions and worldviews using a range of arguments and evidence to evaluate issues and draw balanced conclusions
- synthesise their own and others' ideas and arguments about sources of wisdom and authority using coherent reasoning, making clear and appropriate references to their historical, cultural and social contexts
- develop coherent and well-informed analysis of diversity in the forms of expression and ways of life found in different religions and worldviews
- use, independently, different disciplines and methods by which religions and worldviews are to analyse their influence on individuals and societies
- account for varied interpretations of commitment to religions and worldviews and for responses to profound questions about the expression of identity, diversity, meaning and value
- argue for and justify their own positions with regard to key questions about the nature of religion, providing a detailed evaluation of the perspectives of others
- enquire into and develop insightful evaluations of ultimate questions about the purposes and commitments of human life, especially as expressed in the arts, media and philosophy
- use a range of research methods to examine and critically evaluate varied perspectives and approaches to issues of community cohesion, respect for all and mutual understanding, locally, nationally and globally
- research and skilfully present a wide range of well-informed and reasonable arguments which engage profoundly with moral, religious and spiritual issues

Examples of core RE investigations

- Navigating multicultural Britain: how can our varied religious and non-religious communities live for the wellbeing of all? How can we all improve our knowledge of different beliefs and our skills in interfaith dialogue? Does this knowledge make a society more respectful?
- Good without God? Ethics and religion are sometimes intertwined, and sometimes separated. How do different religions contribute to ethical ideals and practices? Why might a non-religious basis for ethics help a plural society?
- SBNR: a growing identity? Is the identification of being 'spiritual but not religious' important in the UK today? Are many people SBNR? What variety of meanings is there in this identity? Does being SBNR help people with personal, social and political life?
- Religion and politics: does religion in Britain and globally contribute to political stability or instability? Should politicians control religion? Is it always a bad idea for religion to control politics? How has religion challenged politics to be 'the best that we can be'? Why does religion sometimes contribute to conflict?
- Film and faith: are the movies key ways of communicating and exploring what it means to be human in the contemporary world? In what ways are movies similar to sacred texts, and in what ways different? Which movies do students find pose the challenges of being human most clearly?
- Evil: what do different religions say and do to reduce it? An exploration of the nature of evil according to different faiths and beliefs and a consideration of ways to reduce evil in the modern world

Note: a day conference approach is not a substitute for regular weekly lessons because students may gain much from such conferences, but do not have opportunities to respond for themselves with work that shows their progress. Schools are welcome to ask for SACRE advice about 14–19 provision that is both legal and of good quality.

Respect for all, global learning, British Values and community cohesion

What does RE offer to pupils?

This agreed syllabus provides many opportunities for RE teaching and learning to challenge stereotypical views and to appreciate difference positively. Examining what makes for community harmony is built into the syllabus.

Learning for diversity. Government guidance has advised that every school is responsible for educating children and young people who will live and work in a country which is diverse in terms of cultures, religions or beliefs. A recurring theme of government and HMI guidance on Religious Education is to develop a positive attitude towards other people, respecting their right to hold different beliefs from their own, and towards living in a world of diverse religions. RE guidance also requires schools to enable pupils to examine the consequences of anti-social behaviour such as racism and to develop strategies for dealing with it. Equally, Ofsted also points to the major contribution that RE makes in promoting British Values and enabling learners to develop positive attitudes through ‘valuing diversity, promoting multicultural understanding and respect’.¹⁰

Reducing intolerance. Promoting community cohesion aims to contribute to reducing the corrosive effects of intolerance. It is too simplistic to assume that merely by teaching about the major world religions, RE will automatically contribute to community cohesion. It is even possible for weaker teaching to reinforce stereotypes, e.g. ‘Muslims are from Pakistan’ or ‘Christians are white’. It is valuable to note that, for example, Christians, Bahá’ís and Muslims all give great significance to Jesus (who was himself Jewish) within their religious tradition, holding some aspects in common and diverging on other fundamental points. There is also, of course, great diversity within religions, where different interpretations can clash sharply. As well as learning about the historical and current relationship between cultures, pupils should study the ways in which one religion has influenced the development of another.

Visits and visitors. RE is the ideal vehicle for building links with faith communities in the local area of the school. Pupils need opportunities to meet people of different faiths and cultures to develop a respect for those who believe, think and practice differently, without feeling that their own identity or views are threatened. In fact, pupils can deepen and clarify their sense of identity through their encounter with the ‘other’. It is important to set ground rules for discussion when religious differences are explored, in order to create a safe and positive environment. This is particularly relevant where there may be media misrepresentations and commonly held negative stereotypes, e.g. anti-Christian or Islamophobic ideas, unfair negativity to any religion and any preaching of extremist or violent views. RE has a place in reducing extremism by providing clear and accurate knowledge about different religions and worldviews, and challenging prejudice.

Breadth – cohesion for all. In terms of community cohesion and respect for all it is more meaningful to pupils if the religions taught include those of their own families and communities, including smaller faith groups in order to accord equal value and respect. Similarly, children should learn that non-religious perspectives on life, including examples such as Humanism, are also valid and widespread. Large numbers of our pupils come from families where no religion is practiced, and they must not be made to feel that their lives or families are less worthy as a result.

Planned support for teaching. At Key Stages 2 and 3 there are planned units for investigating these important issues. For Key Stage 2, see the unit on ‘Enquiring into places of worship through visits’ and for Years 7–9, ‘How can our town become a more respectful place?’

Schools' work in promoting community cohesion and preventing extremism: the key role of RE in the curriculum

Our vision is of a community where people of different faiths and no religion live harmoniously side-by-side, displaying mutual respect, understanding and friendship. It is essential that our children and young people are supported in developing these qualities and whilst growing in confidence achieve a level of critical awareness that helps them to become builders and shapers of a better society. Under the Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000, schools have a duty to eliminate unlawful racial discrimination and to promote equality of opportunity and good relations between people of different groups. Local authorities, religious and non-religious organisations have an important role in supporting schools to discharge the duty to promote community cohesion.

The government's guidance advises that every school is responsible for educating children and young people who will live and work in a country which is diverse in terms of cultures, religions or beliefs. RE aims to develop a positive attitude towards other people, respecting their right to hold different beliefs from their own, and towards living in a world of diverse religions. RE requires pupils to think about the positive benefits of equality, respect for all and inclusion and the negative impacts of prejudice and intolerance. OFSTED consistently finds that a major contribution to valuing diversity, promoting multicultural understanding and respect comes from the RE curriculum. We want all our schools to have best practice in this area. The community cohesion agenda is about how to avoid the corrosive effects of intolerance and harassment, as race and faith are often seen as frequent friction points between communities, and the most visible sources of tension.

It is too simplistic to assume that merely by teaching about the six major world religions, RE as a curriculum area will automatically contribute to community cohesion. There is a risk of reinforcing stereotypes in this subject area, for example, that 'all Muslims are from Pakistan' or 'all Christians are white'. It is important to emphasise that these are 'world' religions, and to seek opportunities and resources that will break down inaccurate, even racist assumptions about people of other faiths. Each religion in fact contains diverse traditions and beliefs. Each religion is multicultural in itself; its forms and followers vary in ethnicity, language, customs and practices.

It is important to identify links and similarities between the different religions and their practices, encouraging mutual respect, understanding and tolerance. For example, Christians, Jews and Muslims may all recognise the significance of Jesus of Nazareth within their religious traditions, holding some aspects of belief in common and diverging on other fundamental points. As well as learning about the historical and current relationship between cultures, pupils should study the way in which one religion has influenced the development of another.

RE is an ideal vehicle for building links with local faith communities in the local area of the school. Pupils need opportunities to meet people of different faiths and cultures to develop a respect for those who believe, think and practice differently, without feeling that their own identity or views are threatened. In fact, pupils can deepen and clarify their sense of identity through their encounter with the 'other'. The community cohesion guidance states that 'through their ethos and curriculum schools can promote discussion of a common sense of identity and support diversity, showing pupils how different communities can be united by shared values and common experiences'.¹¹ It is important to set ground rules for discussion when religious differences are explored, in order to create a safe and positive environment. This is particularly relevant where there may be media misrepresentations and commonly held negative stereotypes such as Islamophobia.

In terms of community cohesion, it is more meaningful to pupils if the religions taught include those of their own families and communities, including smaller faith groups in order to accord equal value and respect. Similarly, children should learn that non-religious perspectives on life are also valid and widespread. Large numbers of our pupils come from families where no religion is practised and they must not be made to feel that their lives or families are less worthy as a result.

British Values and RE

School inspection, since the 2015 Inspection framework, explores and judges the contribution schools make to actively promoting British Values, in the context of spiritual, moral, social and cultural (SMSC) development.

RE makes a key educational contribution to pupils' explorations of British Values

Teaching this RE Agreed Syllabus will enable pupils to learn to think for themselves about British Values in relation to the values of different religions and worldviews and their own values.

Questions about whether social and moral values are best described as 'British Values' or seen as more universal human values will continue to be debated, but for the purposes of teachers of RE, the subject offers opportunities to build an accurate knowledge base about religions and beliefs in relation to values. This in turn supports children and young people so that they are able to move beyond attitudes of tolerance towards increasing respect, so that they can celebrate diversity.

Values education and moral development are a part of a school's holistic mission to contribute to the wellbeing of all people within our communities. The RE curriculum focuses learning in some of these areas, but pupils' moral development is a whole-school issue.

- Mutual tolerance. Schools do not accept intolerant attitudes to members of the community: attitudes which reject other people on the basis of race, faith or belief, gender, sexual orientation or age are rightly challenged. The baseline for a fair community is that each person's right to 'be themselves' is to be accepted by all. Tolerance may not be enough: RE can challenge children and young people to be increasingly respectful and to celebrate diversity, but tolerance is a starting point. It is much better than intolerance of other people. Put simply for young children, this is about accepting that we are all different.
- Respectful attitudes. In the RE curriculum attention focuses on developing mutual respect between those of different faiths and beliefs, promoting an understanding of what a society gains from diversity. Pupils will learn about diversity in religions and worldviews, and will be challenged to respect other persons who see the world differently to themselves. Recognition and celebration of human diversity in many forms can flourish where pupils understand different faiths and beliefs, and are challenged to be broad-minded and open-hearted. Put simply for young children, this is about taking a positive attitude to learning from each other.
- Democracy. In RE pupils learn the significance of each person's ideas and experiences through methods of discussion. In debating the fundamental questions of life, pupils learn to respect a range of perspectives. This contributes to learning about democracy, examining the idea that we all share a responsibility to use our voice and influence for the wellbeing of others. Put simply for young children, this is about the idea that everybody counts.
- The rule of law. In RE pupils examine different examples of codes for human life, including commandments, rules or precepts offered by different religious communities. They learn to appreciate how individuals choose between good and evil, right and wrong, and they learn to apply these ideas to their own communities. They learn that fairness requires that the law apply equally to all, irrespective of a person's status or wealth. Put simply for young children, this is about the idea that rules apply fairly to everyone.
- Individual liberty. In RE, pupils consider questions about identity, belonging and diversity, learning what it means to live a life free from constraints. They study examples of pioneers of human freedom, including those from within different religions, so that they can examine tensions between the value of a stable society and the value of change for human development. Put simply for young children, this is about the idea that we all get to make our own choices in a fair way.

Appendix

RE in special schools and for pupils with SEND

All pupils in Bedford Borough, Central Bedfordshire and Luton are entitled to a programme of RE which meets their learning needs and enables them to make progress in learning. Such a program will include a variety for all children with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND): multisensory RE, exploring relationships, experiencing learning from aspects of religious life and worship, joining through teamwork in songs, drama, storytelling, play and other learning strategies are to be part of the program. The agreed syllabus applies in law to SEND pupils 'as far as it is practicable'. It is always practicable for these pupils to learn in RE. This guidance is likely to be updated during the life of the syllabus as new government guidance on the curriculum for pupils with SEND is expected. At the time of writing, our 'P levels' are still relevant to RE.

Age-related expectations do not need to be applied to pupils with SEND: if pupils in older age groups will benefit from using work set out in the syllabus for pupils in the Reception class, then this is a practical and welcome approach.

We recognise that in order to develop RE with children with severe and complex learning needs, we have to give attention to the fundamental building blocks of the subject. The ability to communicate and build relationships is essential. Multisensory experience is the foundation of good RE.

For pupils working in the range of the P levels, RE experiences can be offered in many areas in relation to the learning goals of their educational plans:

Physical

Reaching, holding or turning towards objects or experiences offered in RE; responding with facial expressions to the experiences offered in RE; using the senses, enjoying being with another person, matching the emotions of another person, using and reacting to physical contact.

Social

Using and understanding social contact in RE activities; using vocalisations to respond to RE stimuli; communicating intentionally with sound or gestures, taking part in RE activities including simple teamwork with adults or other learners.

Emotional

Enjoying the stimuli offered by another person; being able to respond and react with emotions to sensory experiences in RE; responding to activities and experiences in RE; expressing a range of emotions in response to RE activities and stimuli.

Intellectual

Showing signs of empathy, having awareness of the feelings and experiences of others, beginning to respond to religious stories, poems and music; contributing to celebrations and festivals; communicating an idea of their own.

Learning intentions for all pupils

Learning objectives and opportunities in RE for pupils with SEND should be SMART (specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, time-related). The learning objectives should be pitched at an appropriate level for each child, and should show how pupils might demonstrate what they have experienced and or learned by doing each planned activity. Much of the assessment process, particularly in relation to achievement on the lower P-levels, relies upon teacher observations, possibly including photographic or video evidence.

The RE outcomes can be used to review progress and check whether pupils need more support or challenge. They also provide a framework for giving feedback to pupils. The learning outcomes achieved may not always be the ones that were planned, but should always be valued and used to inform future planning.

Objectives and expectations can also be used to help some pupils review their own progress, and as a focus for planned intervention strategies used by teachers: what RE experiences are pupils enjoying? What do they want to ask about? These questions guide future planning effectively. RE will include asking questions, listening to pupils talking or observing pupils reacting to experiences in RE in various ways. This observation is a way of providing valuable assessment information about the progress of pupils' learning.

Equals (www.equals.co.uk) provides an RE scheme of work for SEND pupils which is compatible with this RE syllabus. It also provides a range of specific learning outcomes.

SEND programmes of study

Teachers in special schools should modify and adapt the programmes of study to meet the range of needs of the pupils, which will include: profound and multiple learning difficulties, moderate and severe learning difficulties, emotional and behavioural difficulties and physical disabilities.

Expectations of attainment in RE for pupils in special schools and for those pupils identified with special educational needs in mainstream schools will be different.

RE performance descriptions for SEND pupils (commonly called 'P-levels')

In order to support teachers to incorporate the principles of inclusion in their planning, P-levels are identified in this agreed syllabus, based on work from the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. These performance descriptions outline early learning and attainment before level 1 in eight levels from P1 to P8. They are as follows:

- P-levels 1–3: early development expected across the curriculum
- P-levels 4–8: development specifically related to RE

Early development (P-levels 1–3)

- | | |
|-----------|---|
| P1 | Pupils are beginning to show sensory awareness in relation to a range of people, objects and materials in everyday contexts. They show reflex responses to sensory stimuli, e.g. startling at sudden noises or movements. |
| P2 | Pupils begin to respond to familiar people, events and objects, e.g. reaching and holding objects, smiling and turning towards familiar voices. They make sounds or gestures to express simple needs, wants or feelings in response to their immediate environment, e.g. protesting or requesting, using facial expressions to enhance meaning. |
| P3 | Pupils begin to communicate intentionally. They show anticipation in response to familiar people, routines, activities and actions and respond appropriately to them. They explore or manipulate objects, toys, artefacts or other equipment. They are able to communicate simple choices, likes and dislikes. They can communicate using different tones and sounds and use some vocalisations and/or gestures to communicate. |

Performance descriptions in RE (P-levels 4–8)

Levels P4 to P8 describe pupils' performance in terms of the development of skills, knowledge and understanding in RE. The descriptions provide an example of how this can be done.

- P4 Pupils use single elements of communication, e.g. words, gestures, signs or symbols, to express their feelings. They begin to respond to the feelings of others, e.g. matching their emotions and laughing when another pupil is laughing. They join in with activities by initiating ritual actions or sounds. They may demonstrate an appreciation of stillness and quietness.
- P5 Pupils respond appropriately to simple questions about familiar religious events or experiences and communicate simple meanings. They respond to a variety of new religious experiences, e.g. involving music, drama, colour, lights, food or tactile objects. They take part in activities involving two or three other learners. They may also engage in moments of individual reflection.
- P6 Pupils express and communicate their feelings in different ways. They respond to others in group situations and co-operate when working in small groups. Pupils listen to, and begin to respond to, familiar religious stories, poems and music, and make their own contribution to celebrations and festivals. They carry out ritualised actions in familiar circumstances. They show concern and sympathy for others in distress, e.g. through gestures, facial expressions or by offering comfort. They start to be aware of their own influence on events and other people.
- P7 Pupils listen to and follow religious stories. They communicate their ideas about religion, life events and experiences in simple phases. They evaluate their own work and behaviour in simple ways, beginning to identify some actions as right or wrong on the basis of consequences. They find out about aspects of religion through stories, music or drama, answer questions and communicate their responses. They may begin to understand that other people have needs, and to respect these. They make purposeful relationships with others in group activities.
- P8 Pupils listen attentively to religious stories or to people talking about religion. They begin to understand that religious and other stories carry moral and religious meanings. They are increasingly able to communicate ideas, feelings or responses to experiences or to retell religious stories. They communicate simple facts about religions and important people in religions. They begin to realise the significance of religious artefacts, symbols and places. They reflect on what makes them happy, sad, excited or lonely. They demonstrate a basic understanding of what is right and wrong in familiar situations. They are often sensitive to the needs and feelings of others and show respect for themselves and others. They treat living things and their environment with care and concern.

The vision of this agreed syllabus is of RE for all. Every pupil can achieve and benefit from their RE, including all pupils with SEND.

RE is a statutory part of the core curriculum for all pupils, including those with additional learning needs. Pupils with SEND are found in all contexts, and all teachers are teachers of pupils with SEND. Good-quality teaching in RE will tailor the planning of the syllabus carefully to the special needs of all pupils. RE provision for different groups of pupils will vary but all pupils should be included in RE.

For pupils with complex learning difficulties and disabilities (CLDD)

- Good RE begins from the unique individuality of the pupils, and provides rich experiences of religion and spirituality.
- Calm and peaceful space in RE can enable learners to enjoy their RE time individually.
- RE can enable pupils with the most complex of needs to develop awareness of themselves, their feelings, their emotions and their senses.

For pupils with severe learning difficulties (SLD)

- Multi-sensory approaches bring the possibility of introducing spiritual experiences.
- RE makes a contribution to pupils' social development through story, music, shared experience and ritual.
- RE can enable pupils to develop their relationships with other people and their understanding of other people's needs.

For pupils with moderate learning difficulties (MLD)

- RE can provide insight into the world of religion and human experiences, especially when tough questions are opened up.
- RE can provide opportunities for pupils to participate in spiritual or reflective activity.
- RE can enable pupils to make links with their own lives.

For pupils with emotional and behavioural difficulties (EBD)

- RE can enable pupils to address deep issues of concern in helpful ways through exploring spiritual material and seeing how others have tackled difficult experiences.
- RE lessons can explore, in the safe space schools should provide, complex emotions or thoughts, and challenging questions.
- RE can assist in the development of pupils' maturity and self-awareness.

Planning for RE in special schools

The law says that the agreed syllabus is to be taught to pupils with SEND 'as far as it is practicable'.¹² Given the complex and individual needs of pupils in special schools, it is important that teachers avoid a 'deficit model' of planning, where the syllabus is watered down, adapting a few units of work or teaching units for 4–6 year olds to 7–11s or 11–14s. Instead, we should draw on the key ideas of discovering, exploring, connecting and responding from this agreed syllabus. Special school RE should explore authentic and central concepts from religions, on the basis of what will connect with pupils' experiences and enable them to respond.

The 'five keys' planning model

This syllabus recommends a model devised by Anne Krisman¹³, teacher at Little Heath School in the London Borough of Redbridge. She advocates five keys for planning in RE for SEND.

1 Connection – what links can we make with our pupils' lives?

Creating a bridge between pupils' experiences and the religious theme.

2 Knowledge – what is the burning core of the faith?

Selecting what really matters in a religious theme, cutting out peripheral information.

3 Senses – what sensory elements are in the religion?

Looking for a range of authentic sensory experiences that link with the theme.

4 Symbols – what are the symbols that are most accessible?

Choosing symbols that will encapsulate the theme.

5 Values – what are the values in the religion that speak to us?

Making links between the values of the religious theme and the children's lives.

This simple but profound approach enables teachers to use this agreed syllabus as a source of information for religious themes and concepts, but then to plan RE so that pupils can explore and respond, promoting their personal development by making connections with core religious concepts and their own experiences.

The planning model looks like this:

Key	Focus	Activities
Connection What links can we make with our pupils' lives?
Knowledge What is at the burning core of the religion?	 In this column, each question is answered with pointers to activities. 	 In this column, teaching and learning activities are given.
Senses What sensory elements are in the religion?
Symbols What are the symbols that are the most accessible?
Values What are the values in the religion that speak to us?

A more detailed explanation of Anne Krisman's approach, with supporting examples, can be found here: www.reonline.org.uk/supporting/re-matters/news-inner/?id=15291

On the next page is an example of the five keys planning model in action. Schools do not need to follow this particular format, but should reflect on each of these five areas in their planning.

Example of a five keys planning model

Based on Unit 'What does it mean to be a Muslim in Britain today?', linked with Unit 'How do festivals and worship show what matters to a Muslim?', choosing to focus on Eid-ul-Fitr and Ramadan.

Knowledge What is at the burning core of the religion?	Muslims give up food (fast) during daylight hours during Ramadan. It makes them think of poor people and they give charity (zakah). When the new moon comes, it is Eid-ul-Fitr and they celebrate.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Act out getting up early in the morning with an alarm clock ringing, eating, saying 'no' to food, feeling hungry but happy, going home, looking for stars in sky, eating a date. • Look at pictures of poor people and say how you know they are poor. Make a charity box with a moon and stars on. • Read Ramadan Moon and talk about what the family does for Ramadan and Eid.
Senses What sensory elements are in the religion?	Eating dates to end the fast (iftaar). The prayer mat. Listening to Arabic prayers. Washing (wudu).	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Experience eating dates and Indian sweets, talking about special tastes and special times. • Feel different prayer mats while listening to Islamic prayers. Watch a film of children praying. Hear some Muslim Arabic words. • Show how you wash hands. Watch a film of children doing wudu before they pray.

Values What are the values in the religion that speak to us?	Doing things that are hard. Thinking of poor people. Giving to charity (zakah). Being with family.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Try to complete something that is hard, e.g. a jigsaw puzzle. Everyone says 'well done'. • Make a collection around the school or make something to sell for charity, e.g. ice cream or cakes. • Make 3D dolls of happy Muslim families in traditional clothes.
